

Arthur McClellan (1839-1904) was known as "General McClellan's younger brother."

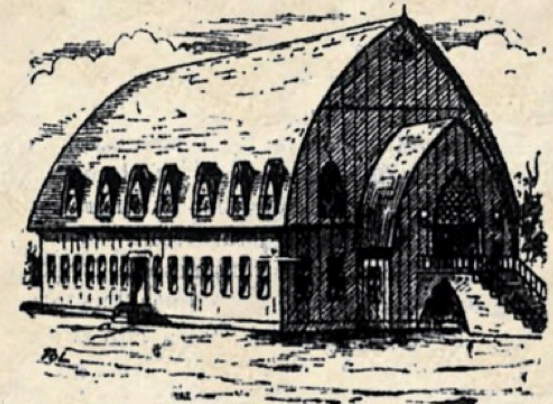

He was also "Eckley B. Coxe's cousin." Regardless, he was described as "a scholar of rare ability," at Penn, and after joining Coxe Brothers & Co, he was appointed purchasing agent and superintendent of houses. He became General Superintendent and one of the best-known men in mining and railroad circles.

THE HOSPITAL.

A DRIFTON MINER'S HOME.

THE CONCERT HALL.

