

Prof. Frederick Prime, Jr. (1846-1915) may be the only Founder to have his own Facebook page, <https://www.facebook.com/frederick.prime>.

It states, "About Frederick: I was a fabulous geologist. I loved role playing, mostly revolutionary battles. I belonged to the Society of Colonial Wars, The American Philosophical Society and the Sons of Revolution. I am a proud father and husband. I am a well traveled man, having been to Germany exploring their mines for four years. I was a social man... and still am."

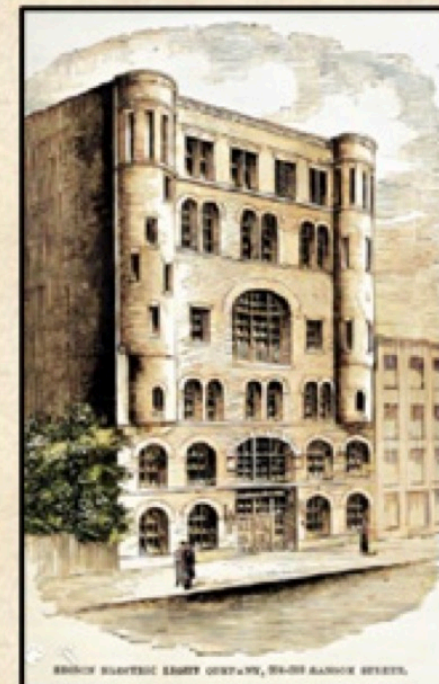

He has four "friends," all pretty, young girls. We asked to be a "friend" a couple years ago but haven't gotten a response. Don't think we could agree about him being very social.

Prime graduated from Columbia in 1865 and studied four years at the Royal School of Mines, Freiberg. He was assistant professor at Columbia, professor of geology and metallurgy at Lafayette 1870-1879, and PA Assistant State Geologist 1874-1879. He was involved with several iron and electric companies in PA and Alabama and was President of the Edison Electric Light Company of Philadelphia from 1891-1893.

He became a professor of natural history at Girard College in 1895.
