

Submitted by: Monit

Consultation representation and participation

There's an old saying, if you're not making measurable progress in reasonable time then you must make substantial changes. I have not seen any substantial changes for companies identifying risks. Monit has been at the forefront of WHS innovation for the past 18 years with our latest innovation the world's first Virtual Consultant App. Until now risk management has used a static model which leaves risks open for longer than they need to be. Our VC App is also the world's first 'live' compliance model. Although clever technology is the backdrop of what we do it's the business model that makes it work. Without an onsite visit, we can identify risks within a business regardless of their industry type or location. Our findings are communicated to the business and the risks immediately removed or mitigated. All of this is in a 'live' environment, which drastically reduces risk exposure and incidents.