Developed for very tall athletes, the PREMIO 30 XT features an extra stiff shaft with increased stiffness making it ideal for double poling, and sprint as well as mass start races, where you can't avoid pole contacts. The tool-free Exchange Basket System brings clear advantages in terms of lightness and handling. The high performance grip-strap setup ensures maximum power transfer and allows you to get the most out of each push-off.

MODULAR RACE GRIP SYSTEM

Hands are naturally different in size. The new modular Race Grip System now offers the optimum grip size for any size hand. Especially in racing, but also for aspiring recreational athletes, the pole must fit ideally in the hand for optimal power transfer.

This is ensured by the three available grip sizes of the modular Race Grip System, each with different volumes. The grips are offered in low, mid and high volume and can be selected individually for each cross-country skier.

GRIP & STRAP CONNECTION

With the AV World Cup Strap II, the locked-in connection between the strap and the grip ensures optimal hold, providing power transfer and control with every pole stroke. The ergonomically designed straps are offered in seven different sizes to fit different hand sizes.

For the initial installation of the strap, it must first be inserted into the channel provided in the grip. Then the wedge is pushed laterally through the eyelet of the strap into the grip. The clicking sound confirms that the wedge is locked in place and the strap is secured against accidental loosening or misadjustment.

EXCHANGE BASKET SYSTEM

The ONE WAY Exchange Basket System makes changing pole baskets easy for everyone – from World Cup to marathon and fitness level skiers. The lightweight Exchange Basket System offers the option of quickly and easily replacing the basket on all cross country pole models that feature a 9 mm shaft tip.

REMOVAL: Pull the retaining clip away from the shaft releases the basket.

REPLACING: The fastening clip guides the basket into the correct position on the pole shaft. Push the basket firmly onto the pole shaft until you hear a click confirming that the basket is fully engaged on the retaining clip.

The ONE WAY Exchange Basket System includes a small basket with a lightweight aluminum tip for compact, non-icy conditions and a medium-sized basket for universal use, and two pairs of rollerski tips. Also included in the package: 2 pair sleeves, one release tool and one storage bag.

The Diamond XTR Junior is a versatile performance pole for kids in the rental sector. Thanks to the useful XTR color/length concept, you have the right length quickly at hand. The pole has an enormously durable and lightweight composite shaft and is equipped with a cork grip and the very easily adjustable exit strap. The versatile 11mm XC Basket provides stability in all snow conditions when using the pole.

NORDIC POLE PARAMETER

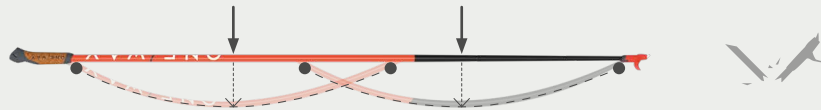

SWINGWEIGHT [kgm²]

The swingweight refers to the pendulum motion of a pole. The more weight near the tip of the pole, the more energy the skier has to spend. Ski poles are tested for swingweight performance without a grip, strap, and basket. The lower the swingweight, the better.

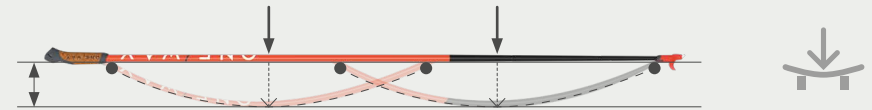

BALANCE POINT [mm]

This measurement is taken from the top of the pole and describes the point where the pole is in equilibrium. It is measured without grip and basket using a shaft length of 1350mm. The higher the center of gravity, the better.

BREAKING LOAD [N]

An essential mechanical value that describes the breakage resistance of a pole in the event of external forces. It is an indicator of durability. To test breaking load measurements are taken at two different points along the shaft, a force is then applied to the middle part of each section until the pole fails. These two values are then averaged to give the breaking load. The higher the breaking load, the better.

STIFFNESS [mm]

This factor determines the efficiency of the force transmission during propulsion. A stiffer pole transmits more of the skier's energy, and the less is absorbed by flex in the pole. Stiffness is measured without grip and basket. A force is applied at two different points directly in the middle of each section, and the maximum deflection is measured. These two values are then averaged to give the stiffness. The stiffer the shaft, the better.

WEIGHT [g/m]

Pole shaft weight is a major determining factor in the overall performance of a ski pole. It is a measurement of the total weight of the pole shaft per meter without grip and basket. The material used in construction significantly influences this number. The lower the weight, the better.

THE NEW POS TOOL

One modular system - many options.

The new ONE WAY pole display is your one-piece solution to merchandise Alpine and Nordic poles. The double-sided pole display is highly configurable and includes all parts to hold both shafts and components for the Alpine GTX and the new Nordic Storm GTX concept. In addition to storing individual parts for ONE WAY'S modular pole systems, the display will hold up to 24 pairs of pre-configured Alpine and Nordic poles per side.

The ONE WAY pole display includes easily replaceable graphics for Nordic Storm GTX, Alpine GTX, and a branded logo option. Measuring 42 x 40cm, the display's compact footprint allows easy placement in any retail environment.
