[Edmonton, Alberta, January 23, 2023] – Today, Flair Airlines, Canada's everyday low fare airline, announced it won the ch-aviation North America 2nd Youngest Aircraft Fleet award for 2023. Ch-aviation is a leading, independent source of airline intelligence and data.

"We're on a mission to deliver low fares to Canadians and flying a state-of-the-art Boeing 737 MAX fleet means we can do this with the lowest carbon emissions of any Canadian carrier, and at the lowest passenger-mile cost in Canada," said Stephen Jones, CEO of Flair Airlines. "Sustainability is a key focus for the airline in the new year, coupled with ensuring Canadian travellers continue to benefit from Flair's low fares and increased service across our network."

"ch-aviation recognizes Flair Airlines fleet of young and efficient aircraft. We believe it is essential to acknowledge them, as maintaining a modern fleet helps reduce CO2 emissions, which is a significant step toward sustainability," said Thomas Jaeger, CEO of ch-aviation. "Flair boasts the second youngest fleet in Canada, and second youngest in North America, which will benefit both passengers and the environment."

Flair maintains bases in Vancouver, Edmonton, Ottawa, Toronto, and Kitchener-Waterloo. New aircraft bring approximately 50 jobs to the base and direct and indirect employment, including customer service agents, ground handlers, cabin crews, maintenance staff, and more. Each Flair Airlines Boeing 737 MAX aircraft has a passenger capacity of 189 seats in a single class and boasts 14% less fuel consumption and greenhouse gas emissions than predecessor Boeing 737 models.
