

The Soul Layer

The fuel tank of the subtle structure, the soul layer, is the mixing bowl of subtle individuated currents of energy from the core as well as universal Source energies that enter at the edge of the HES. Every time different energies cross in the soul layer, a new colored energy is created that inspires and stimulates the vitality of the entire structure.

Swirling currents of individuated core light create the rainbow colors of the soul layer. No two soul layers are the same, you are unique and expressing in your own way. Your shape reflects the life you lead, the spiritual growth you experience and the work you do. Your soul layer is beautiful and actively building and restoring the subtle structure every moment of every day.
