QUICK HITS

SOUTH CAROLINA IN THE SEC

For the second consecutive year, South Carolina has won the SEC Eastern Division. The Gamecocks went 17-6 in the final 23 conference games to finish at 18-11, just one-half game behind SEC champion LSU. South Carolina is the No. 2 seed for the SEC Tournament and will play the final game on Wednesday against the low seed winner of either the No.3 Florida-No. 10 Auburn game or the No. 5 Vanderbilt-No. 8 Georgia game. That time is still to be determined.

This is the sixth Eastern Division title for the Gamecocks under head coach Ray Tanner. South Carolina also won the East in 1999, 2000, 2002, 2003 and 2011.

NCAA REGIONAL RECAP

South Carolina (7) Manhattan (0)

South Carolina junior pitcher Colby Holmes pitched eight scoreless innings as the Gamecocks shut out Manhattan, 7-0, on the first day of the 2012 NCAA Columbia Regional at Carolina Stadium.

Holmes (7-1) surrendered only a single in the eighth inning and fanned a career-high nine batters in eight innings of work to earn the win. He also did not have a walk and hit one batter. The game went into a lightning delay in the bottom of the eighth with two outs, preventing Holmes from completing the game.

Jaspers starting hurler Taylor Sewitt (11-2), who had a no-hitter going through five innings, gave the Manhattan six solid innings of work before being pulled to begin the seventh. He allowed four runs and four hits and struck out three in the loss.

The Gamecocks collected seven hits on the night. Senior right fielder Adam Matthews went 2-for-4 with three RBIs to lead the way, while junior Christian Walker delivered a solo home run and freshman Tanner English contributed a two-run triple.

The pitchers controlled the first five innings, as the teams combined to have just five base runners during that stretch on four walks and a hit batter.

The Gamecocks broke the scoreless tie in the bottom of the sixth with a four-run outburst. Freshman Joey Pankake ripped a leadoff double to the gap in left center to break up Sewitt's no-hitter. After Evan Marzilli singled and Walker drew a walk to load the bases with no outs, Matthews roped a single to left to drive in Pankake and Marzilli to give South Carolina a 2-0 advantage, ending Sewitt's scoreless streak at 39 1/3 innings. English then smashed his team-high fourth triple of the season to right field to clear the bases and push the Gamecocks' lead to 4-0.

Holmes continued to dominate the game into the eighth inning as he retired 18 straight batters from the last out of the second inning until two outs in the eighth, when Joe Rock broke up the no-hitter with a single to left field. However, Holmes bounced back to strike out the next batter to end the inning.

South Carolina added three insurance runs in eighth, including a leadoff solo home run just inside the foul pole in left by Walker, to build a 7-0 cushion.

South Carolina (5) Clemson (4)

Junior LB Dantzler blasted a walk-off single off the right-field wall in the bottom of the 12th inning, scoring freshman Joey Pankake to lift South Carolina to a thrilling 5-4 victory over rival Clemson on Saturday in the 2012 NCAA Columbia Regional at Carolina Stadium.

Pankake came through with a leadoff single to begin the 12th. Junior Evan Marzilli then moved Pankake to third with a single to left center, setting the stage for Dantzler. After Christian Walker popped up to right field, Dantzler smashed a 2-2 offering from Kevin Brady to right to drive in Pankake for the victory in front of a sellout crowd of 8,242.

Carolina tallied 12 hits on the evening, including a 3-for-6 night from Marzilli. Dantzler, Pankake and Adam Matthews contributed two hits apiece. Matthews had two RBIs after delivering his fifth home run of the season.

Clemson collected eight hits in the loss. Brad Felder led the way with three base knocks, including a solo home run.

South Carolina reliever Evan Beal (4-4) worked a perfect 1 1/3 innings to earn the win, striking out two batters.

Brady (1-3) picked up the loss after working three innings and giving up one run and five hits. He also had three strikeouts.

In a game that featured big plays in almost every inning, one of the biggest came early on for the Gamecocks. Carolina starting pitcher Michael Roth got in a jam in the top of the second inning as he gave up a single and walked two batters to load the bases with no outs. However, the Gamecocks turned a huge double play that involved interference being called on the base runner going to second, forcing runners to go back to second and third base and taking a run off the board. Roth was then able to get Spencer Kieboom to fly out to center field to end the threat.

After getting the Gamecock offense going in Friday's win, Matthews was back at it on Saturday as he delivered a two-out two-run home run to left field in the fourth to give South Carolina a 2-0 lead.

The Tigers found their offense in the seventh with a three-run rally to take the lead. With one out and runners on first and second, Steve Wilkerson lined a double down the left-field line to drive in one run. Thomas Brittle followed with a RBI single, and Pohl reached on a fielder's choice with the bases loaded to plate another run and give Clemson a 3-2 advantage.

Clemson pushed its lead to 4-2 in the eighth when Felder sent a solo homer over the right-field wall.

The Gamecocks pulled to within a run in the home half of the eighth. Marzilli ripped a single to right field to lead things off. Walker then doubled down the left-field line, scoring Marzilli from first to make it a 4-3 ballgame.

Carolina rallied in the ninth to tie the game. Kyle Martin delivered a pinch-hit single to lead off the frame. After Chase Vergason drew a walk and Dante Rosenberg laid down a sacrifice bunt to move the runners to second and third, Pankake lined a single to center field, scoring pinch runner TJ Costen to tie the game. Vergason was waved home on the play, but he was thrown out at the plate to keep the contest knotted at 4-4, as the teams went to extra innings where Dantzler delivered the game-winning single.

NCAA REGIONAL RECAP

South Carolina (4) Clemson (3)

For the third straight year, South Carolina will play in the NCAA Super Regional. The Gamecocks jumped on rival Clemson early on Sunday en route to claiming the Columbia Regional title with a 4-3 victory at Carolina Stadium in front of a sellout crowd of 8,242.

South Carolina (43-17) will host the winner of the Charlottesville Regional next week in its 10th Super Regional appearance in the last 13 years. The victory is the Gamecocks' NCAA-record 19th consecutive postseason win. Carolina has now won 22 straight postseason games at home, including an 11-0 mark all-time at Carolina Stadium.

With the loss, Clemson concludes its season with a 35-28 record.

One of the keys to Carolina's win was the stellar regional debut of freshman starting pitcher Jordan Montgomery. The Sumter, S.C., native worked 6 2/3 innings, giving up two runs and five hits and fanning six batters to improve his record to 5-1. He kept Clemson's bats under control for most of the day as he retired 12 straight batters at one point during the game. Junior Tyler Webb closed things out for the Gamecocks to pick up his third save of the season, allowing one run and two hits and striking out four in 2 1/3 innings on the mound.

Clemson starter David Haselden (4-2) was tagged with the loss after surrendering three runs and three hits in 2/3 of an inning.

Carolina tallied 10 hits on the afternoon, as LB Dantzler, Tanner English and Chase Vergason led the charge with two hits each. The multi-hit game is English's team-leading 21st of the season. Freshman Joey Pankake added his third triple of the year, and freshman Connor Bright contributed a double, which is the first extra base hit of his career.

Seven Tigers recorded one hit apiece with Thomas Brittle and Spencer McGibbon each tallying a double to lead the way.

The Gamecocks came out swinging early and put together a three-run outburst in the top of the first inning. Pankake ignited the offense as he narrowly missed hitting a leadoff home run off the center-field wall and turned it into a triple. Evan Marzilli followed with a sacrifice fly to left field, and Pankake slid under the tag at home to score Carolina's first run. Marzilli's sac fly was his eighth of the season, which moves him into a tie with Jim Curl (1981) and Jim Pankovits (1974) for first all-time in a single season at Carolina. Christian Walker then drew a walk and later scored on a single to left by regional MVP Adam Matthews, and Bright made it a 3-0 game with a run-scoring double off the wall in left.

Carolina pushed its lead to 4-0 in the sixth. English doubled, advanced to third on a Clemson throwing error by the left fielder and then scored on a single by Vergason to give the Gamecocks a four-run cushion.

Clemson cut Carolina's lead in half in the bottom of the sixth, as Brittle delivered a RBI double and scored two batters later on a groundout by Phil Pohl.

The Tigers made things interesting in the ninth by pulling to within 4-3 on a two-out RBI single by Spencer Kieboom, but Webb was able to get Brad Felder to fly out to right to end the game and send the Gamecocks to the Super Regional.

SOUTH CAROLINA & THE NCAA SUPER REGIONAL

South Carolina (43-17) is making its 10th appearance in the last 13 years in the NCAA Super Regional as the Gamecocks host Oklahoma (42-23) this weekend with the winner of the series advancing to Omaha and the 2012 College World Series.

The Gamecocks are one of four teams from the SEC to make the NCAA Super Regionals along with Arkansas, Florida and LSU. South Carolina is the back-to-back defending national champion after winning the consecutive titles in the 2010 CWS and 2011 CWS. Carolina has reached 10 College World Series as well.

The super regional at Carolina Stadium is set to begin on Saturday, June 9 with first pitch at 8 p.m. and the game televised on ESPNU. Sunday's game is scheduled for 7 p.m. and will be televised on ESPNU. The if necessary game for Monday will start at 7 p.m. and be televised on ESPN2. South Carolina is making its 10th NCAA Super Regional appearance in the last 13 years, one of only two schools in the country to have accomplished the feat in that span.

SOUTH CAROLINA & THE NCAA TOURNAMENT

This is South Carolina's 28th overall appearance in the NCAA Division I Baseball Tournament. The Gamecocks are one of eight teams from the SEC to make the 2012 NCAA Tournament. South Carolina's 13 consecutive trips to the NCAA Baseball Tournament is the longest current streak of the 12 SEC schools. Carolina is one of only six schools in the nation that has reached the NCAA Regional in the last 13 consecutive years.

SOUTH CAROLINA IN THE POSTSEASON

The Gamecocks are 11-0 all-time at Carolina Stadium in NCAA Tournament games, and the program has won 22 consecutive postseason games at home, dating back to the 2002 Super Regional vs. Miami.

Carolina has won an NCAA record 19 NCAA Tournament games in a row (last six at the 2010 College World Series, 10 victories in the 2011 Postseason, three victories in the 2012 postseason). The Gamecocks are 24-1 in their last 25 postseason games.

SOUTH CAROLINA-OKLAHOMA SERIES

South Carolina and Oklahoma have met three previous times on the baseball diamond with the Gamecocks owning a 2-1 record over the Sooners. Both teams met twice in the 2010 College World Series with Oklahoma defeating the Gamecocks 4-3 and South Carolina earning a 3-2 win in 12 innings over the Sooners in an elimination game in the 2010 CWS.

LAST TIME THE TWO SCHOOLS MET - South Carolina (3) Oklahoma (2) (12 inn.) June 24, 2012

A pair of two-out RBI singles by Jackie Bradley Jr. and Brady Thomas erased a one-run deficit as South Carolina rallied for a dramatic 3-2 win over Oklahoma in 12 innings.

It was a dramatic night at Rosenblatt Stadium with both teams battling back and forth with the result in question until the final play. After Oklahoma took a 2-1 lead in the top of the 12th on a solo home run by Tyler Ogle, the Gamecocks made their move as Robert Beary singled to open the frame and give the Gamecocks the tying run on the base paths. With two outs and Beary on second base in scoring position, Bradley battled Oklahoma closer Ryan Duke to a full count before lacing a RBI single past Oklahoma's diving first baseman Cameron Seitzer to score Beary and tie the game. Jeffery Jones then walked moving Bradley into scoring position setting the stage for Thomas, who roped the first pitch he saw from Duke up the middle for a RBI single to win the game and setting off a celebration among the Gamecock players on the field.

Gamecock left-hander Tyler Webb earned the win in relief after one scoreless inning of relief with a strikeout. Ryan Duke suffered the loss after allowing two runs on three hits in 0.2 innings.

"It was another great baseball game between the Gamecocks and the Sooners," said South Carolina head coach Ray Tanner. "The first time we met, it was a heck of a game and it really was the same thing tonight. It was a battle. We got a great start out of Blake Cooper. We just fought and they fought and we got out of a jam there early with a double play ball. We just kept scrapping and trying to stay in position to win. And it was late, but Jackie came up with a big hit and Brady hits one through the middle. It was an incredible win for us. Just never give up day. Charlie Peters, our buddy here in Omaha, we met back in 2003 at the Children's Hospital, he came out early tonight. He had a little sign: Never give up. Battle hard. And I told Charlie, I said, if we win this game, it's because of you. If we lose it, it's because of me. And I thought I was going to have to shoulder it there for a while. But just a great game by both teams fighting hard. You hate to have anybody lose tonight, really. But I just kept thinking, you know, we lost a close one. Maybe now it's our turn to win a close one. Very difficult to come by. But these guys battled and it worked out for us."

Both Gamecock starting pitcher Blake Cooper and Oklahoma starter Zach Neal had quality starts and kept each of their respective teams in position to win the game. Cooper worked 5.2 innings allowing just one run on four hits with six strikeouts and two walks. Neal lasted seven-plus inning and yielded one run on five hits with seven strikeouts and a walk. Cooper made his 19th start of the year, the most by any pitcher in the country. He has a 2-1 record with a 2.52 ERA in four NCAA Tournament starts with Thursday's no-decision.

The Sooners broke ahead 1-0 in the top of the second inning. Ogle led off with a single and after a one-out walk to Cameron Seitzer would score on a RBI base hit to right center off the bat of Caleb Bushyhead. With runners on the corners, Carolina starter Blake Cooper escaped further damage as he was able to get Danny Black to ground out into a 3-6 double play limiting Oklahoma to just one run in the frame.

The Gamecocks looked to score in the bottom of the fifth inning loading the bases on a two-out walk to Kyle Enders, a double by Bobby Haney and a hit by pitch against Scott Wingo. Neal worked himself out of the jam as he was able to coax Evan Marzilli into fouling out to third baseman Garrett Buechele. Carolina would touch Neal for a run in the bottom of the eighth inning. Evan Marzilli led off with a double off the wall in left field and scored on Christian Walker's one-out RBI single.

The relief efforts by both teams was strong as neither team could muster the run until the dramatic 12th inning. Michael Roth worked 1.1 scoreless innings, John Taylor had one scoreless inning of relief and Matt Price had a strong three innings of relief with five strikeouts for Carolina. Jeremy Erben was equally effective in four scoreless innings for Oklahoma as he allowed just two hits and one walk.

South Carolina finished with a 10-5 advantage in hits. Walker led the way with a 3-for-5 day at the plate. Marzilli also had two hits. Ogle finished 2-for-3 with two runs scored for Oklahoma.

Bradley's single in the 12th inning extended his hitting streak to 19 games. He is now 6-for-13 in the CWS; his seven RBI is the most by any player in the 2010 CWS. South Carolina is now 4-1 in extra inning games this year. South Carolina's pitching staff finished with 14 strikeouts on the night, the 24th time this season that Carolina has struck out 10 or more batters.

SOUTH CAROLINA IN THE SEC TOURNAMENT

South Carolina reached the SEC Tournament for the 16th consecutive season under head coach Ray Tanner. Carolina's 16 straight appearances is the longest current streak among the 12 SEC schools. Carolina won the SEC Tournament in 2004 defeating Vanderbilt in the championship game and finished second in 2002 to Alabama.

SOUTH CAROLINA BASEBALL

South Carolina has won more games than any SEC team in the league the last 13 years. The Gamecocks own a 240-148 record in that span (.619), from 2000-present.

ROTH NAMED 2011-12 SEC H. BOYD MCWHORTER MALE SCHOLAR-ATHLETE OF THE YEAR

University of South Carolina baseball player Michael Roth has been named the 2011-12 SEC H. Boyd McWhorter Scholar-Athlete of the Year, SEC Commissioner Mike Slive announced last Friday. The award will be formally presented to Roth at the annual Awards Banquet at the league's spring meeting in Destin, Fla., on May 31.

Roth was chosen by a committee of Faculty Athletics Representatives from SEC universities and will receive a $15,000 post-graduate scholarship, provided by AT&T, an SEC Corporate Champion sponsor, and the Allstate Sugar Bowl. Roth, a native of Greer, S.C., will earn a B.S. degree in International Business and Marketing in May. He was a first-team Capital One/CoSIDA Academic All-American and a recipient of the NCAA Elite 88 Award, having the highest grade point average of all student-athletes participating in the College World Series last season. A member of the SEC Academic Honor Roll, he is also a member of Carolina's Dean's List and President's List.

Roth was a consensus first-team All-America in 2011 and finished the season with a 14-3 overall record and 1.06 earned run average as a starting pitcher for the Gamecocks. He was a first-team All-SEC choice and member of the College World Series All-Tournament Team. A four-year letter winner, he was a team captain of the 2011 NCAA Champions. He was the winning pitcher in the 2010 and 2011 national championship-clinching games. He was named the 2011 National Player of the Year by CollegeBaseballInsider.com and a semifinalist for USA Baseball's Golden Spikes Award.

In the community, Roth has visited children at various elementary schools and hospitals and took part in the "Light the Night" Walk, helping to raise funds for the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society. He is also a member of Carolina's Student-Athlete Advisory Committee. He has also used his academic interests in the business community. He created and executed a marketing plan to maximize textbook buybacks for Better World Books and consulted with Avwatch, a system integration company, helping it create an international market entry strategy, leading it into new markets in Canada, Chile and the United States. ROTH A FINALIST FOR THE LOWE'S SENIOR CLASS AWARD

University of South Carolina senior left-handed pitcher Michael Roth is one of 10 finalists selected as a finalist for the 2012 Lowe's Senior CLASS Award for baseball. To be eligible for the award, a student-athlete must be classified as an NCAA Division I senior and have notable achievements in four areas of excellence - community, classroom, character and competition.

An acronym for Celebrating Loyalty and Achievement for Staying in School®, the Lowe's Senior CLASS Award focuses on the total student-athlete and encourages students to use their platform in athletics to make a positive impact as leaders in their communities.

The finalists were chosen by a media committee from the list of 30 candidates announced in February. Nationwide fan voting begins immediately to determine the winner.

Fans are encouraged to vote on the Lowe's Senior CLASS Award website through June 11. Fan votes will be combined with media and Division I men's head coaches' votes to determine the winner.

Lowe's, an official Corporate Partner of the NCAA, will announce the Senior CLASS Award® winner during the 2012 NCAA College World Series®, which will be held June 15-26 in Omaha.

For more information on all the finalists, visit seniorCLASSaward.com.

SEVEN GAMECOCKS HONORED BY SOUTHEASTERN CONFERENCE

South Carolina senior pitcher Michael Roth was named SEC Baseball Scholar-Athlete of the Year, and junior first baseman Christian Walker earned first-team All-SEC honors, as the league announced its annual baseball honors on May 28.

A total of seven Gamecocks received recognition. Junior relief pitcher Matt Price was a second team All-SEC selection, while outfielder Tanner English, shortstop Joey Pankake and catcher Grayson Greiner made the All-Freshman Team. Roth and junior outfielder Evan Marzilli also garnered All-Defensive Team accolades.

Roth adds to his already lengthy list of honors for his efforts on the field and in the classroom, as he is also the 2012 SEC H. Boyd McWhorter Male Scholar-Athlete of the Year, one of 10 finalists for the Lowe's Senior CLASS Award and is on the Golden Spikes Award watch list.

This marks the third-consecutive season Walker has earned All-SEC accolades, as he was named to the second team and earned All-Defensive honors last season and was an All-Freshman Team selection in 2010. Price becomes a three-time All-SEC honoree as he was a first-team selection last season and garnered second-team honors in 2010. English, Pankake and Greiner have all turned in stellar freshman campaigns for the Gamecocks.

ROTH LEADS THE WAY ON THE FIELD

Senior left-hander Michael Roth is 6-1 with a 2.68 ERA in 16 starts with 107.1 innings pitched. He has 76 strikeouts to 35 walks and opponents are batting just .215 against him. He ranks third in earned run average, fourth in innings pitched and fifth in opposing batting average in the conference. In SEC games, Roth went 3-1 with a 3.43 ERA. He hurled 65.2 innings in 10 league starts.

Roth's victory vs. Vanderbilt was his 20th career win, making him the 20th player in school history to tally 20 or more career victories.

Roth has a career record of 23-6 at South Carolina. He has 90 career appearances as a Gamecock, second only to current teammate Matt Price. He also has hurled 324.2 innings in his career, just four innings shy of the Top 10 career list.

MATTHEWS FINDS HIS WAY HOME

Senior outfielder Adam Matthews was named 2012 Columbia Regional MVP after hitting .385 with a homer, four runs scored and six RBI. Matthews had three RBI in the 7-0 win over Manhattan, hit a two-run homer in the 5-4 win over Clemson and tallied a RBI single in the 4-3 victory over the Tigers.

Matthews collected three hits in the 5-3 win vs. Auburn at the SEC Tournament that tied a season-high. Matthews also went 3-for-4 with a RBI double in the 5-4 win over LSU with two stolen bases a few weeks ago.

He was stellar in the outfield in the Arkansas series with two key assists in Sunday's 10-7 victory over the Razorbacks. Matthews threw out a runner attempting to score on a sacrifice fly in the sixth inning and threw out a runner trying to score off a base hit from second base in the seventh inning. He also drove in the first run of the game for the Gamecocks with a two-out RBI single on Sunday in the seventh inning in the Gamecock victory. Matthews has four assists from the outfield this year.

Matthews hit a solo home run in the bottom of the eighth inning to help lift South Carolina to a 1-0 win over the Crimson Tide. Matthews followed that up with a solo home run in the 12-11 win. Three of Matthews' four home runs have come in SEC play. Matthews hit .271 in league games (26-for-96).

HOLMES WITH THE ANSWER

Junior right-hander Colby Holmes carried a no-hitter into the eighth inning of the 7-0 win over Manhattan. He struck out a career-high nine batters and yielded just one hit in the outing to earn the victory. He was named to the NCAA Regional All-Tournament Team.

Holmes is 7-1 on the year with a 3.00 ERA in 69.0 innings pitched with 58 strikeouts to just 13 walks.

PANKAKE SHOWCASE

Freshman shortstop Joey Pankake was named to the NCAA Regional All-Tournament Team and has moved his batting average to .286 (58-for-203) with 40 runs scored, a team-high 15 doubles, three triples, two homers and 25 RBI. He has a .380 on-base percentage.

Pankake had a two-run single in the 12-5 win over Auburn. He also scored two runs in the 11-7 win on Sunday. Pankake gave the Gamecocks some insurance in the 6-4 win over Mississippi State with a two-run single in the bottom of the eighth inning. Pankake, who moved to the leadoff role that weekend, had five hits and hit .357 vs. the Bulldogs.

He had a 5-for-6 game with a pair of RBI in the 8-5 win over Furman. The last Gamecock player with five hits in a game was Christian Walker on April 5, 2011 vs. USC Upstate. He tallied his first career homer and RBI in the 2-1 win vs. Presbyterian. The game-winning hit came in the bottom of the fourth inning. In the Elon series, he was 2-for-4 with a triple and three runs scored in the 8-1 win in the opener. He had two walks in game two and a hit and a run scored in the Sunday series finale.

MARZILLI PUTS ON A SHOW

Junior outfielder Evan Marzilli continues to show why he is one of the best defensive outfielders in the country with several key catches and diving grabs all over the field throughout the season. He has four assists on the year from the outfield and was named to the SEC All-Defensive Team.

Marzilli tallied three hits and a run scored in the 5-4 win over Clemson. He is hitting .288 (68-for-236) and is tied for sixth in the SEC in runs scored with 50. He has a .371 on-base percentage as well.

Marzilli is tied for the school's single-season record of eight sacrifice flies. Marzilli is tied with Jim Curl (1981) and Jim Pankovits (1974)

Marzilli had two sacrifice flies for the weekend series vs. the Crimson Tide as well as a sacrifice fly vs. Davidson and now leads the team with seven for the season, one short of the school single-season record of eight. Marzilli also leads the Gamecocks with eight stolen bases. He stole a base and scored two runs in the 9-1 win on Saturday vs. Alabama.

Marzilli reached base in the first 31 games of the 2012 season but saw his streak snap in the 6-1 victory vs. the Volunteers.

Marzilli had four hits including a three-run homer in the 8-5 win over Furman and was 3-for-4 win the 9-3 win over Florida. Marzilli had a game-winning three-run double as well as a career-high four RBI in the 6-4 win over Appalachian State. He also tied a school record with three doubles in the 2-1 win over Princeton. It is the 25th time in school history that a player has tallied three doubles in one game.

Marzilli's defense was essential for the Gamecocks in the 3-2 win over Clemson in 11 innings. Marzilli had his first assist of the year with a throw to home plate to nab a Tiger runner trying to score and his diving catch with two outs in the bottom of the 11th inning sealed the Gamecock victory.

Marzilli was effective in the first weekend vs. VMI as he hit .500 (6-for-12) with a .538 on-base percentage. Marzilli had a 3-for-4 day at the plate on Opening Day. He scored the game-winning run in the opener and also was key in the 13-1 victory as he went 2-for-4 with a triple, run scored and two RBI.

CHASE HIM ON BASE

Junior second baseman Chase Vergason made the NCAA Regional All-Tournament Team after recording a .538 on-base percentage with four walks and three hits. He also drove in a pair of runs.

Vergason has been strong as of late as he went 4-for-9 (.444) in the SEC Tournament at the plate. He also hit .500 (5-for-10) in the Arkansas series with a .545 on-base percentage and a 1.000 slugging percentage with a homer, two doubles, three runs scored and three RBI.

Vergason hit .245 in SEC games (13-for-53) with a .406 on-base percentage in the league as well. For the season he is batting .250 (26-for-104) with a .403 overall on-base percentage.

LB LIGHTS IT UP - #FearTheFish

Junior third baseman LB Dantzler made the NCAA Regional All-Tournament Team after hitting .400 (4-for-10) including a walk-off RBI single in the 12th inning of the 5-4 win over Clemson.

Dantzler is hitting .260 (60-for-231) with 12 doubles, nine homers and 44 RBI. His nine homers is eighth best in the SEC with his RBI total 10th best in the conference. In SEC games, Dantzler has six homers and 24 RBI.

Dantzler hit a solo home run in the 3-0 win over Georgia and had a two-run double in the ninth inning of the 6-5 loss to the Bulldogs on Saturday.

Dantzler had a clutch bat in the Auburn series as he went 5-for-13 (.385) with five runs scored, two homers and four RBI. His slugging percentage was .923. Dantzler belted a two-run homer in the 5-3 win on Saturday. He added three hits, three runs scored a RBI double and a homer in the 11-7 win over the Tigers on Sunday.

Dantzler tallied a walk-off RBI single in the 2-1 win on Saturday night vs. Tennessee. He hit his fifth homer of the year and finished with three RBI in the 6-4 win over Vanderbilt. He was 2-for-4 with a season-high three runs scored in the 6-4 win vs. Appalachian State.

Dantzler was solid in his debut vs. VMI as he tallied a game-winning RBI single in the bottom of the eighth inning as South Carolina defeated VMI 2-1 in the opener. Dantzler followed that up with a three-run homer, a double and four RBI in the 13-1 win over VMI that helped Carolina sweep the Keydets. Dantzler finished the weekend 4-for-11 (.364) at the plate with five RBI and a .727 slugging percentage.

ENGLISH HAS A KNACK

Freshman outfielder Tanner English leads the Gamecocks with 21 multi-hit games and is second on the team in batting average with a .307 mark (66-for-215). He also has nine stolen bases. He has a team-high four triples as well.

English led the Gamecocks in hitting in the MSU series with a .455 average (5-for-11). English scored four runs over the weekend with a triple and also a RBI.

He tallied two hits in the 9-3 win over Florida. He was 2-for-5 with a run scored in the 8-5 win over Furman. He had a season-high three hits and a run scored in the 5-2 win over Charleston Southern. English went 2-for-4 with two runs in the 8-1 win over UNC Asheville. He scored a run in all three games of the Elon series and hit safely in all three games as well. English drove in three runs for the weekend with a key two-run triple to left-center in 6-0 win over Elon in the second inning.

TYLER WEBB MAKES HIS MARK

Junior left-hander Tyler Webb is tied for eighth all-time for appearances in a single season at South Carolina with 33 on the year. Webb is 5-1 with a 2.01 ERA and has 46 strikeouts to just 11 walks in 44.2 innings pitched. Opponents are hitting just .234 against him.

GREINER NAMED TO USA BASEBALL NATIONAL TEAM

South Carolina freshman catcher Grayson Greiner has been selected to the roster for the 2012 USA Baseball Collegiate National Team, it was announced on Monday, May 14. It is the ninth time in school history for a player to be selected to the collegiate team and it is the third consecutive season a Gamecock has been named to the team. Christian Walker was named to last year's squad, although he was unable to participate due to a hamate bone injury. Jackie Bradley Jr. represented the Red, White & Blue after the 2010 season.

SOUTH CAROLINA PLAYERS & USA BASEBALL COLLEGIATE NATIONAL TEAM

- 2012 - Grayson Greiner, C
- 2011 - Christian Walker, 1B (did not play due to injury)
- 2010 - Jackie Bradley Jr., OF
- 2007 - Justin Smoak, 1B
- 2003 - Matt Campbell, P
- 2002 - Landon Powell, C
- 1997 - Adam Everett, SS
- 1989 - Brian Williams, P/OF
- 1986 - Dave Hollins, 3B

For the season, Greiner has played in 55 games with 48 starts including 42 behind the plate. He is hitting .236 (41-for-174) with six homers and 31 RBI. Greiner owns a .258 (24-for-93) batting average in the league with 12 of his 234 hits, extra base hits (eight doubles, one triple, three homers). He has also driven in 18 runs and has a .462 slugging percentage in SEC contests.

Greiner caught all 28 innings in the Gamecocks' weekend series victory at 13th ranked Arkansas. Greiner was phenomenal behind the plate as he threw out five runners over the course of the weekend trying to steal. His two-run homer on Friday night was the first homer allowed all season by Arkansas starter Ryne Stanek, a key two-run blast that helped the Gamecocks rally from six runs down to defeat the Razorbacks on the road on Friday night. Greiner also had a sacrifice fly in the contest and tallied a RBI single in the 10th inning of the 8-6 victory. In Sunday's 10-7 win, Greiner drove in two runs with a single in a six-run eighth inning with the bases loaded and one out against Arkansas closer Barrett Astin.

Greiner earned SEC Freshman of the Week after the Mississippi State series. It marked the second straight week a Gamecock had earned Freshman of the Week accolades. Greiner had a key solo home run that jumpstarted a four-run rally in the bottom of the eighth as the Gamecocks came from behind to defeat MSU 7-6. Greiner collected three hits over the weekend with a pair of doubles and the home run. He also scored two runs. He also had a grand slam in the 8-0 win over The Citadel.

MONTGOMERY CONTINUES TO SHINE

Freshman left-hander Jordan Montgomery is 5-1 with a 4.05 ERA in 66.2 innings with 51 strikeouts to just nine walks. He was named to the NCAA Regional All-Tournament Team after allowing just two runs on five hits in 6.2 innings with six strikeouts in the 4-3 victory over Clemson.

Montgomery won his first SEC road start with his third victory in league play in the 5-3 win vs. Auburn. He allowed two runs on six hits in 5.1 innings with one walk and one strikeout.

Montgomery earned SEC Freshman of the Week after his first career SEC start. He worked a career-high eight innings and limited Tennessee to just one run on three hits on the way to a 2-1 South Carolina victory over the Volunteers. Against a Tennessee team that was on an eight-game winning streak, Montgomery kept UT at bay with 12 batters retired at one point in the game. Montgomery did not walk a batter and tallied seven strikeouts.

BEAL BRINGS IT

Freshman right-hander Evan Beal picked up the win in the 5-4 victory over Clemson after 1.1 perfect innings with two strikeouts.

Beal is 4-4 on the year with a 3.83 ERA in 26 appearances with 52 strikeouts in 47.0 innings and opponents batting .201 against him.

Beal pitched two scoreless innings in the 2-1 win over Davidson and followed that up with three scoreless innings of relief in the 8-6 win over Arkansas to earn the win.

Beal earned his first career win in the 9-6 victory vs. Clemson. Beal entered the game in the bottom of the fifth and retired nine in a row and lasted four innings allowing just two runs on three hits while striking out five and walking one.

A WIN IN FAYETTEVILLE

South Carolina's series victory at Arkansas was only the second time in school history that the Gamecocks have won a series in Fayetteville. The previous series victory at Arkansas came in 2010. The Gamecocks have now won three consecutive series vs. the Razorbacks dating back to the 2010 season.

BELCHER KEEPS CONTRIBUTING

Junior left-hander Nolan Belcher earned two wins in relief vs. the Crimson Tide. Belcher posted a win with one out retired in the 12-11 victory on Friday night and followed that up with 3.1 scoreless innings of relief with four strikeouts in the 9-1 victory on Saturday vs. the Crimson Tide. Belcher is 4-2 with a 2.17 ERA in 29.0 innings pitched with 13 walks and 34 strikeouts.

Belcher hurled 5.2 scoreless innings in his first start of the year as Carolina defeated The Citadel 8-0. Belcher combined with relievers Tyler Webb and Hunter Privette for a five-hit shutout vs. the Citadel.

Belcher had a productive week with a win and two saves in all three victories over Presbyterian and Clemson in late February/early March. Belcher earned his first win since May 11, 2010 with 2.1 scoreless innings of relief in the 2-1 win over Presbyterian. He allowed just one hit and struck out three batters. He followed that up with saves in both the 3-2 and 9-6 wins over Clemson.

A BRIGHT SPOT

Freshman infielder Connor Bright tallied his first career extra base hit, a RBI double, in the 4-3 win over Clemson. Bright was the starting designated hitter in the Auburn series opener and he had a productive evening with a 3-for-4 day, two runs and three RBI. The three hits and three RBI were season-highs. Bright also had two hits vs. the College of Charleston. Bright is batting .235 (17-for-72) with eight runs scored and nine RBI in 20 starts.

IN A PINCH WITH SULLIVAN

Junior outfielder Sean Sullivan had a pinch-hit RBI sacrifice squeeze in the 3-0 win at Georgia. He had a pinch-hit RBI single in the 12-11 rally over Alabama that saw an additional run score as TJ Costen scampered home with the winning run score on a misplay by Alabama's left fielder.

Sullivan also tied the Mississippi State Friday night game with a pinch-hit two-out triple and scoring the winning run on a wild pitch on the way to a 7-6 victory over Mississippi State in the series opener.

BRING THE PAYNE

Sophomore Erik Payne got the start at designated hitter at Auburn and he was key in the 11-7 win with a three-run homer as well as a sacrifice fly. The four RBI for Payne was a career-high. Payne is hitting .264 (23-for-87) with seven runs scored, three homers and 16 RBI.

He was 6-for-11 (.545) in the Kentucky series as well as 3-for-7 in midweek contests vs. CSU and ASU. Payne had two hits apiece in all three games at Kentucky as well as a solo home run in Friday's 4-3 loss.

K-MART

Freshman Kyle Martin had a key pinch-hit single in the ninth inning of the 5-4 win over Clemson. He does well in pinch-hitting situation as he tallied a pinch-hit RBI single with two outs in the ninth inning of the 7-6 loss at Arkansas. The day before, he had a pinch-hit RBI sacrifice fly in the 8-6 win at Arkansas.

Martin had a big pinch-hit two-run single in the 9-3 win over Florida. Martin is hitting .323 (21-for-65) with 11 RBI and 10 runs scored.

Martin was the starting designated hitter the entire weekend of the Princeton series. He hit .556 (5-for-9) with a pair of runs scored and a RBI in the weekend sweep. Martin tied a season-high with three hits including a solo home run in the 2-1 win over Princeton on Friday night.

MORE ON THE AUBURN SERIES

In the weekend's sweep of Auburn, the Gamecocks had 29 hits in three games as well as 28 runs scored. The Gamecocks also walked 14 times, were hit by five pitches and struck out just 10 times for a team on-base percentage of .378. The Gamecocks did not make an error over the weekend vs. Auburn and the team raised its season fielding percentage to .979. Carolina has just 31 errors for the year with 22 games played without an error. For the weekend, South Carolina's pitching staff struck out 29 batters, the most strikeouts by the staff vs. a SEC opponent. Friday's 12 runs and 13 hits were both season-high totals for the Gamecocks vs. a SEC opponent.

MILESTONES

The 8-5 win over Furman marked head coach Ray Tanner's 1,100th career win in his 25th year as a head coach in Division I baseball. He won his 700th game as head coach at South Carolina in the 2-1 victory over Princeton.

IF YOU BUILD IT - THEY WILL COME

South Carolina is among the nation leaders in attendance. South Carolina has totaled 278,905 in attendance for 37 home games for an average of 7,537.

All three games of the Florida series were sellouts, only the second time in Carolina Stadium history that the Gamecocks have had an entire series sold out. The total of 24,726 was duplicated in 2011 in the Vanderbilt series.

Opening Day was sold out with a crowd of 8,242 in attendance. Carolina's second sellout came on March 3 vs. Clemson. South Carolina has sold out Carolina Stadium with capacity crowds 17 times in school history.

South Carolina set a record for season tickets sold this year with a total of 5,580 sold in the preseason, surpassing the previous record of 5,414 set last year. South Carolina's total attendance of 297,279 for 40 games last year at Carolina Stadium was second highest in the country.

The Gamecocks own a 125-26 (.828) record since opening the facility on Feb. 21, 2009.

CHECK IT OUT!

The eight-run total allowed by the Gamecock pitching staff through the first seven games was the lowest run total to start a season since 1977, when the Gamecocks allowed just seven runs in their first seven games.

MATTHEWS EARNS TOM PRICE AWARD

South Carolina senior outfielder Adam Matthews earned the Tom Price Award as MVP of the series for South Carolina vs. Clemson. Matthews hit .417 (5-for-12) in the three games vs. the Tigers with four runs and four RBI. Matthews had two hits including a three-run homer in the 9-6 victory over Clemson on Saturday.

OH CAPTAIN - MY CAPTAIN

South Carolina senior outfielder Adam Matthews, junior right-handed pitcher Matt Price and senior left-handed pitcher Michael Roth have been named captains for the 2012 season. All three players earned the honor after a vote by their teammates. This is Roth's second straight season as a captain. Both he and Price have earned Preseason All-America honors as well.

OPENING DAY A SUCCESS

It was a festive day at Carolina Stadium as the Gamecocks celebrated back-to-back national championships in a pregame ceremony on Opening Day. The South Carolina National Guard Band opened with the national anthem and fans were treated to a video tribute to the 2011 national championship squad. Several former Gamecock players from the '11 team were in attendance including Robert Beary, Jackie Bradley Jr., Bryan Harper, Peter Mooney, Adrian Morales, Steven Neff, John Taylor, Brady Thomas and Scott Wingo. Bradley, the 2010 College World Series Most Outstanding Player and Wingo, the 2011 College World Series Most Outstanding Player, each threw out ceremonial first pitches before the game. Bradley threw a strike down the middle from near the pitcher's mound to Thomas with Wingo and Beary simulating a throw from second base to home plate. It was Wingo's throw and Beary's pick at home plate that was a key play in the game one victory in the 2011 championship series with the Florida Gators.

OPENING DAY START GOES TO ROTH

South Carolina senior left-hander Michael Roth received the Opening Day start for the Gamecocks. Roth is third pitcher under head coach Ray Tanner to have multiple Opening Day starts on the mound along with Aaron Rawl (2004-05) and Kip Bouknight (1999-2000-01).

NATIONAL CHAMPIONS HONORED AT THE STATE HOUSE

South Carolina Governor Nikki Haley and the South Carolina House of Representatives honored the University of South Carolina baseball team during Carolina Day at the State House on February 8, 2012. University President Dr. Harris Pastides, Athletics Director Eric Hyman, Head Coach Ray Tanner and members of both the 2010 and 2011 South Carolina baseball teams were among those in attendance at today's festivities.

Governor Haley presented Coach Tanner with the Gamecock Flag that flew above the State House after South Carolina clinched the national championship at the 2011 College World Series. Following Governor Haley's presentation, the team was recognized by the State House of Representatives and House Speaker Bobby Harrell.

Players that attended the event included Jackie Bradley Jr., Blake Cooper, Adam Matthews, Whit Merrifield, Steven Neff, John Taylor, Brady Thomas and Scott Wingo along with associate head coach Chad Holbrook, assistant head coach Jerry Meyers, Assistant Coach Sammy Esposito and Director of Operations Kyle Lipsey.

PRESEASON RANKINGS

South Carolina enters the 2012 season ranked No. 2 by Collegiate Baseball and in the USA Today/ESPN coaches' poll as well as ranked No. 3 by Baseball America.

PRICE, ROTH & WALKER EARN PRESEASON ALL-AMERICA ACCOLADES

South Carolina senior left-handed pitcher Michael Roth, junior right-handed pitcher Matt Price and junior first baseman Christian Walker have each earned Preseason All-America honors. Price and Roth are first-team selections by Collegiate Baseball, Perfect Game USA and the National Collegiate Baseball Writer's Association. Walker is a first-team selection by Perfect Game USA and a second-team selection by Baseball America, Collegiate Baseball and the NCBWA.

Head Coach Ray Tanner

A three-time National Coach of the Year and Southeastern Conference Coach of the Year, Ray Tanner is in his 16th season as head coach at the University of South Carolina. Tanner has established one of the premier programs in all of college baseball with milestones and accomplishments piling up each season.

Tanner's 15th season with the Garnet & Black culminated in Omaha, Neb., where the Gamecocks won the 2011 National Championship becoming only the ninth repeat champion in MCWS history. Carolina was the first team to go 10-0 in NCAA Tournament play (3-0 in Regional, 2-0 in Super Regional, 5-0 in MCWS) in one season. The Gamecocks, who entered the tournament as the number four national seed, established NCAA records with 16 consecutive postseason wins and 11 consecutive wins in the College World Series. While in Omaha, South Carolina defeated Texas A&M, number one seed Virginia twice, and number two seed Florida twice without a loss.

The 2011 national championship adds to a list of achievements that ranks as strong as any school in the country. Under Tanner, the Gamecocks reached Omaha for the fifth time in 10 years, only one school in the nation has made more College World Series appearances over the last decade.

In the previous year, South Carolina closed out Rosenblatt Stadium winning the 2010 National Championship as the Gamecocks became the first team in MCWS history to win six consecutive games in Omaha on the way to a national title, the first men's national championship at the University of South Carolina. Tanner is one of five active coaches in NCAA Division I Baseball to have won multiple national titles.

Under Tanner's leadership, South Carolina owns the longest current streak of NCAA Regional appearances among the 12 SEC schools with 12 straight trips to the tournament dating back to the 2000 season. In that span, Carolina has nine NCAA Super Regional appearances (2000, 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2006, 2007, 2010, 2011). South Carolina is one of only four schools in the nation to make at least nine NCAA Super Regionals in the last 12 years and one of only eight schools in the country to have reached the NCAA Regionals every season from 2000 to the present. The program's 12-year record of 577-231 is the third-highest win total among NCAA Division I schools. South Carolina has 12 consecutive seasons of 40 or more wins.

Carolina's 2011 SEC regular-season championship was the third in school history as the Gamecocks also collected championships in the Southeastern Conference with regular-season titles in 2000 and 2002 along with a SEC Tournament crown in 2004. Tanner's last 12 teams have featured 23 All-America performers.

The upcoming 2012 season will be Tanner's 25th year as a collegiate head coach. At South Carolina, Tanner owns a 689-296 record at South Carolina with a .699 winning percentage, second highest all-time among SEC coaches. His career record is 1,084-469-3 for a winning percentage of .698. In 2010, Tanner also reached a career milestone, recording his 1,000th career victory, as he became the fourth-fastest active coach to reach that total.

Tanner guided South Carolina's 2011 squad to one of the most impressive seasons in school history with a share of the SEC championship and the number one seed at the SEC Tournament on the way to the school's second-consecutive national title. Carolina won nine of 10 league series in the regular season en route to a 22-8 conference record. The team featured All-America and All-SEC pitcher Michael Roth, who went 14-3 on the year, including a win in the national championship clincher over Florida. Roth's 14 wins tied for the national lead and his ERA was best among all starting pitchers in college baseball. Roth ranks on South Carolina's single-season charts in ERA (2nd, 1.06), starts (T1st, 20), innings (3rd, 145) and wins (T5th, 14). Roth also showcased his talents off the field as an Academic All-America first-team selection and as winner of the Elite 88 Award for the NCAA Division I Baseball Championship, given to the student-athlete with the top GPA at the College World Series. Right-handed reliever Matt Price also earned All-America and All-SEC accolades as he posted seven wins and 20 saves out of the bullpen in 59.0 innings. First baseman Christian Walker earned All-America and All-SEC honors as well as he led the way for the Gamecocks at the plate as the team's Triple Crown winner with a .358 batting average, 10 HR and 62 RBI. Second baseman Scott Wingo was a first-team All-SEC honoree as well as the College World Series Most Outstanding Player. Wingo hit .333 over five games in the series with four RBI, including three in the finals, and also made several stellar defensive plays throughout the MCWS. He finished his career having appeared in 254 career games, one shy of South Carolina's school record (255 Michael Campbell, (2003-06). Right-hander Forrest Koumas earned SEC All-Freshman team honors with Walker, Wingo and junior outfielder Jackie Bradley Jr. named to the All-SEC Defensive team. The 2011 MLB Draft concluded with 11 South Carolina players selected, one behind the SEC record of 12 set this past year by Vanderbilt.

Tanner gained valuable experience at an international level in his association with USA Baseball. He has served five stints with Red, White and Blue, including in 2003 as head coach for the USA National Baseball Team. At the helm of some of the top freshmen and sophomores in the country, Tanner's club finished with a 27-2 record, the best record for a U.S. National Team (.931 winning percentage) and won a silver medal at the 2003 Pan American Games. He was named the U.S. National Coach of the Year for his work that season. Prior to his head coaching stint, Tanner served as an auxiliary coach under Tommy Lasorda for the 2000 Olympic Team that won a gold medal at the XXVII Olympiad in Sydney, Australia. He was also an assistant under former LSU coach Skip Bertman with the 1995 and 1996 USA teams that culminated in a bronze medal win at the 1996 Olympics in Atlanta, Ga. Tanner also served alongside current Mississippi State coach Ron Polk on Bertman's staff. Tanner's first stint with USA Baseball came as an assistant coach to the national team in the summer of 1993. Tanner was named the South Carolina head coach June 14, 1996, after nine successful seasons at North Carolina State.

Super Men: Gamecocks take Tigers again

USC will host Super Regional against App State or Oklahoma

By CHRIS DEARING
Special to The State

The cast of characters might have changed, but South Carolina finds itself in familiar territory.

The Gamecocks started fast and rode the pitching of freshman Jordan Montgomery and reliever Tyler Webb to a 4-3 victory against rival Clemson, winning the Columbia Regional in front of another sellout crowd Sunday afternoon.

It's the 19th straight postseason win for South Carolina and the sixth straight NCAA tournament victory against the Tigers. The Gamecocks won four of five games against Clemson this season, the past two being one-run victories in the regional.

"It was another one of those great baseball games that we tend to have when we play Clemson," USC coach Ray Tanner said. "It was a game where we scored early and Jordan (Montgomery) was outstanding. Tyler Webb was outstanding. We played good defense. We scored enough to hold up. We knew they would come back at us, which was to be expected. We just had a great game today. It was about as good we could play."

The two-time defending national champions advance to a Super Regional for the third consecutive year and for the 10th time in the past 13 years. South Carolina will play host to the winner of the Charlottesville Regional next weekend. Appalachian State and Oklahoma play in that regional's final on Monday, with the Mountaineers in the driver's seat.

Montgomery, a freshman from Sumter, allowed two runs on five hits with six strike outs and a walk. Webb pitched the final 2 1/3 innings to earn the save. The Tigers scored one run in the ninth and had the tying run on first, but Webb got Brad Felder to fly out to right field to end it.

Montgomery was pulled from the weekend rotation after suffering three straight bad starts, but he pitched well in the SEC tournament to regain the confidence of the coaching staff. He retired 12 in a row after allowing a one-out double in the second inning, giving the Tigers runners at second and third. He then got Spencer Kieboom to pop out to third and struck out Felder looking.

"I got comfortable and wasn't as nervous being in front of the big crowd," Montgomery said. "With that lead, I knew I had to pound the zone and use my defense."

It helped that South Carolina (43-17) jumped early on Clemson starter David Haselden. Joey Pankake tripled on the second pitch of the game and scored on an Evan Marzilli sacrifice fly. Pankake barely was able to slide under the tag after Jay Baum made a good throw to the plate.

Christian Walker walked and moved to third on what was a potential inning-ending double play ball. Jon McGibbon fielded LB Dantzler's ball at first and stepped on the bag for an out, but his throw to second hit Walker in the shoulder and bounced into left field, allowing Walker to move up.

Adam Matthews, the tournament MVP, then singled to left. Connor Bright followed with a double to score Matthews to end Haselden's day.

"(Haselden) had some tough things happen in the first inning," Clemson coach Jack Leggett said. "He had that close play at the plate that I thought could have gone the other way. Then he got a double play ball that could have gotten us out of the inning, but the ball hit the kid. They swung the bats pretty well, but I think we could have gotten out of it with one run or none."

Said Tanner: "The scouting report was he was going to throw a lot of strikes early. When (USC assistant) coach (Chad) Holbrook went over the offensive report, he said 'Let's take some hacks early, he's going to pound the ball in zone early.' We got a few early."

That early cushion helped Montgomery get settled.

"It's always good to go out there with the lead," he said. "We had the lead the whole game so it's good to know you have a little cushion."

Tanner English opened the top of the sixth inning with a double, and he advanced to third when Baum's throw back to second ended up along the first base line. Chase Vergason singled to right to push the lead to 4-0.

Clemson (35-28) finally reached Montgomery in the sixth. Thomas Brittle doubled with one out to score Steve Wilkerson before he came around to score on a RBI groundout by Phil Pohl.

But Montgomery struck out Baum to end the threat.

The Tigers had not faced Montgomery in the previous four games.

"I thought he threw well today," Pohl said. "He was hitting his spots. My first two at-bats, he was really working the outside half, and he gave me some trouble with that. He got some ground balls and fly balls, and they played great defense behind him."

Jonathan Meyer pitched the final 8 1/3 innings for Clemson and scattered seven hits to give the Tigers a chance, but it wasn't enough.

Kieboom's RBI single in the ninth made it a one-run game, but Webb induced a fly out from Felder to end the game.

"We probably can't play any better," Tanner said. "We put a complete game on the field today with defense and great pitching and enough runs to hold up."

Holmes almost throws USC's seventh ever no-hitter

COLUMBIA — In South Carolina's 7-0 win over Manhattan on Friday, starting pitcher Colby Holmes almost accomplished something that no USC pitcher had done since 1975 — a no-hitter. He allowed his first hit with two outs in the eighth inning.

"I've never thrown one, but I wasn't really thinking about it," Holmes said.

USC still hasn't had a no-hitter since 1975, when the Gamecocks had no-hitters on back-to-back days — Tim Lewis against Old Dominion on March 25 and Ray Lavigne against George Mason on March 26. USC also had a no-hitter in 1967, 1949, 1932 and 1914.

Earlier this season, the Gamecocks came within one out of their first ever combined no-hitter. On Feb. 24 against Elon, Patrick Sullivan allowed a solo home run two outs in the ninth inning. USC won 8-1.

Waiting game

Clemson coach Jack Leggett said he had not made a decision on which pitcher he will start in today's second game, following his team's 11-3 win over Coastal Carolina on Friday.

Leggett said the decision would be match-up dependent choice between either Dominic Leone or freshman Daniel Gossett, both are right-handed pitchers. Leggett said Leone's poor start earlier this year in Columbia, when Leone allowed six runs in 21/3 innings, will be factored into the decision.

Shaffer's other talent

Some analysts have questioned whether Richie Shaffer will be able to stick at third base at the pro level. Shaffer did his best to quiet those doubts Friday, just days before the beginning of the Major League Baseball draft on Monday.

The junior made three excellent defense plays where he ranged to both his left and right and completed the plays with strong, accurate throws across the infield. After struggling with the conversation from first base to third base this season, Shaffer has made steady strides defensively.

Mostly due to Shaffer's powerful bat, Baseball America projects him to go 19th overall to the St. Louis Cardinals in the draft. Shaffer is the only player in the Columbia Regional expected to be taken the first round.

He said it

Coastal Carolina coach Gary Gilmore again lamented the loss of ace Josh Conway after the game. Conway sustained a torn elbow ligament last month. Prior to the injury he projected as an early-round pick. Since that time Gilmore has had to cobble together a pitching staff. "We probably have the worst starting pitching of the 64 teams in the (NCAA) field," Gilmore said.

A little extra drama: Gamecocks topple Tigers in 12

USC rallies twice to defeat rival Clemson

By CHRIS DEARING
Special to The State

In a game that featured so many momentum swings that participants from both sides had trouble putting it into words, South Carolina's LB Dantzler delivered the final dagger.

Dantzler drilled a one-out single to deep right in the 12th inning to give the top-seeded Gamecocks a 5-4 victory against No. 2 seed Clemson on Saturday evening at Carolina Stadium. The win keeps USC undefeated and in control of the Columbia regional.

"There was just so much that happened in that game," USC coach Ray Tanner said. "It was just a tremendous college baseball game between two teams that didn't want to give in or give up. It was a battle all day long."

The victory extends the Gamecocks' postseason winning streak to 18 games and home winning streak in regional or Super Regional play to 24 games. It's also the fifth straight USC victory over Clemson in postseason play, dating back to the 2002 College World Series.

South Carolina (42-17) is in the driver's seat, and Clemson will have to beat USC twice on its home field to advance to next weekend's Super Regional. The Tigers eliminated Coastal Carolina 5-3 on Sunday.

If the Gamecocks lose today, there will be a winner-take-all game Monday night.

Joey Pankake started the winning rally with a single off Clemson reliever Kevin Brady. After Evan Marzilli failed to get his first bunt attempt down, Tanner took the bunt off and called for a hit-and-run. Marzilli executed it perfectly with a single to center that put runners on the corners with no outs.

After a fly out to short right that wasn't deep enough to score Pankake, Dantzler ripped a shot to the warning track, over the head of Clemson right fielder Brad Felder.

"When (Brady) struck me out earlier in the tenth inning, he threw me all fastballs. So I knew he was going to come after me with fastballs, so that is what I was looking for," Dantzler said. "He threw one up, and I was able to put a good swing on it. Rounding first base, it was just an unbelievable feeling."

Both teams had opportunities to seize control before extra innings, but great defensive efforts held the game in check.

The Gamecocks trailed by two runs entering the bottom of the eighth before rallying and having a chance to win in the ninth. Clemson pushed three runs across against USC starter Michael Roth in the seventh inning, erasing a 2-0 South Carolina lead that the Gamecocks had held since Adam Matthews' two-run home run in the fourth off Clemson starter Daniel Gossett.

The Matthews home run was the only mistake the freshman made. Gossett pitched seven strong innings, holding USC to two runs on four hits with three walks and eight strikeouts.

"I felt like my stuff was working, so I was just trying to pitch the way I know how to," Gossett said.

The Tigers (34-27) solved Roth in the seventh.

Two singles led off the inning before Roth got the lead runner at third on a sacrifice bunt attempt. Steve Wilkerson doubled to left to trim the lead to 2-1. Thomas Brittle followed with a RBI single to left to tie the score with one out.

South Carolina had a chance to get out of the frame without more damage when Phil Pohl grounded to Vergason at second. He got the force out at second, but Pankake's relay to first for the double play was high and pulled Christian Walker off the bag. That allowed Wilkerson to score the go-ahead run.

Felder saved a USC run in the bottom half of the seventh when he made a running, falling down catch of a Pankake drive to the warning track.

The senior then hit a monster home run off of Matt Price in the eighth inning to stake the Tigers to the two-run lead. Price left a slider up and over the plate that Felder hit out of the stadium and over the buses that lined Williams Street.

USC scratched back with one in the eighth on Walker's double that scored Marzilli.

In the ninth, USC had the bottom of the order due up. Kyle Martin started the rally with a pinch-hit single, and Chase Vergason walked. Dante Rosenberg advanced the runners with a sacrifice bunt before Pankake singled to center to score pinch-runner TJ Costen. But Thomas Brittle was able to throw Vergason out at the plate. The throw was up the line and Vergason tried to slide around the initial swipe tag of catcher Spencer Kieboom, but he missed the plate. Kieboom scrambled back and tagged Vergason before he could reach home.

"There were a lot of good plays," Clemson coach Jack Leggett said. "We had a lot of big pitches and some opportunities and big hits but that was a big play by Brittle to come hard and get the ball. (Vergason) slid behind and Kieboom had the presence to come back and tag him."

Evan Beal pitched the final 1 1/3 innings to earn the victory. He came in with two outs in the 11th and got a fielder's choice grounder to get out of the frame before working a perfect 12th inning to improve to 4-4. Brady took the loss to fall to 1-3.

Dante's turn: Rosenberg gets chance to shine

By PATRICK OBLEY
pobley@thestate.com

The names change, but the USC baseball battle cry remains the same:

#WinAnyway

Freshman catcher Grayson Greiner was the latest to espouse the mantra after being felled by a torn lateral meniscus in his left knee. He suffered the injury Wednesday afternoon and underwent successful surgery to shave the damaged cartilage on Thursday.

The shaving option allows Greiner to return from the injury much quicker than an actual repair, but in either case, he likely won't be back behind the plate for the remainder of the postseason.

"If we're fortunate enough to advance, he will probably be activated next weekend," USC coach Ray Tanner said. "Will he be able to catch? Unlikely. His prognosis is rehab (today) and you can go as you can tolerate the pain."

Greiner took to Twitter not long after sustaining the injury:

looks like I'll be watching from the side this weekend, 100% faith in my teammates and coaches #WinAnyway

He returned Thursday morning to state the surgery went better than expected. That's when teammate Colby Holmes picked up the battle cry and added a new one:

#indantewetrust

Dante Rosenberg, a junior who started 15 games at catcher after missing most of last season with a back injury, will get the lion's share of playing time behind the plate.

"He is confident in his abilities," Tanner said. "I think we were 11-4 in games he was the starting catcher.

"He didn't have the offensive potential that Grayson had going in, but certainly he's a defensive guy. He's been pretty good back there as well."

Rosenberg also received a thumbs-up from Kyle Forbes, who was his position coach during his two years at Palm Beach Community College.

"He's an outstanding catch-and-throw guy," said Forbes, who took over as head coach at Palm Beach in 2010. "What he improved on the most while he was here was hitting. ... He didn't have big numbers, but he got the knocks when you needed it. He got hits with two outs and guys on second."

Forbes said Rosenberg's biggest asset was his willingness to do the one thing many catchers abhor.

"Blocking balls in the dirt is a thankless job, but it's important," Forbes said.

Rosenberg routinely reminded Forbes when it was time to perform blocking drills, a rarity.

"He'd always say, 'Forbesy, we've gotta block balls, let's go,' " Forbes said with a laugh. "Getting hit by a baseball is not a fun activity, but he ate it up."

It is a good thing he enjoys the work, for the Gamecocks are now thin at the position for the remainder of the postseason. Second baseman Erik Payne could be the last line of defense if Rosenberg goes down.

Greiner, while he could be capable of returning in some form of pinch-hitter or designated hitter capacity, likely is finished as a catcher for the rest of the Gamecocks' playoff run.

Dr. David Geier, director of sports medicine at the Medical University of South Carolina, said if Greiner's surgery involved shaving the damaged cartilage rather than stitching it back together, the recovery time is shortened, but not enough to allow a rapid return to the deep knee-bending activity required of catchers.

"In general after a surgery, you have to wait to get the motion back after swelling goes down and the strength comes back," Geier said. "You can rehab like crazy, but there's only so fast you can go. The deep knee bending of catching is really difficult. Regardless of surgery, it would be difficult."

Geier said, while not knowing the specific details of Greiner's injury, the general rule is that it takes a minimum of three to four weeks before being able to squat or bat without significant pain. He pointed to Chipper Jones' meniscus tear, which took nearly a month of recovery .

"And," Geier added, "he struggled when he came back."

The type of tear Greiner sustained is known as a "bucket handle tear," which often is repairable via stitches. Most other kinds of meniscus tears are not repairable and shaving is the only option.

If the tear could have been repaired instead of shaved, Greiner likely would have been unavailable in any capacity for the remainder of the postseason. But a repair would have offered a longer-term solution and would have saved all the cartilage. Shaving removes cartilage that might be needed in time as wear gradually grinds it away.

"That was surprising," Geier said. "Usually (bucket handle) tears are repairable, so it was a freak injury."

In any case, it also is in the past. As his Twitter account attests, Greiner has moved on:

surgery went better than expected! resting up and ready to get to work soon #determination

Carolina tops Manhattan 7-0

Story URL: <http://southcarolina.scout.com/2/1191366.html>

Taylor Sewitt and Colby Holmes each put on a pitching clinic Friday evening in the first round game of the Columbia Regional. In the end Holmes was the better pitcher and Carolina was the better team as they took a 7-0 victory against Manhattan. The win sets up a rivalry meeting with Clemson Saturday afternoon.

The feel-good story coming into the Columbia Regional was Taylor Sewitt's performance in the MAAC Tournament, leading his Manhattan team to the MAAC Championship and an NCAA Tournament berth. Despite throwing over 250 pitches in the tournament, first year Jaspers coach Jim Duffy decided to ride the horse that got them there in the first game of the Columbia Regional against South Carolina.

The decision nearly paid off.

"Taylor came out and did a good job and threw strikes," Duffy said. "He kept the South Carolina batters at bay and off-balance. The problem is their guy, (Colby) Holmes, matched him. I think if we got Taylor a couple of runs early, the game could've been different."

Sewitt was phenomenal with a fastball that topped out at 82 MPH and change-up that came in as low as 61 MPH, but he had Carolina hitters off-balance all evening. Sewitt carried a no-hitter into the sixth before a Joey Pankake double to the gap in left-center broke it up.

"It was on my mind," Sewitt said of the no-hit attempt. "I knew about it, but I wasn't focusing on throwing a no-hitter. I just tried to put up zeroes as long as I could and keep my team in the game."

Unfortunately for Sewitt and the Jaspers, South Carolina starter Colby Holmes was even better. Holmes nearly pitched the first no-hitter since 1975 for South Carolina, giving up a two-out hit to Joe Rock in the eighth inning to break it up. The Gamecock offense exploded for seven runs in the late innings to give it a 7-0 win to advance to the winner's bracket game. Carolina improved to 41-17 and extended its record NCAA win streak to 17 games. Manhattan falls to 33-26.

"What happened out there tonight was exactly what I anticipated," Carolina head coach Ray Tanner said. "We had some time to get some practices in and we kept trying to make them understand what Sewitt was all about. He was as good as advertised. We finally got some runners on there and then he got two outs and it didn't look good. Adam came through with a big hit for us. Colby Holmes was fantastic as well and we needed him to be that good."

In that sixth inning that the Gamecocks finally got to Sewitt, Pankake's double was followed by an Evan Marzilli single. Christian Walker walked to load the bases with no outs, but Sewitt appeared to look like he was going to get out of it. He got LB Dantzler to pop up to the catcher, pinch-hitter Michael Roth went down looking, but Adam Matthews would not let the inning slip away. Matthews sent a 3-1 fastball through the hole on the left side of the infield, scoring Pankake and Marzilli. Tanner English followed that with a triple off the glove of right fielder Joe Rock, giving Carolina a 4-0 lead after six. Sewitt would leave after the inning, replaced by Mike Giordano.

"I figured he was going to come at me," Matthews said. "He threw me a 2-0 fastball right down the middle and then threw a slider away for ball three. I knew he was going to come at me."

Carolina would strike for three more in the eighth. Walker led off the inning with a homerun to left and Matthews would drive in his third run of the game for the 6-0 lead. Vergason followed with an RBI double for the final margin.

Even with the late breakout of runs for Carolina and Sewitt's performance, the story of the day was Holmes. The only thing that could stop Holmes was the weather delay of that halted the game for 1:24 in the bottom of the eighth.

"I knew Manhattan was a good team," Holmes said. "I had my slider and fastball working. I was getting ahead with my fastball and getting them out with the slider. Everything was feeling great tonight."

Holmes finished the night going eight innings, giving up just the one hit, no walks, one hit batter, and had a career-high nine strikeouts to improve to 7-1 on the year. That followed a dismal performance in last week's SEC Tournament against Florida.

"It was great to come out the gate and be effective and be on top of my game," Holmes said. "The outing in Hoover (SEC Tournament) was disappointing, but coming out and doing what I did put the confidence back in me."

Matthews led the Gamecock offense, going 2-for-4 with three RBI, English was 1-for-4 with two RBI, and Walker and Vergason each drove in one run. Nick Camastro was 1-for-4 and Rock was 1-for-3 for Manhattan. Sewitt lost for just the second time this season, falling to 11-2.

With the win, Carolina moves on to face Clemson at 4:00 Saturday afternoon. Clemson defeated Coastal 11-3 in the Friday's first game.

"Every baseball fan in the state of South Carolina is going to get what they want," Walker said. "They're a good team and want to win and take us down."

While the atmosphere will be electric, the teams will have to try and settle down and play the game.

"You have to approach it that they won the first game and we won our first game, let's go play," Tanner said. "But who are we kidding? It's big. It's a rivalry situation. It's more than just the second of the NCAA. It's Clemson. We're playing Clemson. It is what it is, but I think it's great. Coach Leggett and I talked a little last night. We like this. Whether I get beat or he gets beat, if you said we can play a seven-game set, we would enjoy that. Now we wouldn't enjoy all of this (media attention), but we would enjoy that. There's been a time or two along the way when emotions got in the way, but at the end of the day it's been a great rivalry, one of the best in college baseball."

Michael Roth will get the start for the Gamecocks, but Clemson coach Jack Leggett didn't name a starter following their victory.

"You feel like you give it your best shot. That's the thing. I have confidence in a lot of guys, but certainly what Michael's done in his career here, if you can line them up, that's as good as it gets. Win, lose or draw, we're sending our guy with the best mentality, the best toughness and poise. That's all you can ask."

English living up to expectations

John Whittle
6 days agoComments: 3Add a comment

Expectations were high for Tanner English. A 13th round draft pick with early-round tools, the speed merchant enrolled at South Carolina in the summer and stayed in school spurning the Tampa Bay Rays.

Freshman Tanner English is second on the team with a .309 batting average and has played in every game this year

English was ranked as the No. 50 player in the country coming out of high school and was far too talented to take a backseat, even though the Gamecocks were set to return three starters in the outfield. Head coach Ray Tanner said early in the fall that English would play and play a lot.

It was much easier to keep English on the field every game this season after the departure of Jake Williams, but the freshman has earned every start by performing at a high level every game out.

Expectations were high for English and, in a lot of ways, he's exceeded them.

"Playing in the SEC is tough to play in and be successful," English said. "I definitely have a lot of things to work on, but from a freshman year standpoint, I think I've helped the team out here and there. That's what I wanted to do and I'm kind of proud about that."

He should be.

English was named to the Freshman All-SEC team by the league coaches on Tuesday and for good reason. The Murrells Inlet native enters the NCAA Tournament with a .309 batting average, which is good for second on the team. He has five outfield assists and has played in every game starting 56 of the 57.

There are, however, areas for English to improve. Tanner said during fall practice that English would likely see some time in centerfield while giving junior Evan Marzilli a few reps in left.

That plan hasn't transpired as Marzilli has just been far too good as a defensive centerfielder. English should be taking notes as it is highly likely that he's next year's starter at center with mighty big shoes to fill.

"Evan is awesome and I've learned so much from him," English said. "The way he approaches the game, mentally, physically and behind the scenes, he's always prepared to play. He's a good role model to look up to."

Where Tanner wants to see his freshman improve is where Marzilli excels - the mental side of the game. Tanner raves about Marzilli's consistency in his day-to-day routine, be it in the weight room or on the practice field.

Tanner wants his freshman to have that consistent approach and stay even-keeled when it comes to the game.

It's a game that can humble you and cripple you. We always talk about respecting it and staying the same all the time."

English, still a bit sheepish talking about his game, knows he needs to mature in the way that Tanner described. The 16-year head coach with the Gamecocks talks to him almost daily about his approach to the game.

"Baseball is an emotional game. I don't want to say you want to go out there and start bawling on the field or throwing stuff," English said. "I'm just emotionally attached to the game and the team. That's fine, but you need to keep it under control. I put a lot of pressure on myself, which I probably shouldn't do. It's just a work in progress. Going out there having fun is the biggest thing."

While Tanner is talking to English about his mental approach, assistant coach Chad Holbrook is trying to iron out a few things with his hitting approach.

English, while hitting .309 this season, has too many swings and misses for a player of his skill set. An elite athlete in terms of his speed, English doesn't showcase that tool as often as anyone would like. He has a team-high 55 strikeouts this season compared to only 13 walks.

While it isn't uncommon for a freshman to have a strikeout-to-walk ratio skewed in the wrong direction, 55-to-13 is far from the mark anyone wants to see.

"I think English has been really special at times," Tanner said. "When he's hitting the ball well and running the bases, making plays in the outfield, it doesn't get any better than that. That's above average - it's All-American-type status. Then he has those days where he's inconsistent and strikes out a little too much."

Through repetition and practice, consistency can be achieved.

English knows that and he's off to a great start in his South Carolina career. A 5-foot-7, 160-pounder, English leads the team in multi-hit games this season with 15 and he's also 9-for-11 in stolen bases.

He'll look to continue to grow - both between the lines and between the ears - this summer with the Harwich Mariners of the Cape Cod League. He still has business in Columbia and potentially Omaha, Neb. before heading to the northeast.

"He wants to be an All-American, not a Freshman All-American - he wants to be one of the best," Tanner said. "There are days he looked like he was. Other times, there are the issues with striking out too much and he's being hard on himself. Sometimes that's part of the process. He'll grow emotionally. The ability is not an issue."

The ability is not the issue. The numbers show it and so does the play.

English earned Freshman All-SEC honors, along with two of his classmates, Grayson Greiner and Joey Pankake

Gamecocks stay alive with win over Auburn

Talk about it in The Insiders Forum

HOOVER, Ala. - Ray Tanner joked about the "Senior Citizens' Cast" of Michael Roth, Adam Matthews and Matt Price that shared the dais with him.

Roth, always handy with a punchline, turned back and replied, "Nice to win in Hoover. We don't get too many of those, right?"

They don't, but No. 7 South Carolina got one on Thursday, and stayed alive in the SEC tournament.

The Gamecocks held off Auburn 5-3, jumping on top of the Tigers early and riding a sterling pitching performance from Roth until Price could enter in the seventh inning. USC still stranded a small village (10) and threw away several opportunities to break the game open, but made the five early runs it scored last as Auburn (31-28) couldn't solve USC's pitching.

USC (40-16) will play Florida in tonight's late game, set to start 30 minutes after a 4 p.m. game between LSU and Mississippi State. Thought to need at least one more win to lock up a top-eight national seed, USC will send a completely rested Colby Holmes at either the Gators or Commodores, who are each one starting pitcher behind the Gamecocks after having to play an extra day.

Whoever they have to play, the Gamecocks are feeling good after breaking the jinx that cost them their initial game in Hoover. After not getting a leadoff man on and stranding 11 runners, trying to start every rally with two outs, USC put four of its first five leadoff men on on Thursday and scored in four of the first five innings.

Matthews led the charge with three hits and two RBIs, while Joey Pankake, Christian Walker and Erik Payne contributed one each. As has become a custom throughout his career, Auburn starter Cory Luckie (2-2) was pounded early and often against the Gamecocks, and USC was leading 5-0 by the fifth.

Roth was masterful, striking out five of his first nine batters and working out of a spot in the fourth when Grayson Greiner threw out his third base-stealer of the tournament. With a big lead, USC could afford to play keep-away - and did, as Auburn notched single runs in the fifth and sixth.

"I thought the key was that Michael was good early," Tanner said. "We got some hits, we went up 5-0. I knew they were going to come back."

Auburn did, putting the first two runners on in the seventh before Dan Glevenyak sacrificed each up a base. Having seen enough, Tanner went to Price, who struck out Cullen Wacker and got a ground-out from Caleb Bowen to end the threat.

The Tigers got one more run in the eighth but Price retired Patrick Savage on a fly ball to left, before taking the hill for the ninth. Price was Price once again, retiring Auburn in order and punctuating it with a swinging strikeout of Blake Austin.

Problems solved, for at least one day. The Gamecocks prepared to watch the rest of the Thursday evening game at their hotel before diving into another scouting report on the winner.

"I was just getting my foot down," said Matthews, who seems to have broken out of a season-long slump. "I don't want to jinx myself but I hope to keep doing that."

"I felt like I was really hitting my spots pretty well," Roth said. "I had good fastball command, and that's crucial for me."

Roth won the win-win situation, saving the Gamecocks from going 0-2 in Hoover (since he couldn't pitch them into the semifinals), and set up a good situation. USC has a rested bullpen, although if Price or Game 1 stalwart Tyler Webb are required, it would likely be for a short stint. Holmes is also ready to go, with a completely rested Forrest Koumas behind him for another game.

Another game that USC feels that it will be around to play in.

Matthews peaking at the right time

John Whittle
13 days agoComments: 5Add a comment

Entering the 2012 season, outfielder Adam Matthews could point to his former teammate, Scott Wingo as a senior year success story. Players with aspirations of professional baseball typically leave after their junior season to maximize their signing bonus and start the process of moving up the ranks in the minor leagues a year younger.

Senior Adam Matthews is hitting .229 this season with four doubles and four home runs

Matthews, however, chose the Wingo path of coming back for his senior year for various reasons - to earn his degree, better himself as a player, try to win another championship, and potentially improve his draft stock.

Wingo accomplished all four of those objectives. So far this season, Matthews hasn't had quite the success on the field as he had planned. It has been a season of ups and downs, but seemingly far more downs.

After a big weekend against LSU to conclude the regular season, Matthews may be primed for a big postseason. It'd be a welcome stretch of big games Matthews has been unable to put together each of the last two years.

"He seems to feel good and a little more excited," South Carolina head coach Ray Tanner said. "I think he's a little bit excited to be playing like he's playing right now. One thing I told Adam when he scuffled was he's a veteran player. He's been in this program a long time, his teammate voted him captain, and I'm going to hang with you."

Tanner has always leaned on his veterans. Even through struggles this year, Matthews has stayed in the lineup. He's kept a positive outlook throughout and has been a leader and captain even when not performing at his peak level.

"Baseball is a grind. You can find yourself struggling a little bit," Matthews said. "I've had a rough year. I've also had some times where I hit the ball hard and it is at people. That's the game of baseball."

Through all of his struggles, Matthews has tried to stay positive and let things roll off his back. He doesn't get too wrapped up in what happens each at-bat when things don't go his way.

He's not taking the game too seriously. When you start to press in baseball, struggles get worse, not better. He's kept a light-hearted approach, which has been beneficial. Tanner joked with him in prior to game two of the LSU series he wasn't putting Matthews in the two-hole of the batting order because of hit average, his success, or lack thereof, but because of the approach he has at the plate.

Seventh out of eight regulars in batting average for the season, Matthews had his best weekend at the plate so far this season against LSU. After going 0-fer in game one, like a lot of Gamecocks did, he exploded in game two and contributed in game three.

Matthews, remaining light-hearted over his struggles, joked that would accept the double after being

LSU.

“The coaches just continue to point out little things in my swing, whatever that might be,” Matthews said. “Get your foot down early, get your hands through, don’t drop your back shoulder, use the whole field, and things like that. They’ve been really good about keeping me positive, I guess you could say. It’s helped a lot.”

The coaches have remained positive with Matthews, who is hitting .229 with 17 RBIs, this season. Not everyone has been quite as supportive of the senior, who has heard the criticism of his play, not only this year but during his South Carolina.

“It gives me more drive. It gives me drive to continue to work,” Matthews said. “People say you’re not doing what you’re capable of doing or playing SEC-caliber baseball. You have go out there, continue to play your game, and stay positive and have fun with it. At the end of the day, that’s what it is - it’s a game.”

During the first three years of his career, Matthews started 101 games and played in an additional 23. Entering the season, he had a career batting average of .291 and knocked 19 doubles, five triples, and 14 home runs.

“I know a bunch of people would say I haven’t lived up to what I’m capable of doing here and I understand that. I agree with it as much as anybody else. I have to continue to play my game and try to get better.”

After hitting .290 as a part-time starter his freshman year, he hit .307 as a sophomore in 56 starts. Matthews, however, struggled down the stretch of season and was saw his playing time diminish as then-freshman Evan Marzilli began to emerge.

Last year, Matthews didn’t play much during the stretch run of the season. A hamstring sidelined him for the bulk of SEC play and the Gamecocks went on a run with a patchwork outfield of Marzilli, Jake Williams, and Steven Neff. When future first-round draft pick Jackie Bradley Jr. was healthy, he was put back into the lineup during the College World Series.

That moved Matthews down another peg on outfield roster and it was two straight national championship runs that saw the White Knoll High School product play an integral role in getting the team there, but not so much in Omaha, Neb.

“I know what type of player I am and what I’m capable of doing. In my time here, I haven’t been able to show it as much as I’ve wanted to,” he said. “It’s been frustrating, but I can’t dwell on that too much. We’ve had a great team - two national championships doesn’t get much better - but I just have to stay positive about myself and keep grinding it out.”

South Carolina has played 13 games in the College World Series the past two seasons but Matthews has only started two.

This season, though, Matthews may be primed for a postseason run. Matthews was 5-for-8 in the final two games of the series against LSU with a pair of RBIs. He is moving up in the batting order instead of down. This year, as the Gamecocks enter the postseason, he’s thriving and not fading.

“I don’t want to say I’m geared up for a big postseason because I don’t want to jinx myself,” Matthews said. “I was fortunate this past weekend to have a good series and hopefully I can continue that going into Matthews' season hasn't quite gone the Wingo way thus far. Wingo thrived from the day he stepped on the field for his senior season and continued to have a big postseason.

There are still a lot of baseball games left for Matthews, though, who may be peaking just when his team needs him the most. He can finish his career the same way that Wingo did and it would only be fitting for a player who has been a model student-athlete at South Carolina.

"He's had some good days for us recently," Tanner said. "It would be nice for him to finish with a flurry here."

Matthews returns against LSU

David Cloninger

GamecockCentral.com Staff Writer

He's been there all season, but hasn't really been there.

He picked a great time to show up.

"I'm just happy I got three hits and contributed," senior right fielder Adam Matthews said after South Carolina's Game 2 win over LSU. "Glad I had a good game to help us out."

The Gamecocks are as well. Heading into the postseason, they need every contribution possible from every man on the roster. Matthews, one of the team's three captains, was never going to be benched because of how Ray Tanner cherishes his upperclassmen and their experience (and there wasn't a great solution on someone to take his place), but there were a lot of times this season where Matthews was an afterthought.

Disturbing and sad, really, to see a player that had always been there struggle so much. Matthews turned down a decent draft selection to come back to school, and after a hamstring injury cost him the second half of a very productive year last season, it was thought that Matthews was 100 percent healthy. A natural athlete, Matthews is the kind of player that does everything well, and his leadership couldn't be discounted.

But Matthews never got in the groove, from Day 1. Hovering around a .200 batting average all year and still looking gimpy from the pulled hamstring, Matthews' misses were holding a lot more focus than his hits.

Maybe it was that Matthews thrust himself more into the public eye on Friday, when he was "horsing around" in the locker room and broke his nose. Maybe it was that Tanner wanted to shake up his lineup after LSU flummoxed the Gamecocks in Game 1.

Either way, Tanner approached the senior and told him he needed him to be productive, and he was going to get a chance to be.

Matthews, never one to back down from a challenge, accepted.

The senior had five hits, two RBIs and three stolen bases in the final two games of the series, also helping keep the Gamecocks afloat in the first inning of Game 2. With one run already in and the bases full of Tigers, Forrest Koumas grooved a two-out slider that Grant Dozar teed off on. The ball, looking more and more like a grand slam, lined toward right but Matthews had taken off as soon as he had heard the crack.

He stuck his glove up just before the bullpen fence and snared the liner for a troublesome, but still counted, out. Then he helped win a game that the Gamecocks had to have with an insurance run, although he may have been gypped out of two insurance runs.

Matthews seemed to have hit a two-run homer in Game 2, one that hit the railing and came back in. Replays (which can't be used in college baseball to reverse a call) showed the ball hitting and coming back in, but the umpires never wavered from their decision and awarded Matthews an RBI double.

"The double, I hit it well, I really didn't see it kick off the wall or kick off the pole, whichever it was," Matthews said, taking the high road. "But he ruled it a double, so that's what we'll go with. We still got that run, it was the winning run. The way I'm playing this year, I'll take a double."

Butterfly bandage across the bridge of his nose, Matthews didn't mind that much. At least he got an RBI hit, and perhaps is reversing the trend of his first three years - as the season progressed, a strong Matthews got progressively weaker.

This season, after fighting to return to form all year, Matthews seems to be getting stronger. His average has risen to .223 and it's a good bet that he'll continue to hit second in the order during USC's stay at the SEC tournament.

"I told him before the game, 'You're hitting in the top half,'" Tanner said. "You're not hitting there

I told him before the game, 'You're hitting in the two-hole,' Tanner said. 'You're not hitting there because of your batting average. Beal rises into setup role

David Cloninger
GamecockCentral.com Staff Writer

ShareThis Like

Talk about it in The Insiders Forum

One factor that has kept South Carolina in position for big winning over the past three years has been its consistency. There are certain ways and certain approaches for the season, and the Gamecocks have tried to repeat or mimic what has worked as closely as possible.

Part of that has been finding the most effective reliever to bridge the gap between starter and closer. There are several options, but as the season has progressed, the Gamecocks have settled on one setup man before Matt Price can enter the game, just as they leaned so heavily on sidearm specialist John Taylor last season.

It's only coincidence that this one happens to also wear No. 14.

"I don't really feel any pressure for that, if anybody takes note of it," freshman Evan Beal said. "I don't think any other fans are focusing on it too hard."

But many are focusing on his arm, which has gotten stronger and more effective throughout the year, and just may be the biggest piece to success as the Gamecocks prepare for another postseason.

Brought to USC as a live arm who could challenge for a starting role right away, the former eighth-round draft pick initially struggled in limited appearances and never settled into a starting, one-out relief or long relief role. A re-concentration on "dry throws" - working on his mound mechanics without releasing the ball - helped him refine his arsenal and quickly improve.

Beal's appearances suddenly went from an out here or there to three or four innings at a time. Five of his last seven outings have been for at least three innings, culminating in a four-inning stint at Georgia last week, and while Beal has given up his share of hits, only four runners in those last seven outings have crossed the plate.

In a season where USC has dealt with injuries to starters and short appearances from the stop-gaps, Beal has come on as one of the most reliable pitchers to get the Gamecocks through the middle innings until they can arrive at their most comfortable spot - Price jogging in from the bullpen. With a slider made stronger by the teachings of pitching coach Jerry Meyers, a curveball that he can use as a third-strike pitch and three other pitches, Beal has quietly constructed a 1.80 ERA over his last seven appearances with 16 strikeouts and one win.

"The way things have panned out, I get the feeling that coach trusts my stuff and it's good enough coming out of the pen, like the bite I'm getting on my breaking stuff," Beal said. "As of now, yeah, I expect (the long-relief call), because of where my stuff is at this point of the season."

It didn't come easy. Like every pitcher who has ever toed the rubber, Beal wants to start. Even the great closers have wanted to be on the hill at the beginning of the game and not the end, and the tall freshman was no exception.

Like all of the newcomers this year, Beal knew that spots were limited. USC was returning three weekend pitchers and shuttling Price to the starting rotation, leaving the midweek spots open, but with veterans already bidding for those. Beal started one game, at Vanderbilt on March 31 due to an emergency, but was otherwise stuck in neutral in the bullpen.

"It is a little frustrating, but you've got to be ready for the spot you're given, because there are guys on the bench that aren't getting a shot to throw as a starter or out of the pen," Beal said. "I've got to take my time when I get it and make the most of it."

It was either pout and not take part, or try and make it so that he couldn't be ignored. Beal chose the second option and went to discuss what he could do with Meyers.

Meyers, a believer in the slider, worked with Beal to perfect it and the two went through several dry sessions on the mound, concentrating strictly on windup, grip and release point. The slider and curve began dipping more, mixing well with Beal's changeup and two fastballs, and Beal began to remember those sessions when he was called during a game.

"I was just working too fast, or too slow," he said. "I try to maintain the same routine."

The pitches began biting, the outs began mounting and Beal's stock began rising. He kept delivering as the Gamecocks kept calling, and the fun was back in the game.

"Pitchers kind of act like pitchers - I really don't know how to explain it," said his roommate, Joey Pankake. "He's got a little more pep in his step. He's been a little more bouncy, and he moves around a little bit anyways. He's always had a little energy, but I guess now there's a little more."

Beal is likely to be in action tonight as No. 9 LSU visits with the SEC regular-season championship and probably a top-eight national seed on the line. While a freshman, Beal is no stranger to lengthy postseasons, helping pitch his team to a state runner-up finish in July of last year (Virginia high-school seasons start much later than South Carolina's due to weather).

That mood and mentality has already seeped through the clubhouse. USC has been lights-out in the postseason the past two years, and even with several new faces in place and contributing, feels no need that that should change.

Beal knows what's expected and plans to keep doing it.

"It's pretty cool, actually, that coach trusts me to do that," Beal said. "I feel confident in the spot they're pitching me in. Everybody's kind of really relaxed at this point because they've been here before."

Webb works his way into important role

Junior left-hander has become an indispensable member of bullpen

By NEIL WHITE

nwhite@thestate.com

Tyler Webb gave a sneak preview of what he would mean to the South Carolina baseball team this season with his one appearance in the 2011 College World Series.

By throwing 2 1/3 scoreless innings of relief against Florida in Game 1 of the championship series, he helped the Gamecocks stay close until they could pull out a 2-1 win in 11 innings.

The junior left-hander has spent nearly all of this season doing the same thing. Tied for second in the SEC with 26 relief appearances, Webb has a 4-0 record with a 1.82 ERA and two saves. The one-time starting pitcher credits the performance in Omaha against the Gators with helping convince him that he could be effective coming out of the bullpen.

"It was a great atmosphere and a great opportunity, and I just wanted to make the most of it," Webb said. "Once I had a good outing on that big stage against a team as good as Florida, it gave me a lot of confidence coming back this year. It showed me that I could handle the situations coming out of the bullpen."

Along with junior right-hander Matt Price, who is back in the bullpen as the team's closer, Webb gives USC a couple of prime-time arms late in games. USC coach Ray Tanner said he feels comfortable going to either side of his one-two punch when the game's on the line.

"He's got some experience and he has improved a lot. Although he doesn't get nearly the attention of a Matt Price, he figures into what we think are games with situations to be decided," Tanner said. "We treat him a lot like we treat Matt. We try to have Tyler ready to go as well as Matt. That gives us the left-hander and the right-hander."

In 34 2/3 innings, the 6-foot-6 Webb has allowed 27 hits and eight walks while striking out 35. Opponents are batting .206 against him.

"He's around the strike zone. He comes right at you," Tanner said. "He's very composed and poised when he goes out there. If he's able to locate, he's usually very effective."

Although Webb began his first two seasons in the starting rotation — he started seven games as a freshman and five as sophomore — his inconsistency got him moved to the bullpen both years. This season, he has made the adjustment to being a full-time reliever.

"It wasn't really that tough from a physical standpoint. It was more of a mental thing in getting prepared," Webb said. "I wasn't saying, 'All right, I've got to go out there and throw five innings so let me pace myself.' Out of the bullpen, it's more like, 'All right, this is all I've got and I'm going to throw as long as I can with it. Once I'm done, they can go to the next guy.'"

But he still had to make concessions in taking care of his arm on a daily basis. He pitched all three games of the weekend series against Clemson, Kentucky and Mississippi State.

"As a starter, the day after (you pitch) you get to flush (your start)," he said. "As a reliever, after the game is over, you get your cardio (work) in and get your arm as fresh as it can be for the next day. It makes for a longer night, but it's necessary to be 100 percent for the next day."

Webb said he likes starting, but he's content to help the team where the need is greater. The soft-spoken Webb, who is from Nassawadox, Va., hit a rough patch last season when he struggled with arm soreness and also had to deal with being called "soft" by Clemson's Will Lamb.

But he found a way to set aside the criticism and kept working to get better, even if it meant pitching out of the bullpen.

"I definitely cared. I knew the guy pretty well. Once things were said and the series was over, there was really no need to keep thinking about it or let it bother me or make it out to be a big deal," Webb said. "We won the series and that was great. I put it behind me. If I ever needed a little extra motivation, that (comment) was always in the back of my mind."

Webb could have left the program as a draft-eligible sophomore last summer when he was drafted in the 48th round by the Cincinnati Reds. But it made more sense to come back and build on his collegiate career.

"Everybody's goal is to get drafted and see how far a professional career can take you. I just came into this year trying to contribute as much as I can to the team and to the (pitching) staff," he said. "If I have a good year, it sets me up pretty well for the draft and that will pretty much take care of itself."

With the Gamecocks (37-12, 16-8 SEC) ranked fourth in the nation and in first place in the SEC, Webb has hopes of another title run. He came in with the same class as Christian Walker and Evan Marzilli and would love to see their success continue after winning the CWS at both Rosenblatt Stadium and TD Ameritrade Park.

"It's almost like a dream," Webb said. "You can't really believe we did that. It's a great memory and a great group of guys to do that with. This year, we're going to try our best to make it to the postseason and see what happens."

Freshmen, veterans have meshed into elite unit

By NEIL WHITE

nwhite@thestate.com

South Carolina's two-time defending national champions have won 13 of their past 14 SEC games, and have done so while starting three freshmen in their regular lineup and one more in the weekend rotation.

As the season has progressed, the freshmen, led by catcher Grayson Greiner, left-fielder Tanner English, shortstop Joey Pankake and left-hander Jordan Montgomery, not only have adjusted to the rigors of playing at the highest level of college baseball, they've excelled at times.

Forty-eight games into the season — and with 36 wins and a 16-8 first place conference record under their belts — the freshmen no longer look like newcomers.

"We've played so many games and had to adjust to the SEC level of play and the speed of play. At this point, we can't be considered freshmen any more. We're just players now," Greiner said. "We're trying to have fun out here. We came in all together and tried to mesh with the older guys and have the most successful team that we can. We've stepped into some key positions and held our own."

Greiner, for instance, caught all 28 innings in fourth-ranked USC's weekend series victory at Arkansas, throwing out five runners attempting to steal. He also drilled a two-run homer in Friday night's comeback victory. On the season, he's hitting .261 — including a team-high .301 mark in SEC play — with six homers and 31 RBIs, a pair of figures that rank third overall on the team.

"I feel like I've made steps each day to get a little bit better. I started off pretty slow, and I was pretty frustrated," Greiner said. "The game was getting to me a little bit, but now I feel much more comfortable every day. I'm just out here trying to do the best I can."

English agrees. The speedy outfielder is hitting .306, the second-best average among starters, with 34 runs scored and a team-best eight stolen bases. Although he has struck out a team-high 44 times, he has done a solid job defensively tracking down fly balls and making strong throws.

"It always feels good to play good," English said. "Baseball is a really humbling sport, and you're going to have games where you look like you don't know how to play ball. Then you're going to have games where you look like a big leaguer out there."

USC's freshmen are having fewer moments during which their inexperience shows.

"We've all been playing together for long enough now that we're really a unit," English said. "You might have felt like an outcast when you first walked in because they won two national championships before, and you know everyone is good. Now it doesn't feel like we're freshmen. It feels like we're a team."

Pankake has batted .289 with 19 RBIs, although he has struggled at times defensively with 16 errors. Montgomery has posted a 4-1 mark with a 3.98 ERA over 52 innings. Reliever Evan Beal, who has a 3-3 mark with a 3.44 ERA and five saves, and designated hitter Kyle Martin, who's hitting .345 while starting 15 games, also have played valuable roles, while other freshmen — infielder Connor Bright, outfielder T.J. Costen and pitcher Joel Seddon — have contributed in spot duty.

"They've grown, and they've matured," USC coach Ray Tanner said. "We still occasionally will make a freshman mistake, but they've never backed off of playing hard. They've always played hard, but sometimes the inexperience has gotten the best of them. They've overcome that to an extent, though, and gotten a lot more comfortable right now."

Because so many talented veterans, including second baseman Scott Wingo, third baseman Adrian Morales, catcher

Brady Thomas and pitcher John Taylor, departed after last year, the freshmen have had to not only fill significant spots in the lineup but also figure out how to blend into a team that returned a number of players with two national title rings.

“These freshmen have had to contribute, and these older guys have helped them in so many ways,” Tanner said. “I see our older guys taking time with them because they want to win. They’ve helped the freshmen develop over the course of the season.”

Those lessons are ongoing. All-American senior left-hander Michael Roth scuffled in the dugout with Beal after tempers flared during Sunday’s game, a situation that Tanner called over and done with by the time the game ended.

English said the freshmen have focused on continuing USC’s success rather than on individual achievements.

“I try not to think about that,” English said. “Everyone is out here every day just trying hard every day to be the best that they can to help the team. That’s really the No. 1 thing.”

Wild finish: Gamecocks frustrate Razorbacks

USC held scoreless for six innings then erupts for 10 runs in 7th and 8th

By Logan Wilson
Special to The State

After six innings of scoreless baseball, fifth-ranked South Carolina took the lead in the seventh and avoided a scare to win its sixth consecutive weekend series by defeating No. 18 Arkansas 10-7 Sunday at Baum Stadium.

The Razorbacks threatened to score in the bottom of the sixth when they loaded the bases with one out for Derrick Bleeker. Bleeker flied out to right field and Jacob Mahan tagged from third, but Adam Matthews threw out Mahan at the plate to turn a double play.

As rain started to fall in the seventh inning, Arkansas starter DJ Baxendale began to struggle after he carried a no-hitter through five innings and maintained a shutout through six.

"I thought he was outstanding for five innings," Arkansas coach Dave Van Horn said of Baxendale. "He gave up a double in the sixth, but he got out of it."

To follow gunning down a would-be go-ahead runner, Matthews hit a RBI single to score Christian Walker for the first run of the game. Later in the inning, Chase Vergason and Tanner English hit a pair of singles that scored three more runs to increase USC's lead to 4-0.

Arkansas (34-15, 12-12 SEC) made an attempt to rally in the home half of the inning and scored three runs to cut the lead to one, but when the Razorbacks sent Jake Wise home on a one-out RBI single by Mahan, USC's senior right fielder gunned down the potential game-tying run at the plate. Wise tossed his helmet in frustration and was ejected.

"We spent probably 30 or 40 minutes working on do-or-die situations in the outfield on Tuesday and it came up today and he had two plays at the plate today where he threw strikes," USC coach Ray Tanner said in reference to Matthews' throws on two sacrifice fly attempts. "They were huge plays."

Matthews has a batting average of .218 this season after hitting .264 a season ago, but he said "it felt good" to pitch into Sunday's victory with big plays.

"It has been a frustrating year at times for me, but you just have to keep grinding it out," the senior captain said. "I'm thankful that I had the opportunity today to contribute to this team in a big way."

USC (36-12, 16-8 SEC) extended its lead to 10-3 in the eighth with two-run hits from Grayson Greiner and Michael Roth, as well as another pair of one-run singles by Vergason and English.

Arkansas scored a pair of runs in the final two innings to cut the lead to 10-7, but could not get any closer to overcoming the deficit.

Forrest Koumas was effective in his second start on the mound this season for USC, but got a no-decision. He tossed 5 1/3 scoreless innings before turning the game over to closer Matt Price.

"When you look at the rest of the game, (Koumas' performance) kind of gets lost, but it didn't for me," Tanner said. "That was an impressive outing. I hoped he would be good for about 75 pitches and he was very efficient."

Despite allowing seven runs on 10 hits to the Razorbacks, Price earned his fourth win of the season.

"I was missing my spots with both my fastball and slider," the junior right-hander said. "I was trying to get it over the plate and once I fell behind a couple of times, they put a good swing on it and hits led to more runs."

"I owe [Matthews and Evan Marzilli] a steak dinner for those two throws by Adam and a couple of diving catches by Evan," Price said. "It was just unreal defense out there."

USC's series victory over Arkansas is its second at Baum Stadium.

"I have tremendous respect for coach Van Horn and Arkansas. I think they're an elite team," Tanner said. "I've said before that they are a team that could end up in the World Series and win it.

"We were very fortunate this weekend. We had the crazy game where we were down 6-0 and battled back and then today, it looked like Baxendale was going to no-hit us and it ends up 10-7. I have tremendous respect for how good they are. I'm proud of our guys for going on the road and fighting to win this series. It was a big series for us."

USC will host Furman for a midweek game Wednesday and then travel to Athens, Ga., on Friday for a weekend series with the Bulldogs with the opportunity to extend their weekend series win streak to seven.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. - A senior co-captain in the worst slump of his career ignites a run-scoring bonanza and throws out two runners at the plate, the Friday-night pitcher smacks a two-run double and a closer seemingly sent from the heavens is knocked around worse than he ever has, but gets the job done.

Just the way it was drawn up.

Fifth-ranked South Carolina rocked No. 18 Arkansas for 10 runs over the seventh and eighth innings on Sunday, beating the Razorbacks 10-7 and clinching the series in a game that had a little bit of everything. Besides the others, there was an ejection, a hitter hovering around .200 all season belting two doubles - and the game was scoreless through six innings, with a combined five hits (all by Arkansas).

Pardon coach Ray Tanner if he didn't really know what to say. It was one of those where the boxscore, tape and statistics don't need to be that thoroughly discussed - USC won, retaining its one-game lead in the SEC East and tie for the overall SEC lead with LSU, and that's all that mattered.

"This game never ceases to amaze me," Tanner said, staring at the Baum Stadium turf and shaking his head as if there was maybe one more runner coming to the plate. "That's a crazy thing, isn't it?"

That's one word for it.

Shackled through five one-hit innings by Arkansas starter D.J. Baxendale, who was throwing his curveball and slider in his best impression of a major-leaguer, USC (36-12, 16-8 SEC) was matching it thanks to Forrest Koumas. Despite pitching for just the second time since March 31, Koumas was masterful, holding the Razorbacks (34-15, 12-12) to three hits and two walks in five innings while striking out four.

With the score still deadlocked at zero, though, USC squandered a sixth-inning leadoff double (from the light-hitting Chase Vergason, who broke up Baxendale's no-hitter) and Arkansas started solving Koumas. Jacob Mahan singled with one out and moved to third on Dominic Ficociello's single. Matt Reynolds walked to load the bags with one out and Tanner didn't hesitate, doing what he said he would do.

Closer Matt Price, no stranger to throwing long relief stints, had told Tanner that he felt good for five innings before the game. Getting an unexpected gift from Koumas, Price relieved and prepared to do what he has always done - shut 'em down.

Derrick Bleeker hit a fly ball to shallow right that looked to get a run home, but Adam Matthews, backing up on the ball, was prepared. He caught, stepped and threw in one motion - Mahan seemed to hesitate on the tag before running full-speed, the throw bounced in two steps up the line and Grayson Greiner received and tagged in one swoop.

"It's been a frustrating year for me, but you've got to keep grinding it out," Matthews said. "I just tried to keep the ball low."

The Hogs' rally squelched, USC went to work in the seventh. Christian Walker singled to start it but LB Dantzer struck out. Greiner was intentionally walked but pinch-hitter Michael Roth struck out.

With two outs and two on, Matthews stepped in. Struggling to hit all year, Matthews tried to keep his swing short and not go for the home-run cut. It paid off when he slapped a single through short to score Walker and finally dent the scoreboard.

Vergason followed with another RBI single and Tanner English punched a single over second base to plate two more. Baxendale, superhuman through six, was suddenly touchable and trailing 4-0 - with veteran fireman Price on the mound, the game was over.

Nobody told the Razorbacks that.

Price, for seemingly the first time in his career, didn't have it. Arkansas teed off on the All-American for five hits and three runs in the seventh, something that would have been worse if Matthews hadn't incredibly loaded up and thrown out Jake Wise at the plate, a play that got Wise ejected after he frustratedly slammed his helmet into the ground beside plate umpire Jeff Head.

Still, USC escaped with a 4-3 lead, and then began hammering Arkansas' relief crew. The Gamecocks batted around in the eighth, scoring six runs, keyed by a two-run single from Greiner, a two-run double from Roth and Vergason again with an RBI single. Ahead 10-3, Price again got the ball for the eighth and ninth and managed to hold on despite Arkansas scoring four more runs.

It was the most runs Price (4-3) has ever given up. He didn't walk anybody, but didn't strike out anybody and gave up seven runs on 10 hits. Tanner had Tyler Webb warming in the ninth, but stuck with Price - two diving catches from Evan Marzilli in center, combined with Matthews' heroics, helped Price get the job done, all the way up to Joey Pankake's game-ending leaping stab of Brian Anderson's line drive.

"I owe them a steak dinner," Price said of Matthews and Marzilli. "I was missing my spots with both my fastball and slider. Once I fell behind a couple of times, I had to get it over the plate and they put a good swing on it."

"I'm not sure if I've thrown two guys out at all," Matthews said. "Thank God I made some good throws."

"We spent Tuesday working on do-or-die plays from the outfield and sacrifice flies," Tanner said. "It came up today, and he has two plays at the plate."

Price got it done, USC earned its sixth straight series win and escaped from Arkansas with a one-game lead in the SEC East. The Gamecocks are right in position with six games to play, but they all said they were only going to concentrate on the next one - the same approach they've used ever since a 12-4 loss to Vanderbilt on March 31 dropped them to 2-6 in the league.

"I haven't spent much time looking at that whole deal," Tanner said. "I'm really proud of my guys for fighting out of that hole we had at the beginning of the year. It's a great feeling, and we'll try to keep the battle going."

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. - No one's more happy to see May than Evan Marzilli.

After a seemingly 0-for-April where Marzilli couldn't wreck a gnat's flight pattern with his swing, much less a baseball, South Carolina's junior center fielder finally saw the calendar page turn. He embraced it with a double against Davidson on Wednesday to break a five-game hitless slump, then really wrapped his arms around May on Friday.

Marzilli's 10th-inning double scored Joey Pankake and put the No. 5 Gamecocks ahead to stay in a wild 8-6 win over No. 18 Arkansas, completing a stirring rally that kept USC soaring ever higher. After Florida beat Kentucky on Friday to clinch the series, the Gamecocks were all alone in first place in the SEC East, 1 1-2 games above the Gators and Wildcats while LSU remained tied with USC for the overall SEC lead.

Be it a suddenly discovered cohesiveness among the bats, or that USC is channeling the refuse-to-lose mentality that has served it so well over the past two seasons, the Gamecocks are streaking. Friday was USC's 12th straight SEC win, a continuation of the second-longest streak in school history, and came after the Gamecocks were staring at a 6-0 deficit after the third inning.

"I was praying that April would end, hopefully get things going at the end of the season," said Marzilli, who also scored the final run of the game. "We were pretty calm (after the 6-0 deficit). Everybody's learned what Carolina baseball is about."

That's winning, battling, fighting, everything that coach Ray Tanner stresses every day. Trailing six with their ace pitcher getting knocked around worse than he has in three years, USC could have packed it in.

No way.

"I'm really proud of the effort we put forth tonight," Tanner said. "It didn't look too good for us. We just kept fighting."

Michael Roth was battered for six runs in three innings, every hit finding a hole and the senior All-American giving up the most runs he has since he was a freshman. Roth, who also was graduated from USC on Friday, could only shake his head and keep trying to compete.

He found his stuff, just as Arkansas starter Ryne Stanek was losing his. After striking out four of the first six batters, Stanek started to lose steam, and USC was waiting.

The Gamecocks (35-11, 15-7 SEC) trailed 6-0 but jumped on Stanek in the fourth. Marzilli bunted his way on for a leadoff single and was followed by Christian Walker and LB Dantzier with back-to-back hits, the last which scored Marzilli. Grayson Greiner and Kyle Martin drove in runs with sacrifice flies and the Razorbacks' lead was cut in half.

Roth battled through three more frames, helped by Greiner throwing out a base-stealer in the fifth and Pankake helping start a double play in the sixth. Dantzier helped get Roth off the hook by starting the top of the sixth with a single, and Greiner further helped by belting a two-run home run into the left-field seats, the first long ball Stanek has given up all year.

USC tied it up against the Hogs' bullpen when Pankake drove in a run on a sacrifice fly. From there, USC and Arkansas traded outs as the Razorbacks' Cade Lynch, Colby Suggs and Barrett Astin fought against Gamecocks freshman Evan Beal.

Beal, the rookie from Virginia, worked two scoreless innings before facing the Hogs in the ninth. USC had stranded 10 runners over four frames and the score stood 6-6, as Arkansas led off with a walk, sacrificed him to second and moved him to third on a ground-out.

Beal knew that Tanner had trusted him to keep pitching when Matt Price and Tyler Webb were ready to go. "You've just got to stay ready," Beal said. "I knew we had an open base, and a walk is better than giving up a hit there and losing the game. I was just trying to situational-pitch the best I could."

Greiner helped Beal out by saving a couple of pitches in the dirt, then Tim Carver tapped to Pankake at short. The freshman loaded up and gunned Carver out at first, sending the game to extras.

Pankake beat out a one-out single in the 10th and moved to second when Carver threw wildly to first. Marzilli wasted no time, smoking a pitch into the gap that easily scored Pankake and left the junior on second base, excitedly clapping his hands.

"I saw him throw a lot of sliders up there, so that's what I was looking for," Marzilli said. "I got a good-enough piece of it to split the gap."

Dantzier followed with a two-out walk and Greiner singled through the box, beating the throw to first as Marzilli motored around third. The relay throw was in time and Marzilli was ruled out at the plate - a sprinting protest from Tanner, who leaped in front of Marzilli, argued that catcher Jake Wise had dropped the ball.

"He got blocked off, I saw the ball on the ground," Tanner said. "The great thing about that, third-base umpire Jeff Head saw it and he took over. I really didn't have to do anything except make mention."

Armed with a two-run lead, Tanner needed no script. He summoned Price from the bullpen, and USC's veteran fireman shut Arkansas down 1-2-3 in the 10th for his seventh save.

USC scored eight unanswered runs. Arkansas, after teeing off on Roth early, got two hits in the final seven innings. The Razorbacks (33-14, 11-11), fighting for their own division title, slipped four games behind LSU with eight to play.

The Gamecocks kept on winning.

"I'm not thinking about that, that's for sure," Tanner said. "We made a run, dug ourselves out. There's a lot of baseball left."

Pankake shows some promise at short

John Whittle
34 days agoComments: 1Add a comment

It was a rough beginning to the season for freshman Joey Pankake, who committed six errors his the first 10 games in a South Carolina uniform. Pressure got to him early in the season but, aside from a hiccup on Friday against Alabama, Pankake has become more comfortable in the field.

Freshman Joey Pankake has made 16 errors this season, including three on Friday night against Alabama, but the coaching staff still has confidence in him.

An Easley High School product, Pankake came to South Carolina with big shoes to fill. The players before him - Peter Mooney and Bobby Haney - were wizards with the glove. They made plays that college shortstops around the country could only field in their dreams and both left South Carolina with a championship ring on their finger.

South Carolina head coach Ray Tanner has won in recent years on pitching and defense and the gloves on his team have been especially strong up the middle of the field.

Pankake signed with the Gamecocks known more for his bat than his glove, but Tanner said following fall practice that he was very comfortable with the defense entering the 2012 season.

When play opened against VMI in mid-February, Pankake was written into the starting shortstop position, which was the first time Tanner put a freshman there to open the season since Reese Havens in 2006.

Pankake had some help this season as former South Carolina great Drew Meyer entered the dugout for his first season as an assistant coach. Meyer, who spurned the professional ranks out of high school, started 65 of 66 games at shortstop his freshman season in 2000.

Meyer knows the pressure that Pankake is under. He followed in the footsteps of Major Leaguers Adam Everett and Brian Roberts, who had a remarkable three-year run. Meyer, however, didn't have one added element that Pankake has to deal with.

"The biggest thing for him is slowing down the game," Meyer said. "When you come in here as a freshman, it's a packed house, you have a couple of championship banners to look at, and it's a lot of pressure. You speed yourself up and think you have to do more than you can."

Pankake won the competition to become the starting shortstop early in the fall. A handful of scholarship middle infielders and a smattering of walk-ons were on the roster trying to replace Mooney and second baseman Scott Wingo.

While the battle at second base is still ongoing, Pankake won the job in October and has kept it, for the most part, throughout the season. He was given a few games off just before the start of SEC play but took back the starting job in game two in the opening series against Kentucky.

Despite the fact that he gave way to freshman Connor Bright for a handful of games, the confidence of

"I haven't questioned whether Joey could handle the position and coach Tanner didn't either," Meyer said. "We know he's very capable. We saw it in the fall, the way he's been working out every day, we knew it was in there. It's a matter of overcoming anxiety. I didn't doubt him. He's a great player and has a good head on his shoulders."

Meyer probably has some sympathy for Pankake as the freshman year of the future first-round draft pick didn't go as well defensively as he would have liked. Meyer, who was drafted by the Texas Rangers with the No. 16 pick in 2002, committed 24 errors his first season on campus.

Meyer flashed back to the Auburn series his freshman season in which he botched two inning-ending double play balls that went right through his legs. His team was able to overcome the miscues, but Meyer said you "have to learn from it and not another ground ball got through my legs after that."

Where Pankake needs to learn is in making his throws. As Meyer points out, the major of the errors at short this season, at least prior to the Alabama series, have come on throws and not in fielding the ball.

"His biggest thing has been throwing. He hasn't made too many errors with the glove," Meyer said. "He has a great arm. You see him keep throwing balls in the dirt, it's eventually like, 'Hey, let one go into the stands.' I felt like I needed to put warning signs up in the stands when I threw."

Pankake has had several low throws this season, including one on Saturday that first baseman Christian Walker was able to scoop to save another error. Walker, however, injured his hamstring on the play and is doubtful for tonight's game against Davidson.

"He's been somewhat inconsistent defensively," Tanner said. "I know he would tell you that I have a few too many errors, which he probably does. We're accustomed to not having a whole lot of errors in our infield, but if you look across the country, it's normal for college shortstops."

Meyer said that Pankake is "getting there" and he's done better throughout the season as he's played more innings.

Improvement has been gradual at the position but Pankake had a very forgettable game on Friday night against Alabama. He made three errors, to bring his total to 16 on the season, and two of those errors came on the exchange between his glove and hand.

Where Pankake has made improvements is, as Meyer said, is in the mental side of the game. Meyer said that there were times early in the season in which Pankake would have a bad at-bat and lose focus in the field. As Pankake has become more mature, that's happening less often.

Part of the reason it may be happening less often is because Pankake is swinging the bat so well. His batting average, which climbed above .300 for a few games, is now at .290 after 44 games.

Pankake leads the team with 12 doubles and has chipped in 18 RBIs hitting primarily in the leadoff spot over the last month. The right-handed hitter has 15 walks and 25 strikeouts this season.

"I'm happy with Joey Pankake," Tanner said. "He's a pretty good offensive player, he's been put into a tough situation, and I think he's responded well."

Meyer, who played in a much more pro-hitter era, hit .320 his freshman season with eight doubles, 11 games his freshman season.

Pankake is hitting .290 this season at the plate and has a team-high 12 doubles.

With the errors, there has been talk of moving Pankake to one of the corner infield positions next year with the arrival of a pair of highly-rated freshmen with a shortstop pedigree.

It's too early for that talk, at least for Meyer.

"I think he's capable of staying at short," Meyer said. "Anytime you bring in new guys to push guys who are here is always good. Competition is always good in camp. You never want a player to get too complacent. You want to bring in high-caliber players to help on the team and make each other better. It's good for the program."

Pankake is at short and the likelihood of that changing this season is slim. His coaches, especially one that has had to fill the same shoes as Pankake without the glow of championship trophies, believe in him. He's still trying to win over everyone else outside of the dugout.

Little no more, South Carolina third baseman LB Dantzler enjoys big stage success

- BY DARRYL SLATER

COLUMBIA — Back when Little Brad Dantzler actually was little, he stood in the outfield at a baseball park in Winter Haven, Fla., and shagged Jim Thome's fly balls during batting practice. He roamed the outfield with Ellis Burks. He met Ken Griffey Jr. He even played catch with Bob Feller, though at the time, Dantzler just knew him as a nice old man in a Cleveland Indians shirt.

Starting when he was 11 years old, Dantzler spent three spring trainings as an Indians bat boy. He got out of school two hours early and zipped across town to the park, where major leaguers transformed from two-dimensional images on his television screen and baseball cards to guys who he ate lunch alongside in their clubhouse.

“It helped to make his psyche to where he’s never been nervous, he’s never been overwhelmed, never felt like he doesn’t belong,” said his father, who is also named Brad.

Ten years later, Dantzler found his psyche tested this spring. After spending two seasons at a junior college, he debuted as South Carolina’s third baseman. He wrestled with trying to stay positive early in the season, when he ripped a maddening number of balls right at fielders. He told himself things would eventually turn in his favor — and they have.

In the previous seven games before Wednesday’s home contest against Davidson, he was hitting .370 with four doubles, three home runs and seven runs batted-in — a big part of USC’s current 11-game Southeastern Conference winning streak. Those seven games raised his batting average from .232 to .255. He now shares the team lead with eight homers and is second with 37 RBIs.

“It took a lot longer than I would have hoped,” he said. “But now I’m getting a few hits and it’s starting to feel better.”

Dantzler is familiar with the ebbs and flows of hitting. A lifelong baseball player, he used to attend games with his father at Florida, where Brad was an all-Southeastern Conference first baseman in the mid-1980s. Dantzler envisioned himself playing for the Gators one day, too.

Brad and his wife, Susan, decided before their son was born in 1991 that they would call him LB, for Little Brad, to avoid confusion. Throughout his youth, he was a small, but successful, player. Then, his experience with the Indians “just cemented the fire in him for baseball,” Brad said.

It wouldn’t have happened if fate hadn’t brought the Indians to Winter Haven in 1993, after Hurricane Andrew destroyed their new spring training park down in Homestead. Winter Haven had a vacant park because the Red Sox just bolted for Fort Myers. Years later, Brad was at a local Chamber of Commerce party and met Jerry Crabb, who oversaw the Indians’ spring training. Brad asked Crabb if they had bat boy openings, and within a month, his son got one.

Still, even by high school, Dantzler’s smallish physique — slighter than his current 5-11 and 205 pounds — resulted in him getting none of the SEC scholarship offers he wanted. Brad attended junior college for two years before playing at Florida, and he tried to encourage his son as he headed off for the State College of Florida (Manatee-Sarasota) — an elite junior college program.

“I knew that if he wanted to play in the SEC, he wasn’t ready coming in as a freshman,” Brad said. “I know because I played it. I knew this was the best thing for him. I kept saying, ‘Look, what is it you really want to do? You’ve got to go somewhere and mature. This is what it takes to get to the next level.’ ”

Dantzler said he went to junior college thinking “I had a good chance” at earning an SEC offer, because “I always felt if you just keep working hard for something, things will work out in the end.”

They did. A strong freshman season brought a USC offer. Florida expressed interest, but wanted him to play outfield, Brad said. Dantzler wanted at least a shot at playing third base.

Before Dantzler came to USC, his dad told him to always remember to “look around” and take in every moment. Brad relishes vivid memories of his college career — like being on the bottom of a pile-up during a brawl with North Carolina. Occasionally, he still slips on his 1984 SEC championship ring.

Dantzler must have listened, because he is enjoying the buzz surrounding his pet betta fish, Reptar, which he brought to Auburn late last month when his neighbor was unavailable to watch the fish. As word of the strange traveling partner hit Twitter, Dantzler smacked two homers in the series and decided to continue keeping the fish in the dugout or bullpen at games.

He even brought Reptar — which he named after a character from the cartoon TV show “Rugrats” — into a postgame press conference during last weekend’s series against Alabama. By then, “Fear the Fish” T-shirts were being sold, with a garnet betta fish at the center of the USC’s black “C” logo rather than a Gamecock. Brad bought 15 of them and gave them to friends and relatives.

He feels proud to tell everyone that Little Brad became not only a trendsetter, but a fine player.

“The most surreal thing for me was to see how good he’s become,” Brad said. “He is so much better than I was. He’s a big man now. He’s grown up.”

Gamecocks rise into tie for first

Talk about it in The Insiders Forum

It's a funny game, all right.

It was only six weeks ago that South Carolina was 0-3 in the SEC, and only five weeks ago that the Gamecocks had "improved" to 1-5. It tied for the worst league start in coach Ray Tanner's 16-year tenure at USC, and also tied the other worst start in program history, in 1992 when the Gamecocks were making their initial foray into the league.

Following the fifth loss, a 5-4 home setback to Florida, Tanner wasn't pleased but he wasn't giving up. He pointed out the history - USC started horribly in 1992 (1-9), but finished 13-11; and the 1-5 start in 2003 became a 19-11 final record and an appearance in the College World Series. No, it wasn't pleasant to be staring at the sides of a self-dug hole, but the hole wasn't impossibly deep.

"I don't feel too good, to be honest with you," Tanner said then. "We've had some spurts where we've been a pretty good club, but we haven't been able to put it all together. All you can do is keep grinding it out. It doesn't always go the way you want it to go."

These days, it's going exactly the way he wants it to go, and the way he thought it always could. While the jury's still out on where this season will end, it's at least challenging the other results of USC's rough SEC starts.

As Sunday ended, USC was back in a tie for first place in the SEC with nine games to play. At 14-7, the Gamecocks have won 11 straight league games (and gone 13-2 since the rough start) to place themselves right back in contention.

USC is tied with Kentucky and LSU for first, and while the Gamecocks are down a tiebreaker to the Wildcats, they still have to play the Tigers (and it's a series at Carolina Stadium). While USC travels to Arkansas this weekend, Kentucky hosts Florida in a series that could very well determine USC's fate.

If the Wildcats win that series, it likely won't matter what the Gamecocks do the rest of the way. They may tie Kentucky for the SEC regular-season championship, but the No. 1 seed in the SEC tournament would still go to the Wildcats.

Of course, that may be secondary. The SEC tournament is often a warm-up for the top teams in it, an exhibition used to get some younger players some time and any players on the bubble for the postseason cut-down list another opportunity to prove themselves. While only one team gets the seed for the tournament, all tied teams atop the standings get titles - the SEC doesn't mind in the least having to present three or four trophies and credit three or four champions.

USC has never won back-to-back SEC championships, although it has twice won back-to-back SEC East championships (1999-2000, 2002-2003). The Gamecocks are challenging for it now, after seeing the Gators slip two games back and the Wildcats lose two games to former East cellar-dweller Vanderbilt.

The Gamecocks travel to Arkansas and Georgia, while LSU comes to Columbia. There may be a bit of scoreboard-watching as well as playing over the next three weeks, especially as school is ending and it's baseball-only for the duration.

The other teams bidding for the title may be scoreboard-watching, as well. They're probably wondering, after 11 straight wins, when USC is going to lose again.

If ever.

Tide swept as USC's surge rises

Walker exits game, but Gamecocks win their 11th straight in SEC play

By CHRIS DEARING
Special to The State

Even without its No. 3 starter and missing its best hitter for half the game, South Carolina continued to roll in SEC play.

The Gamecocks ran their winning streak to 11 games in the conference with a 9-1 victory against Alabama on Saturday at sold-out Carolina Stadium. It was the third consecutive conference series sweep for South Carolina (33-11, 14-7) and it has them back in the thick of the league race.

USC is a half-game back of Kentucky, which lost to Vanderbilt on Saturday. It's a far cry from the 1-5 start to the SEC season.

"We started out with a tough situation with those three games at Kentucky and then two losses immediately to Florida," USC coach Ray Tanner said. "We've just battled our way back. You're going to take some punches and you have to give some. Good things have happened for us."

The 11-game SEC win streak is the second longest in school history, behind the 17-game streak in 2000.

Slugger Christian Walker — who left the game in the fourth inning with a strained left hamstring that was termed a "precautionary" measure by a USC spokesperson — said he believes a team that has relied on a number of freshman coming off back-to-back national championships is rounding into form.

"We are playing well. We feel good and we're playing loose," Walker said. "We're having fun. The coaches have been stressing to just have a good time. We've been playing this game our whole lives and we are here for a reason. There's no point in being stressed out and playing uptight. It's a good feeling."

Colby Holmes, a consistent No. 3 starter all season, missed his scheduled start with a strained muscle in his throwing arm. Junior Patrick Sullivan made his first start this season — the third of his career and first in SEC play — and scuffled a bit with control but got solid backing from a defense that turned two double plays in the first two innings.

Nolan Belcher and Hunter Privette combined with Sullivan on the five-hitter against the Tide (17-28, 6-15), with Belcher picking up his second win of the series with 31/3 innings of one-hit relief to improve to 4-2 on the season.

"They tell the whole staff to be ready whenever we're called on," Belcher, a junior from Augusta, said. "If you have to do a start like Pat Sullivan did or get one batter, you have to do your role."

Even with new guys in the lineup, the USC offense didn't seem to miss a beat.

Joey Pankake and LB Dantzler each drove in two runs, and Pankake and Grayson Greiner each had two hits in the nine-hit attack. Every starter had at least a hit, scored a run or drove in a run in the balanced attack.

The Gamecocks scored in each of the first five innings. Greiner and Pankake delivered RBI doubles in the first inning.

Dantzler hit his eighth home run — tying him with Walker for the team lead — into the USC bullpen in the third. The Gamecocks put it away with a three-run fourth inning that included RBIs from Walker, Pankake and Dantzler.

“The beginning of the year really wasn’t happening for the hitters at all,” Dantzler said. “The pitchers have been good all year. A lot of the new guys had to get some innings in, but now it’s starting to come together.”

USC will play a mid-week home game on Wednesday against Davidson before traveling to Arkansas next weekend.

AUBURN, Ala. — South Carolina won its fourth straight Southeastern Conference series as well as its eighth consecutive game against a league foe when the ninth-ranked Gamecocks defeated Auburn, 11-7, on Sunday.

The Gamecocks (30-11, 11-7) swept the three-game series from Auburn (21-19, 7-11) behind an 11-hit attack that featured home runs from LB Dantzler and Erik Payne.

South Carolina resumes play Thursday when the Gamecocks kick off a three-game home series versus Alabama. The first game is at 7:30 p.m. on ESPNU, followed by a Friday game at 7 p.m. and a Saturday matchup at 1:30 p.m.

Junior right-hander Colby Holmes (6-0) picked up the victory Sunday, allowing four runs on nine hits while tying a career high with seven strikeouts in five innings of work.

USC's big day of offense included a 4- for-5 effort from freshman outfielder Tanner English. Dantzler was 3 for 5 with three runs scored and a pair of RBIs. Payne drove in a career-high four RBIs as well.

For the second time in the series, the Gamecocks broke ahead 4-0 in the top of the first inning, using two Auburn errors to their advantage.

With two outs, Payne came through as he launched a three-run homer to right field, his third of the season.

USC pushed its lead to 8-1 in the fifth inning, and a solo home run by Dantzler, his seventh of the season, gave the Gamecocks a five-run cushion in the top of the seventh.

The homer tied Dantzler with Christian Walker for the team lead in home runs.

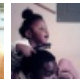

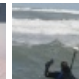

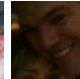

Two more runs in the eighth inning increased USC's lead to seven.

Pitcher Jordan Montgomery off to a hot start for South Carolina

Photo by Gerry Melendez/The State South Carolina starting pitcher Jordan Montgomery is 3-0 with a 2.48 ERA this season.

COLUMBIA — Within the first two weeks of freshman pitcher Jordan Montgomery arriving at South Carolina last fall, he already had a nickname: Gumby. It came courtesy of teammate Logan Munson, whose locker is next to Montgomery's.

"He said I resembled him, like in body type — long arms and long legs, just kind of flopping around, I guess," Montgomery said.

Montgomery, a 6-3 left-hander, didn't mind the nickname. He shrugged it off, just like he has shrugged off the pressure of being USC's new Saturday starter, and the teasing his two older brothers give him for his baby face, which makes him look much younger than 19.

"They just tell me I'm not very intimidating because I look like a 12-year-old, but it doesn't matter to me," he said.

From the time Montgomery got to Columbia, he has impressed USC coach Ray Tanner with his poise and steadiness, which Tanner said is "a little bit surprising in a true freshman, and not all of our freshmen have exhibited those traits throughout the year."

This weekend at Auburn, Montgomery will make his third Southeastern Conference start. For the season, he is 3-0 in eight appearances (six starts), with a 2.48 ERA, 31 strikeouts and four walks in 36 1/3 innings. The past two weekends against Tennessee and Mississippi State, he threw 14 1/3 innings combined, allowing eight hits and two runs. He struck out 11 batters and walked two.

Tanner has already given Montgomery high praise by comparing his freshman year to that of Kip Bouknight in 1998. Bouknight ended up winning 45 games in his career, still a school record.

"Is it fair to ask (Montgomery) to keep the pace?" Tanner said. "I don't know. I hope he does. But he's done a good job. He deserves to be where he is right now."

This all started between Montgomery's eighth- and ninth-grade years in Sumter, when he sprouted from 5-11 to 6-2.

"I came back to school and no one recognized me because I used to be kind of fat and chubby," he said.

From the time he started pitching at age 11, he was a soft thrower who maybe could hit 81 mph. By his senior year, he was consistently throwing 85. Once he got to USC and started lifting weights, his velocity jumped to 88 in the fall.

USC pitching coach Jerry Meyers tweaked Montgomery's motion to add some velocity.

Montgomery, the state's 2011 high school player of the year, wasn't drafted and received little attention from major league teams. He thinks it was due to his lack of velocity, which he believes isn't done increasing. USC's team doctor told Montgomery he's not done growing, either, and Montgomery can envision himself being 6-7 and throwing 90 mph consistently — numbers that pro scouts love.

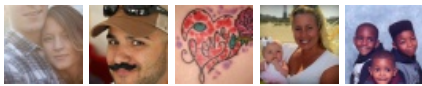

He isn't bothered by the expectations of his fast start, as people wonder just how good he could become. The singular responsibility of pitching is what made him love it in the first place.

"It's up to you how the game goes," he said. "I can take the pressure."

Four-run eighth propels USC to win

South Carolina had its backs against the wall down three runs with only four outs to play with but a four-run outburst keyed the Gamecocks to a 7-6 series-opening victory over Mississippi State. With two outs, South Carolina touched up the top two pitchers on the Bulldogs' roster to steal the victory at Carolina Stadium.

Junior Sean Sullivan delivered the game-tying triple and scored the game-winning run in the eighth inning in South Carolina's 7-6 victory over Mississippi State

The Gamecocks have had a difficult time finding a clutch hit this season but then sent five hitters to the plate after Mississippi State starter Chris Stratton retired the first two hitters of the inning.

Freshman Grayson Greiner gave the Gamecocks some life with his fourth home run of the season, a solo shot, to give the dugout some life.

"Baseball is a contagious game. If you put together a quality at-bat, guys around you feed off of that," Greiner said. "I was just trying to get things going. He had my number all night. I was looking for a fastball and got one up in the air."

Senior Adam Matthews singled to end Stratton's day. He gave way to closer Caleb Reed, who was a perfect 7-for-7 in save opportunities this season. After a double by Brisson Celek, pinch hitter Sean Sullivan, who made the last out against Francis Marion on Wednesday night, dropped a slicing triple to right to tie the ball game.

"I don't get that opportunity if not for them," Sullivan said, referencing Greiner, Matthews, and Celek. "I was able to find a hole, we were able to win it, and that's all that matters."

Sullivan touched home plate for the eventual game-winning run when freshman Tanner English reached first base on a dropped third strike, which slipped past MSU catcher Mitch Slauter.

The run, scored in a very unconventional fashion, gave South Carolina its third Friday night victory in five chances in Southeastern Conference play.

Stratton entered the game with a 7-0 record and has dominated the competition with his low to mid-90s fastball. He wasn't at his best early as the Gamecocks were able to get good contact on him, which finally added up to some runs in the third inning.

The Gamecocks loaded the bases with one down with three singles in four hitters. Junior Christian Walker, the team leader in all Triple Crown categories, took a four-pitch walk to score the first run. Cleanup hitter LB Dantzler bounced an 0-2 single through the right side to put the Gamecocks up 3-0 through three innings.

"Stratton is very good," Tanner said. "You're not going to get a whole lot against him. The key is trying to “Once you get to that point, there’s a little bit of me. Even though there were two outs, that’s where we ended up being. We had some good at-bats and good fortune.”

Entering the game, Stratton had only surrendered eight earned runs in SEC play but when it looked like South Carolina would be able to rough him up, the right-hander found his groove. Stratton worked around a leadoff double in both the fifth and sixth inning.

While keeping the Gamecocks off the scoreboard, Stratton gave his team an opportunity to mount a comeback off South Carolina starter Michael Roth. Over the course of his starting career, Roth has always gotten stronger as the game has gone on.

Against the Bulldogs, however, that was not the case. The visitors began to tee off in the top of the fifth when C.T. Bradford launched a home run, a solo shot, over the right field wall. The major damage was done in the sixth.

Mississippi State scored four runs in the top of the sixth inning, all of which were credited to Roth. After retiring the first hitter of the inning, Roth allowed a home run, double, and triple and also hit a batter before being lifted from the game. When all was said and done, he allowed five earned runs on five hits, three walks, and two strikeouts.

“It’s on me,” Roth said. “Do I know what’s going on? No. I have no clue. I’ve watched video and been looking at some stuff. I haven’t had a good changeup in four weeks and not spotting the fastball. The slider was non-existent today. I’m not discrediting their hitters at all. I haven’t put together a good outing in a while. I have no clue what’s going on.”

Junior Tyler Webb stopped the bleeding and pitched 2.1 innings allowing one earned run on two hits and two strikeouts. Freshman Evan Beal retired the only batter he faced to set the stage for the bottom of the eighth.

“You always hope, so we’re always hoping something good could happen,” Roth said.

South Carolina finished the game with 11 hits but did strike out 12 times in the game and only worked two walks. Junior Matt Price came in to pick up his second save of the season pitching a perfect ninth registering two ground ball outs and a pop up.

The Gamecocks will send freshman Jordan Montgomery to the mound on Saturday. First pitch is set for 4 p.m. at Carolina Stadium.

Junior Matt Price picked up his second save of the season working a perfect ninth inning.

Nolan Belcher leads No. 10 South Carolina to 8-0 win over The Citadel

COLUMBIA — As a high school pitcher in Augusta, Ga., Nolan Belcher was virtually unhittable. He finished his career with a 47-2 record and 516 strikeouts in 282 innings, and a nickname to match: The Little Unit, a play on the nickname of another dominant left-hander, Randy Johnson.

But what made Belcher so impressive is that he was, and is, indeed little, and not just in comparison to the 6-10 Johnson. Belcher — all 5-8 and 155 pounds of him — rolled into Columbia in 2009 and grabbed the Saturday starting position in South Carolina's rotation.

WHAT'S BITING?

TIDELINEMAGAZINE.COM

He was not unhittable by any means, with a 4-5 record and a 5.33 ERA, but he did have 11 strikeouts in 61/3 innings at Georgia. As a sophomore, he sputtered and lost the starting role. Then, in a preseason practice before his junior season, he felt a pop in his elbow after throwing a slider. He tried to ignore it and threw two more pitches. "The pain was just unbearable," he said. "It felt like somebody was sticking a knife in my elbow."

A little more than a year later — and nearly two years after his last start, in May 2010 — Belcher on Tuesday put his once-reliable left arm to its sternest test since Tommy John ligament replacement surgery ended his 2011 season before it began.

He passed the test brilliantly, leading No. 10 South Carolina (24-9) to an 8-0 win over The Citadel by throwing 52/3 innings, allowing three hits, striking out seven batters and walking one.

Grayson Greiner's grand slam highlighted a six-run seventh inning to allow the Gamecocks to pull away. Tanner English and Christian Walker had three hits apiece.

Mason Davis had two of five hits for The Citadel (13-20).

From the get-go, Belcher looked like that high school kid from Augusta again, as six of his first 13 outs came via strikeout.

Belcher had thrown 12 innings in 10 relief appearances this season, with a 2.25 ERA entering Tuesday, but only twice had he pitched more than one inning — 2 1/3 against Presbyterian and 4 2/3 against Florida. Pitching coach Jerry Meyers wanted Belcher to throw 75 pitches on Tuesday, and Meyers let him go even beyond that, to 86.

"Each time I get back out there I feel better and better," Belcher said. "I feel like my arm is getting stronger. I think each time I'm getting more and more confident."

Baseball people like to say Tommy John surgery is like "getting a new elbow." But a pitcher must pay mightily for it, with hours upon hours of brutal rehabilitation.

"Twelve months of hell, basically," Belcher said.

Because your arm is essentially stuck in an "L" position after the surgery, rehab includes having bands tied to your arm and trainers stretching it mercilessly to increase flexibility.

"The pain is just as bad as when you first hurt it," Belcher said.

Throughout this season's first half, he began to feel so good that he decided to volunteer himself to bring the Gamecocks some much-needed energy. He mentioned his idea to teammates, and sure enough, in the pregame huddle late last month at Vanderbilt, he did a back flip. He originally learned a back handspring as a 5-year-old, during gymnastics lessons. He later tried back-flipping on a trampoline and off a diving board.

"When I got stupid enough, I tried it off the ground," he said. "I've been able to do it for a long time."

But he didn't want to take any risks Tuesday, so he passed the pregame back-flip duties on to left fielder English, who might have to get used to doing it before midweek games. USC needs a midweek starter now that Jordan Montgomery has taken the Saturday spot, replacing Matt Price, who is closing again. Or maybe coach Ray Tanner might work Belcher in to the weekend middle relief rotation with lefty Tyler Webb.

"We'll use him on the weekend in conference play if he's not starting," Tanner said. "That's for sure. I think Nolan gives you a chance to go long if you don't get any distance out of your starters."

Nolan Belcher starts anew

Junior dominates Bulldogs in his first start in nearly two years for Gamecocks

By CHRIS DEARING
Special to The State

Nolan Belcher has waited for this moment since May 26, 2010. That was the last time the left-hander from Augusta, Ga., made a start for the South Carolina baseball team.

The junior missed the entire 2011 season after having Tommy John surgery and had made 10 relief appearances in 2012.

But he got the starting nod against The Citadel on Tuesday night, and he worked 5²/₃ scoreless innings as the Gamecocks defeated the Bulldogs, 8-0, in front of 7,129 fans at Carolina Stadium.

“(Belcher) has had some good innings for us,” USC coach Ray Tanner. “He hasn’t had as many opportunities as we wanted to give him. His (bullpen sessions) have been good, and (pitching) coach (Jerry) Myers made the suggestions that we get him the mound for this start and get him 75 pitches. He looked really good to me.”

The Bulldogs had four base runners against Belcher. He had one perfect inning — the first — but he never allowed the Bulldogs more than one base runner in an inning. He allowed the leadoff hitter to reach safely in the second, third and fourth inning, but only one of those base runners reached second base.

“I was excited about getting back out there in a starting role,” Belcher said. “I was trying to get ahead early in the count and get some ground balls and let my defense work for me.”

Belcher (2-1) left after 86 pitches — his longest outing since going six innings against Furman on March 6, 2010. He struck out seven and allowed three hits and one walk. It was Belcher’s first victory since Feb. 28 against Presbyterian.

Belcher said getting back to this point after the year-long rehab included months of frustration, but he could gradually see the improvements.

“It wasn’t one defining moment where I felt better,” Belcher said. “Anytime I got back out there, I felt better. I feel like my arm is getting stronger and building my confidence. Each time I get more and more comfortable.”

Tyler Webb and Hunter Privette finished the shutout for South Carolina. The Bulldogs (13-20) got two runners on in the ninth, but Privette induced a line drive to Chase Vergason at second to end the game.

The Gamecocks (24-9) scored all the runs they would need in the third inning after the Bulldogs went to the bullpen. TJ Clarkson was greeted by consecutive singles by Tanner English and Evan Marzilli to start the inning, and they moved to second and third after a balk.

Adam Matthews had a RBI groundout to short to score English as Marzilli moved to third. Christian Walker grounded to Drew DeKerlegand at third base, and he gunned down Marzilli at the plate for the second out.

Walker moved to second on a wild pitch and scored when Joey Pankake ripped a double into the right-field corner.

USC broke the game open with a six-run seventh inning. Walker had a RBI double, and Grayson Greiner followed that up with a grand slam. It was the Blythewood freshman’s third home run and first since he belted two against Clemson on March 4th. It was the Gamecocks first grand slam.

“All year, we’ve struggled with men on base, and I had a 2-1 count and the bases were loaded, so he didn’t have anywhere to put me. So I was looking for a ball up in the zone that I could drive,” Greiner said.

Marzilli drove in the Gamecocks final run with a sacrifice fly.

Walker and English led the way with three hits apiece for USC. English now leads the Gamecocks with 13 multi-hit games on the year.

South Carolina will travel to Florence to take on Francis Marion tonight to open the Patriots new ballpark. First pitch is scheduled for 7 pm with Adam Westmoreland on the mound for USC.

Dantzler's single in 9th saves day

Montgomery shines as USC evens series

By CHRIS DEARING
Special to The State

LB Dantzler ended a night of offensive frustration for South Carolina with one swing of the bat. With one out in the ninth inning, he laced a single to the warning track in centerfield to score Connor Bright from third and give the Gamecocks a 2-1 walk-off victory against Tennessee on Saturday night at Carolina Stadium.

Bright singled to lead off the ninth inning and advanced to second on Grayson Greiner's sacrifice bunt. Bright moved to third on a wild pitch before Chase Vergason was hit by a pitch. Dantzler then drilled the first pitch he saw to the warning track to even the series at one game apiece.

South Carolina (22-9, 4-7 SEC) was 0-for-12 with runners in scoring position until that point and had stranded 15 base runners.

"I was looking for a pitch I could get up," Dantzler said. "Coach Tanner told me to just try and hit a sac fly. He threw me a changeup and left it up a little bit, and I was able to square it up to the middle of the field. It's not a secret, I haven't been swinging it my best. You have to keep swinging and, eventually, it's going to end."

Dantzler — who has been moved up and down the batting order — has been mired in a slump, and Ray Tanner hopes the game-winning hit will be a sign of things to come in the second half of the season.

"I hope and pray that is the situation," Tanner said when asked if something like this could jump-start Dantzler. "Nobody works as hard as LB does, he's just had a difficult time."

The victory didn't waste the effort of South Carolina starter Jordan Montgomery. The freshman from Sumter was making his fifth start — but first in an SEC game — and he was dominant for eight innings. The effort might have solidified Montgomery as the third weekend starter the Gamecocks have been searching for since moving Matt Price back to the bullpen two weeks ago.

Montgomery retired 12 in a row after allowing Tennessee (20-11, 6-5) to take a 1-0 lead after the first two batters. Lead-off batter Will Maddox tripled into the leftfield corner and scored on Zach Luther's RBI groundout to short. T.J. Costen — who started in pace of the injured Tanner English — made a diving attempt on a ball that was tailing away from him but came up empty. His throw to third was in time to get Maddox, but the ball skipped over Dantzler's glove.

"I missed my spot on that fastball there," Montgomery said. "I settled down after that and started throwing my changeup. They were swinging through it so I kept throwing that and mixing in all my other off-speed."

The only other base runners Montgomery allowed were a leadoff single in the fifth inning and an infield single with one out in the sixth.

"The bright spot was what Jordan Montgomery was able to do," Tanner said. "It's very rare in this conference you see a freshman go out there and throw eight innings like he did. That was very special."

The eight innings was the longest of the left-hander's short career. He struck out seven and didn't walk a batter. He gave way to Tyler Webb to start the ninth inning after throwing 99 pitches. Webb pitched a perfect ninth to earn the win and improve to 3-0.

Montgomery felt his relief outing a week ago against Vanderbilt gave him the confidence in making his first SEC start.

"Vanderbilt kind of helped me out," Montgomery said. "I didn't really think I was ready but I figured out I could pitch against them and do good. I had a little bit more pressure after we lost (on Friday) for the series, so I knew I had to come out and try my hardest.”

South Carolina finally tied it in the fourth inning with a little help from the Vols defense. With one out, Dantzler walked, Costen singled and Evan Marzilli reached on an error by Tennessee first baseman Luther. Adam Matthews lifted a fly ball to center field that was deep enough to score Dantzler from third.

The Gamecocks' inability to get a key hit was evident in the first five innings when they stranded 12 base runners — including in the fifth when they loaded the bases with no outs and couldn't score.

Dantzler popped out to short, Costen struck out and Marzilli grounded out to short. USC also left the base loaded in the fourth after leaving two on base in each of the first three innings. Until Dantzler won it late, the Gamecocks did not make the Volunteer pitching pay for the nine walks and three hit batters.

In 11 SEC games, the Gamecocks have stranded 103 runners.

“It's really frustrating,” Dantzler said. “We haven't been getting runners in like we need to. The pitching has really been picking us up all year. We feel a little pressure to get guys in and do a better job of that.”

Tanner, for one, was glad to finally see something fall after leaving 24 runners on in the first two games of the series.

“I know our guys are trying hard, but its obvious we're pressing a little as well,” Tanner said. “We left 15 on but it felt more like 27 to me.”

The two teams will play the rubber match today at 1:30 p.m. Colby Holmes (3-0, 2.84 ERA) will take the hill for the Gamecocks. Tennessee will counter with sophomore right-hander Nick Williams (2-2, 2.32)

South Carolina Gamecocks turn to freshman pitcher Jordan Montgomery as its third No. 2 starter in three weeks

Photo by FILE/MCT Jordan Montgomery has 20 strikeouts and two walks in just 22 innings for the Gamecocks this season.

COLUMBIA — In the two weeks since South Carolina baseball coach Ray Tanner moved Matt Price from starter to closer, the role he occupied last season, the Gamecocks have felt the ripple effects of Price's absence from the second spot in their starting rotation.

The uncertainty started with sophomore Forrest Koumas lasting just one inning and allowing six runs in an 8-2 loss to Florida, the night after Price jogged out of the bullpen to the roars of 8,200-plus at Carolina Stadium.

It continued in last weekend's series at Vanderbilt, as freshman Evan Beal took over the No. 2 starting spot.

Beal wasn't nearly as ineffective as Koumas, though he did allow four runs in 31/3 innings and the Gamecocks fell 12-4.

Neither had previously started a game this season. Now, as USC prepares to host Tennessee this weekend, Tanner is turning to someone who has: freshman left-hander Jordan Montgomery, who has four midweek starts and two relief appearances. In 22 innings pitched, Montgomery's earned-run average is 3.27, and he has 20 strikeouts and two walks.

USC (21-8, 3-6 Southeastern Conference) enters its fourth league series of the season still trying to dig out of a 1-5 start — a process that started by winning two of three at struggling Vanderbilt. The Gamecocks are 7-0 when tonight's starter, ace lefty Michael Roth, pitches. But since Price vacated the No. 2 spot, USC has lost both games by a combined 14 runs.

Montgomery hadn't been tested against a challenging opponent until Sunday's series finale at Vanderbilt, which USC won 6-4 in 13 innings — a potentially pivotal victory for the Gamecocks going forward. Montgomery replaced Price to start the 12th inning, with the game tied at four, after Price allowed just one hit and one run in six innings.

"Just relax," Price recalled telling Montgomery before he went in.

Montgomery, a baby-faced kid who was South Carolina's high school player of the year in 2011, finished the game with a mature performance: two hits, no runs, three strikeouts and a walk.

"We felt like from Day 1 in the fall, Jordan brought a very good presence and poise for a true freshman," Tanner said. "He threw a lot of strikes. He's been a guy that makes you earn what you get. He can hold runners. His fastball has continued to climb. He's been in the upper 80s, around 90 now a little bit. He didn't start that way at the beginning of the fall. We feel good about where he is right now."

Saturday's game will prove if Montgomery can translate the two innings against Vanderbilt — his first work against an SEC team — into a quality start against Tennessee (19-10, 5-4).

s for Price, he is back in the bullpen for good. Or at least that's the plan. He talked to Tanner before the Vanderbilt series and said he only wants to be a reliever if he is going to throw in situations with the game on the line. Tanner agreed with him. The rationale with keeping Price in the bullpen — which was due in part to inconsistent late relief — is that he likely will help the Gamecocks more by throwing twice in a three-game series rather than once.

"I feel like our team, when I come into a game, feels different about the situation, even if they're behind a couple runs," Price said. "I feel like we get a little spark whenever I come into the game."

Price prepared physically in the offseason to become a college starter for the first time, by strengthening his legs and increasing his endurance — things that he believes will still help him now, and make the midseason transition from starter to closer easier than the opposite would be.

"Just from my workout plans, I think it's made going back to the bullpen a little bit easier," he said. "Being more in shape and having a stronger core has really helped me out in the pen."

Walker delivers series victory

Gamecocks slugger's 13th-inning homer helps USC stop weekend skid

By GREG SULLIVAN
Special to the State

NASHVILLE, Tenn. South Carolina slugger Christian Walker seemed to feel some of the weight falling off his shoulders.

It took the junior first baseman one swing to end a day's worth — and maybe a half-season's worth — of frustration.

"Thank God, I was getting tired and this ... 13 innings, whatever it was, it's a lot of baseball," said Walker, whose towering home run in the top of the 13th lifted the No. 11 Gamecocks past Vanderbilt for a 6-4 win on Sunday at Hawkins Field and gave USC its first SEC series win of the season.

Walker's homer was hit hard off Vanderbilt reliever Philip Pfeifer (0-1) but still barely cleared Vanderbilt's 35-foot-high fence in left field.

"Yeah, but it was one of those you kind of just knew. I've hit that ball a couple times," Walker said. "I felt it off the bat and kind of knew I had enough, but it was pretty suspenseful watching it try to get over that white line."

The Gamecocks (20-8, 3-6 SEC) led 4-0 early but gave up three runs in the fifth and one in the sixth to allow the Commodores to tie the game.

Jordan Montgomery (2-0) picked up the win for South Carolina in two innings of relief, following a gutsy, six-inning relief outing from Matt Price.

"Montgomery comes in and pitches pretty well," Gamecocks coach Ray Tanner said with a laugh. "That's impressive for a guy that thought that Vanderbilt was in North Carolina."

"We hit the Tennessee border the other day, and he wanted to know where we were going. He thought Vandy was located in North Carolina. Sometimes, it's better not to know, isn't it?"

USC had a season-high five errors in an exciting but sloppy game. Vanderbilt (11-17, 3-6) finished with three errors. The Commodores had the winning run on third base in the 11th and 12th innings, but Price and Montgomery stranded the runners.

Gamecocks starter Colby Holmes carried a no-hitter into the fifth inning before giving up consecutive singles to start the frame. Holmes left with a 4-1 lead but was charged with three runs.

LB Dantzler hit a solo home run in the fourth inning off Vanderbilt start Will Clinard and added a two-run single in the fifth to give South Carolina the early 4-0 lead.

But after the Commodores battled back, the Gamecocks, aside from their errors, kept their cool as South Carolina capped the season's first half with a win.

"We came out big. We came out and fought every inning today. It might not show on the scoreboard, five errors, but our goals stayed tough and Walker, of course, stayed big for us," Price said.

"We thought we didn't have the best first half (of the season). We won some close games, and we lost some close ones. We'll just go out there and play the way we've been playing."

Added Tanner: "Neither team really wanted to give in. We both played poorly, at times, defensively, but we were gutting it out, they were gutting it out. It's a great road win in a rubber game for us."

"It's only the third (SEC series), I guess, but there's some relief in winning it."

Gamecocks bounce back, beat The Citadel

Jordan Montgomery earns first career win

By NEIL WHITE

nwhite@thestate.com

Two pitches into Tuesday night's game at Riley Park, the South Carolina baseball team had already scored more runs than it did in last season's shutout loss to The Citadel.

Leadoff hitter Evan Marzilli's leadoff bunt single and Joey Pankake's RBI double on those first two pitches by Citadel starter Brett Tompkins gave the Gamecocks a lead they would not relinquish on the way to a 7-3 victory.

It was a stark contrast to the 2011 game played here, which The Citadel won 2-0.

The No. 11 Gamecocks (18-7) bounced back from two straight losses to top-ranked Florida with a solid offensive showing against the Bulldogs (9-15). USC travels to Nashville this weekend for an SEC series against Vanderbilt.

"We've got a little momentum, and scoring seven runs is a big deal," USC coach Ray Tanner said. "You hate to make too much out of it, but we usually score three or four. I told the guys tonight to do a little bit more for our pitching staff. And we did. You score six or seven runs and you have a good chance to win in this day and age of college baseball. It was a good effort by our guys."

With four runs in the fifth inning, the Gamecocks blew open a close game, as Christian Walker's RBI single and Erik Payne's two-run triple highlighted the inning.

USC freshman left-hander Jordan Montgomery put together his best outing of the season to pick up his first career win. He threw 5 2/3 innings and allowed just one run on three hits and no walks while striking out four.

"It feels good every time going out there and getting a good quality start, but this one is definitely a good one getting the W," said Montgomery, who lowered his ERA to 3.60.

In the first inning, Marzilli upped his streak of reaching base to 25 games with the bunt single on the first pitch, and Pankake blasted a double into the right-center gap on the second pitch to score Marzilli, although Pankake was thrown out at third base trying to stretch it into a triple.

"It's good to get a run across in that first inning. We kind of played behind (against Florida) it seemed like all weekend. Getting on them early was great," said Pankake, who left the game in the seventh inning after straining his pectoral muscle during an at-bat.

The injury isn't believed to be serious.

Marzilli, who led USC's nine-hit attack with two hits along with Pankake and Tanner English, also believed the Gamecocks needed to reverse what happened against the Gators.

"Today is one of those days where you want to come out and score some runs and do something you didn't do over the weekend. We were able to do that," Marzilli said. "There are still some things to work on, but today was better. We've just got to keep improving."

USC boosted its lead to 3-0 in the third inning on four hits off Tompkins (0-1) – an infield single by English, a hit-and-run single by Marzilli, an RBI infield single by Pankake, and an RBI double to left field by Brison Celek.

Montgomery didn't give up a hit until Nick Orvin's leadoff single in the fourth inning. Orvin scored on Justin Mackert's RBI double to left to cut the lead to 3-1.

"Knowing I have a little lead, I can just go out there and throw and not have to be as worried about it," Montgomery said. "I was just to eat up some innings and hand it off to the bullpen."

The Bulldogs added their second run on a pinch-hit solo homer by Tyler Griffin off USC reliever Evan Beal in the eighth. They made it 7-3 in the ninth inning when Bo Thompson drilled an RBI double off Adam Westmoreland. But Patrick Sullivan came to get record the final out, which came as a relief to Tanner, especially after last season's result.

"You have to play well down here against the Citadel, and we had a good game," Tanner said.

Back on track: USC tops Florida 9-3

Gamecocks snap out of funk with big win

By NEIL WHITE

nwhite@thestate.com

The top-ranked Florida baseball team had won 18 consecutive games entering Thursday night's series opener against South Carolina.

Scroll to end of story for video highlights.

But the Gators still can't find a way to beat the No. 8 Gamecocks, who had lost four of their past five games before pulling away to a 9-3 victory before a sellout crowd of 8,242 at Carolina Stadium.

South Carolina (17-5, 1-3 SEC) defeated Florida (20-2, 3-1 SEC) in four of five meetings last season, including the final two in the College World Series championship finals. And that didn't change in the new calendar year as the Gamecocks scored four seventh-inning runs to break a 2-2 tie on pinch-hitter Kyle Martin's two-run single and Erik Payne's two-run double.

"We were just excited to play a good game tonight. It's our first SEC win so that's huge for us, especially coming off a loss last night and the four out of five games," USC left-hander Michael Roth said. "I don't think we were trying to make a statement to Florida or anybody. I think we were trying to make a statement to ourselves to prove we can still play and get out of that funk we were in."

USC right-hander Matt Price (3-1), who was tonight's scheduled starter, picked up the win in relief of Roth with 2 1/3 solid innings. It was Price's return to the closer's role, where he earned All-America status last season, after moving into the starting rotation for five games this season.

But after last weekend's sweep by Kentucky, USC coach Ray Tanner knew his team might be better served with Price finishing games again instead of starting them.

"We made a decision earlier in the week that if this game presented itself in at least a tie situation by the seventh, we were going to try to make it happen," Tanner said. "That's sort of how the scenario played out, and he was pretty special when he got there. Will it be permanent? Possibly. We'll see how it unfolds."

Price looked like the guy who saved 30 games over the past two championship seasons.

"I've always felt that (adrenaline rush) coming from the bullpen so it was good to feel that again," he said.

Florida coach Kevin O'Sullivan thought it looked like the Price of old.

"He dialed it up. He's a competitor," O'Sullivan said. "I'm sure he was wanting to be in that situation again."

The Gamecocks tacked on three runs in the eighth. Adam Matthews led the 12-hit attack with three hits, including a two-run homer in the fourth inning. He had gone through a slump earlier in the season and sat out a few games along the way.

"Adam Matthews was a big story for me. He looked comfortable. He really looked comfortable to me," Tanner said. "He took some good swings up there."

The senior captain was pleased that he could contribute in a big way against the nation's No. 1 team.

"It's big for us going forward, and to do against a good team like Florida means a lot," Matthews said. "Each of our guys is excited about what's ahead, but we've got a lot of work to do. We've got room to make improvement."

Florida reliever Steven Rodriguez (3-1) took the loss after allowing a leadoff single to Evan Marzilli to start the seventh inning in front of the hits by Martin and Payne.

The pitchers' duel between Roth and Florida right-hander Hudson Randall ended with neither factoring into the decision. Roth threw 6 2/3 innings and allowed two runs, one earned, on four hits and three walks with five strikeouts. Randall tossed 5 2/3 innings and gave up two runs on seven hits and one walk while striking out a career-high 11.

Florida got RBI singles from Preston Tucker in the third and Austin Maddox in the sixth to forge a 2-2 tie heading into the seventh.

The teams meet in the second game of the series at 7 tonight with USC right-hander Forrest Koumas facing Florida left-hander Brian Johnson.

Even with his starting rotation unsettled, Tanner was happy to get the win after a tough week. He noted that he tried to stay less vocal and less edgy in order to relax his team.

"I thought our maturity was pretty good for a team that had been scuffling," he said. "Our guys were a little more relaxed in there."

Marzilli saves the day with his bat, glove

Junior center fielder has career high 4 RBIs

By NEIL WHITE
nwhite@thestate.com

Appalachian State came into Carolina Stadium ready to slay another giant. South Carolina's Evan Marzilli threw back the Mountaineers' rock.

The junior center fielder drilled a bases-loaded double in the seventh inning that scored the decisive runs and made an incredible leaping catch at the wall to start a game-ending double play as the third-ranked Gamecocks rallied to defeat ASU 6-4 Wednesday night.

The comeback win upped USC's record to 15-1, while the Mountaineers, who defeated No. 13 LSU two-of-three on the road earlier in the season, had their 12-game winning streak snapped to fall to 14-3.

USC coach Ray Tanner appreciates his experienced players such as Marzilli, who has served a key role on two national championship teams.

"You want to see your veteran guys up there and give it your best shot," Tanner said. "It doesn't matter if he's 0-for-4. It doesn't matter if he's 2-for-4. He plays every day. He gives you the same thing every single day. His approach is great. That's all you can ask."

Marzilli's defense also saved one of the Clemson wins on that game's final play, and his sprint and leaping grab on a deep drive to the center-field wall in the ninth off the bat of Daniel Kassouf was equally sparkling. It would have tied the game if it left the park, but ASU baserunner Tyler Zupcic was doubled off second on the play instead.

"Off the bat I thought it was a home run or something I had to jump for, but it stayed in the ballpark and ended up where I could get to it. I was lucky to come up with it," Marzilli said.

The Cranston, R.I., native also came up big at the plate. He ripped a ball into the right-center field gap in the seventh off ASU reliever Chad Farmer (1-1) for three runs to turn a 4-3 deficit into USC's first lead of the game.

"I was looking for a ball I could get extended on and he left it over the plate. I got a pitch I could get the bat on," said Marzilli, whose four RBIs tied his single-game career high. He also extended his streak of reaching base to 16 games.

Junior left-hander Tyler Webb pitched 1 2/3 perfect innings to get his second win. Freshman right-hander Evan Beal came on to get the final two outs to record his third save.

The Mountaineers jumped on USC freshman left-hander Jordan Montgomery for four runs in the first inning thanks to the long ball. After Montgomery allowed singles to Hector Crespo and Zupcic, Will Callaway blasted a three-run shot into the ASU bullpen for a quick 3-0 lead. Callaway, a junior shortstop from Greenville, was a former walk-on in the USC program coming out of high school in 2008 but did not make the team before going to Young Harris JC and then ASU.

One out later, Tyler Tewell ripped a home run over the right-field fence to give the Mountaineers a 4-0 lead. But from that point, Montgomery and three relievers combined to retire 23 consecutive batters through the eighth inning.

"The biggest thing was the bullpen coming out and shutting (them) down like that after the first inning. That's what won us the game tonight," Marzilli said.

Junior first baseman Christian Walker, who had three hits, including an RBI single in the fourth inning to cut the ASU lead to 4-3, cited USC's resilience as a big factor in fighting back.

"That's the good thing about this team. We never hit the panic button," Walker said. "No matter how much we're down or how much we're up, we still play the same, maybe a little bit more energy in the dugout if anything. We're always comfortable. It's a great quality to have as a team, and it's going to win you a lot of games."

USC, which stranded 15 in the game, got one run back in the second off ASU freshman left-hander Jeffrey Springs when LB Dantzler singled with one out and scored on Marzilli's two-out double that dumped into center field. That began the Gamecocks' uphill climb to the win, something that impressed Tanner.

"We fought and we battled, and it was a great game for us to win after getting in that position," Tanner said.

South Carolina travels to Kentucky (18-0) this weekend for its first SEC series of the season.

COLUMBIA -- Erik Payne felt surprised when South Carolina baseball coach Ray Tanner approached him Thursday and asked him to take some ground balls at second base.

Yes, the position remained unclaimed. But Payne, a sophomore, had played only third base and left field since coming to USC, and hadn't played second since his sophomore year of high school in Richmond, Va. He hadn't played much at USC, period -- just nine games and two starts last year, and three games and one start this season.

Yet, you couldn't have pegged him as an inexperienced second baseman this weekend, as the Gamecocks swept a three-game series against Princeton and improved to 13-1 with Sunday's 3-1 victory.

Payne on Sunday went 2 for 3 with a run-scoring double and a solo home run, the first of his career. For the weekend, he was 4 for 9 with three put-outs and seven assists, including a 6-4-3 double play Friday with freshman shortstop Connor Bright, a Wando High graduate who, like Payne, started all three games this weekend.

With two non-conference games this week, against Charleston Southern and Appalachian State, before Southeastern Conference play begins Friday at Kentucky, Tanner is still searching for consistency from his middle infield.

Shortstop Joey Pankake has been spotty, and Tanner has yet to find an everyday second baseman among Chase Vergason, TJ Costen and Bright. Tanner offered no guarantees Sunday that Bright or Payne has nailed down either job, but, he said, "I'll probably continue to give them an opportunity to play."

That's all Payne wants. He certainly wasn't going to get it last year at third base, because the fiery Adrian Morales held that spot, or this year there, because LB Dantzler has seamlessly taken over for Morales. And while second base feels different to Payne, he said, "It's a lot better feeling than being behind LB."

When Tanner had Payne take ground balls at second this week, he thought Payne actually looked more comfortable than he looked at third base. But that wasn't the main reason Tanner decided to give Payne a shot this weekend. More than anything, Tanner admired Payne's resilience.

"Quite honestly, there were a couple points last year where it was really difficult for him," Tanner said. "He got frustrated a little bit. But he keeps grinding it out. Guys that do that sometimes surface. He never went away. He had some tough days at practice last year and, really, I thought was immature a little bit as a freshman, which happens to a lot of them.

"But he's much more physical now. He has a different body than he did a year ago. I kind of threw him in there because I thought he was the right kind of person."

I didn't know that he would have a pretty good weekend for us, but I did it because of the person that he is and I thought he deserved a chance."

Payne also showed this weekend that he could give USC the offense it had been lacking at second base - something Tanner figured might happened based on how well Payne hit in practice, when Payne looked much less tentative than he appeared last year.

"Morales is a tough cookie to hang around with when you're young," Tanner said. "I think he was a little hard on (Payne), and being new, I'm not sure that Payne understood it on a daily basis. The game was more difficult for him than it ever had been, like it is for most freshmen.

"I've seen it many, many times in my career, where a guy just sticks with it, and at first you're thinking (he's) probably not going to be an every-day guy. But then when he came back this fall, I said, 'He looks a little bit different to me.' He had a little more confidence. The ball was coming off his bat. He'll get some other cracks (at playing time). He may or may not be the guy down the stretch, but I'm happy for what he's done and he deserves to be there."

Sean Sullivan: The Gamecocks' comeback kid

USC outfielder and DH happy to be playing baseball again after severe elbow injury

By NEIL WHITE

nwhite@thestate.com

In the fifth game of the 2011 baseball season, Winthrop center fielder Sean Sullivan lined up a fly ball to make a throw home with a Kent State runner on third base tagging up in an attempt to score.

Sullivan caught the baseball and unleashed his throw, but it never reached home plate.

"As soon as I got to the release point, I heard three pops and the ball ended up going toward the third-base line into left field," he said. "I just looked down, and my arm was already throbbing and starting to bruise. I knew something was really wrong."

Not only had Sullivan torn the ulnar collateral ligament in his elbow, he also had torn his flexor mass muscle away from his elbow. In an instant, he had gone from a promising baseball career to the prospect of never playing the game again because of the severity of the two injuries.

Fast-forward to today, and Sullivan is back on a baseball field, this time in a South Carolina uniform, after a complicated surgery and an arduous rehabilitation period. He has an opportunity to revive his career where his brother, Patrick, plays and his father John once did.

John, who played at USC from 1981-84 and coached under June Raines from 1985-95, can't quite believe how things have worked out for Sean. Chris Mazoue, an orthopedic surgeon affiliated with the USC Sports Medicine Center, told the family after the 5 ½-hour surgery that Sean might not be able to throw a ball more than 45 feet.

So when John watched Sean drive in the go-ahead run in the 11th inning of last week's 3-2 win against Clemson, he said it was a contemplative moment for the entire family.

"The other night I was more appreciative that he didn't have to end it that day at Winthrop. He still has the opportunity at least to play a little bit, and he can end up on a positive note," John said. "That's all I was thinking. He had that opportunity, and it worked out. There's no way I would have thought that was going to happen."

Sean came to USC after graduating over the summer from Winthrop with a degree in sport management. Because he was able to play only two seasons in Rock Hill because of season-ending injuries in two of his four seasons, he retains two seasons of eligibility with the Gamecocks after being granted a hardship appeal. In his two seasons as a starting outfielder for the Eagles, he hit .307 with nine home runs and 78 RBIs.

Now working on his master's degree, Sean didn't know if he'd be able to make USC coach Ray Tanner's 35-man roster unless his elbow was sufficiently healed. He was prepared to step away from the game.

"I'm going to play as long as I can," Sullivan said.

Tanner was more than willing to let Sean rehab in fall camp. He loved the 6-foot-3, 195-pound outfielder's bloodlines, which included his mother Sue's time as a volleyball player at USC in 1983-84, and Sean's successful stint at Winthrop.

"You're talking about a true baseball family. His dad coached, his dad played, his mom was an athlete. I've got great respect for Patrick," Tanner said. "They've been around athletics. They understand it, they get it. Normally, those kids have a little bit of an edge. They have that savvy. They learn it growing up, and it gives coaches a little more comfort having guys like that."

Patrick redshirted as a freshman but has been a part of the two national championship teams as a right-handed pitcher. Both he and his brother played together on a state championship team at A.C. Flora High as well as for the Columbia Blowfish summer collegiate team. The two fought like typical brothers as youngsters but are happy to be reunited.

"I was glad he made the decision to come here. He's always been a Carolina guy," Patrick said. "I know he's always kind of wanted that experience. It's good for him to get that chance."

The two push each other to get better and are candid about the other's performances. Their parents also love that they can go to one place and watch their sons play instead of having to split up. The sons like that as well, especially given the support they've received over the years from John and Sue.

And Sean, despite being 18 months older, appreciates Patrick's status in the program.

"He's one of the veteran guys. I'm one of the new guys just trying to fit in. It's been good," Sean said.

Tanner called Sean's leadership skills an important part of what he has brought to this team, which has its share of freshman starters.

"He has a makeup that's pretty good for our team, as evidenced by a pretty big hit last Friday night. And he's probably going to find himself in some critical situations as we move forward," Tanner said. "We needed him on this team. He brings a lot of those intangibles that are important to a team. His presence is important to me. He can produce on the field as well."

Sean, who is 2-for-11 in four games, will likely serve primarily as a designated hitter — although he did play a few innings in right field in the opening series — with his arm not yet back to 100 percent. He's willing to fill whatever role Tanner needs filled, something that John attributes to his son visualizing the end of his baseball days last year.

"It has really changed his outlook, to be honest. I can see it in the way he approaches things," John said. "Now he's much more relaxed. He's appreciating it a lot more. He doesn't take it for granted any more."

The three Sullivan men each appreciate the other's accomplishments, although there is some mocking debate over who's the best player in the bunch. Patrick, who has a 2-0 record and 1.38 ERA over 17 appearances the past two seasons, would love to face his dad and his brother.

"I think I could personally strike both of them out all the time, every time," Patrick said. "And I'm sure they both think they could hit a home run off me every time."

Both sons have heard the stories from their father, who batted .279 — including .341 in 1982 — with 16 homers, 100 RBIs and 28 stolen bases in his four-year career. John played on two CWS teams (1981-82) and hit a grand slam against Oklahoma State at Rosenblatt Stadium in 1982.

"My dad thinks he is (the best player of the three)," Sean said. "We don't have to discuss that. I could have told you that he'd say that."

Of course, John says the young guys don't appreciate his era.

"They're of the opinion that anything that happens now is a thousand times better than when I was playing out there," he said.

Now that all three are wearing garnet at Carolina Stadium, everybody is happy.

"It would mean I could actually be a part of the family," Sean said. "I've never even been to a regional in four years, and my brother has two national title rings and my dad has two College World Series rings. I just sit at the table and talk about my state championship ring, and that's about it."

Gamecocks' old, new leave Tigers blue

Veterans, rookies propel South Carolina 9-6

BY NEIL WHITE

nwhite@thestate.com

With wins on consecutive days against Clemson, the South Carolina baseball team clinched this season's series against its top rival. And for the second day in a row, the Gamecocks did it with key contributions from veterans and newcomers.

In the 9-6 victory Saturday afternoon before a sold-out Carolina Stadium crowd, senior outfielder Adam Matthews and freshman pitcher Evan Beal gave the fans a mix of the old and the new.

Matthews collected a pair of hits, including a three-run homer in the third inning that provided the eventual margin of victory, while Beal tossed four effective innings in relief to keep the Tigers from mounting a comeback.

Beal, a right-hander from Fairfax Station, Va., and eighth-round draft pick of the Kansas City Royals, liked being able to step in and show what he could do in a big situation. After allowing three hits and striking out five, he picked up his first career win.

"You get the adrenaline pumping and you feel good about yourself," Beal said. "Whether you're a senior or a freshman on this club, it doesn't really matter. We're all contributing to a common goal to win a game."

The teams play the final game of the series at 2 p.m. today at Doug Kingsmore Stadium in Clemson. USC right-hander Colby Holmes will face Clemson right-hander Kevin Pohle.

The third-ranked Gamecocks improved to 9-0 on the season — and extended to 19 a winning streak that dates to last season — while the No. 15 Tigers fell to 4-4. USC has won 16 of the past 22 games between the two dating to the start of the 2007 season.

Matthews, who turned down a pro offer from the Baltimore Orioles last summer, hit his blast in the third inning to give USC a 6-2 lead that knocked Clemson starter Dominic Leone (2-1) out of the game. Matthews' first homer of the season, which sailed over the center-field fence, followed a walk to Kyle Martin and infield single by Joey Pankake. After starting the season with a .174 average in the first eight games, Matthews was thrilled to come up big.

"It's finally coming together," he said. "I just continued to stay positive. This is a humbling game, so you've got to take the good with the bad and the bad with the good. It's just showing up every day, trying to get better and making small adjustments."

That the payoff came against Clemson meant even more.

"I've been a part of this rivalry for four years," he added. "It's intense, it's a great atmosphere and it's great college baseball."

More important, he's excited how the team is blending together, especially with so many newcomers contributing.

"Those guys have really come around," Matthews said. "They've gained some experience, especially this Clemson series. They get to see what it's like to play in front of a bunch of fans and experience something they might not have done before."

Third baseman LB Dantzer, a junior college transfer, hit his team-leading third home run, a solo shot in the second for USC's first run. Freshman designated hitter Kyle Martin banged out a pair of hits. Freshman outfielder Tanner English had a pair of hits and an RBI.

But the veterans did their part, too. First baseman Christian Walker doubled in a run, and left-hander Nolan Belcher recorded the final out of the game for his second consecutive save. But it all boiled down to Beal making his pitches — using a fastball, slider and curve — to keep Clemson from mounting a serious charge.

“We expected him to make an impact for us as a freshman, but it would be a little bit tough for me to say I expected him to do what he did today against a team as good as Clemson,” USC coach Ray Tanner said. “He went out there in a very difficult situation and got eight or nine in a row. He gave us a chance to keep the game where it was, and that was impressive. He had pretty good poise out there.”

USC starter Matt Price couldn't make it out of the fifth inning, which made Beal's emergence more important.

Clemson coach Jack Leggett saluted Beal's breaking pitches, but he believed his team's shaky pitching proved the difference in allowing six early runs.

“We just didn't pitch very well in the second and third innings and let the game slide away from us,” Leggett said.

Clemson third baseman Richie Shaffer had an RBI double in the fifth and a two-run homer in the ninth, but it wasn't enough to get the Tigers back in the game. Senior shortstop Jason Stolz, who had a two-run single in the second inning, also cited Clemson's failure to get enough key hits.

“The key thing in these series is they're so emotional and so intense that you've got to take advantage of every time you get runners on base,” Stolz said “The team that comes out on top is the one with the guys who get hits in clutch situations. Unfortunately, we couldn't get enough of those today. We got behind and weren't able to claw back in.”

Stolz hopes his team can get enough hits to salvage a win in today's finale to avoid a sweep. Beal, meanwhile, hopes the USC pitching can keep doing what it has done for the past two days.

“They've got good hitters, and we know it,” Beal said. “But if we fill up the zone and play our game, we know we can win.”

Pankake makes the most of special day

Freshman hits his first home run

By NEIL WHITE

nwhite@thestate.com

The South Carolina baseball team found a fitting way to celebrate National Pancake Day.

Freshman shortstop Joey Pankake hit a solo homer in the fourth inning to provide the margin of victory in a 2-1 victory against Presbyterian on Tuesday afternoon at Carolina Stadium. He drilled the ball over the fence in left-center field for the first homer and RBI of his young career to give the No. 3 Gamecocks their first lead of the day, which four USC pitchers made stand up.

Pankake admitted that his special day ended as well as it started.

"I got to go get me some free pancakes today at IHOP so that was pretty fun," he said. "I always do that back home in Easley. I have for the past few years. It started the day off nice."

USC coach Ray Tanner continues to see steady progress from Pankake, who was drafted out of Easley High by the Texas Rangers last summer, on the offensive and defensive end.

"He's just gotten more comfortable. He's a guy that we recruited because we thought he was really good, and he is," Tanner said. "The ability is there. He's got a good arm, he's got some power, and he can run pretty good. He does seem to be playing a little more relaxed, which is a good thing. You feel like when a ball is hit his way that he's going to make a play."

The Gamecocks upped their record to 7-0 with their first mid-week win of the season, while the Blue Hose dropped to 0-8. But baseball is unlike other sports, where a good opposing pitcher on the mound can neutralize any team. PC freshman left-hander Beau Dees, who was making his first start, handcuffed the Gamecocks, allowing two runs on four hits with one walk and five strikeouts over 7 1/3 innings.

"Beau Dees was impressive. I told the young man after the game that if you pitch that well, you deserve to win. He did everything he could to keep Presbyterian with a chance to win the game," Tanner said. "I've been in this game a long time, and this riddle has never been solved. Those lefties just continue to do that. They've been carving up people for a long, long time."

But Pankake solved him in one at-bat.

"He was keeping us off-balance," Pankake said. "I was trying to get the bat to the ball and put something in play to get something started. It just happened to go out."

USC left-hander Jordan Montgomery, who also was making his first start, pitched four solid innings, although he gave up a first-inning run, and three relievers pitched shutout baseball the rest of the way.

Junior left-hander Nolan Belcher pitched 2 1/3 scoreless innings of relief to pick up his first win since beating Wofford in May of 2010. He missed the 2011 season because of Tommy John surgery.

"It feels good to get back out there and get an opportunity," Belcher said. "It's fun pitching, so I'm glad to be back. I was trying to come out of the bullpen in a tight game and throw strikes and get ahead and let my defense work for me."

Junior right-hander Ethan Carter also pitched 2 1/3 scoreless innings, while junior left-hander Tyler Webb got the final out for his first save.

"Once again, the pitching staff did a heck of a job for us to keep us in a position to win," Tanner said. "We needed for those guys to be good. There was no cushion today.”

The Blue Hose took a 1-0 lead in the first when Gabe Grammer, who led off with a single, scored on Tony Micklon's one-out bloop single. The Gamecocks tied the game in the third on a leadoff triple to second baseman T.J. Costen, who scored on Evan Marzilli's RBI groundout.

USC plays No. 15 Clemson (4-2), this weekend in a three-game series, but Belcher said the Gamecocks weren't overlooking the Blue Hose.

“We definitely weren't looking ahead at all,” he said. “We knew PC was going to come in here and give us a good game. They've played us tight ever since I've been here.”

USC tops Elon after allowing just seven hits in the series

For most of the weekend series against Elon, the South Carolina dugout was quieter than usual.

With a no-hitter going through 8.2 innings in Game 1, and then another no-hitter going until the fifth in Game 2, none of the players could talk about the no-hitters so as to not jinx them.

"You think about it, but at the same time, you want to try to get it out of your head as soon as possible," said first baseman Christian Walker. "You don't want to sit there and blame yourself for it (not happening) just because you were thinking about it."

Though the Gamecocks would ultimately get through the weekend without their first no-hitter since 1975, they would sweep the Phoenix by scores of 8-1, 3-2 and 6-0, respectively, behind dominating starting pitching.

Though USC coach Ray Tanner said he wasn't engrossed in getting a no-hitter in the fourth and fifth games of the season, he was happy with his pitching after USC had 32 strikeouts and allowed just seven hits over the series.

"I think it's the reason we've had a chance to win our games," Tanner said. "We've played pretty good defense, but we haven't been a potent team offensively. We scored some runs and we won, but we've been able to win our games because of our pitching staff."

All three starting pitchers were on a restricted pitch count, just as they were for the opening series against Virginia Military Institute. Though Tanner said he left Friday starter Michael Roth in an inning longer than he wanted to, he pulled Saturday starter Matt Price after he threw 81 pitches through five innings.

Price, who said his arm tired toward the end of his first outing against VMI, allowed just one hit and struck out a career-high eight batters. He and reliever Tyler Webb combined for 16 strikeouts.

In his first outing, Price struggled with his command, hitting three batters and walking another three, though he didn't allow a hit and had seven strikeouts. Against Elon, Price issued just one walk.

"You're only as good as your last start," Price said. "I just wanted to go out there and prove everybody wrong."

While the Phoenix was able to avoid the shutout in the first two games of the series with late-game rallies, USC got its shutout in Game 3 behind Colby Holmes' start. He pitched 5.2 innings, striking out six, walking three and allowing just three hits.

Look Back, Look Ahead: Freshmen impact

Fourteen new players saw action for the first time in a South Carolina uniform during this past weekend's three-game sweep over VMI.

While that may not sound unusual, consider that nine of those first-time performers were true freshmen. USC started five true freshmen in the second game of Saturday's doubleheader, a 13-1 win, a nod to the impressive array of young talent on the 2012 roster.

USC coach Ray Tanner is known for relying more on older players, so his extensive reliance on younger players throughout the course of the weekend was a bit out of the ordinary.

Over the course of the three games, 45.5 percent (46-of-101) of the total at-bats by Gamecock hitters were taken by true freshmen. Four true freshmen, including the designated hitter, started the season-opener.

"I don't think I've ever started four freshmen," Tanner said. "That can be dangerous. They're good players, but they don't have experience. That's the key factor. Hopefully, they get that experience and get into the comfort zone very quickly. You have to really grow quickly when you have young guys."

Freshman catcher Grayson Greiner had an impressive debut by hitting .400 (4-for-10) in three games. He had two hits in the opener and gunned down the potential tying run at second base in the ninth inning. He was also 2-for-4 with a double and run scored in the 13-1 win on Saturday.

"Grayson has an incredible future here," USC associate head coach Chad Holbrook said Monday on 107.5 The Game. "We think the world of him. For a freshman to come in and catch the way he caught and hit in the middle of our lineup, that was certainly an impressive feat. We're very pleased with Grayson's development. We really like the way he catches, but he also swings the bat very well, too. He'll be in the middle of our lineup going forward."

Evan Beal, Connor Bright, TJ Costen, Tanner English, Kyle Martin, Jordan Montgomery, Joey Pankake, Joel Seddon and Greiner are the nine true freshmen that saw action on opening weekend. Redshirt freshman Drake Thomason also played.

English went 3-for-11 in the series and made the top defensive play of opening weekend when he threw out a VMI runner at the plate in a key spot during the lid-lifter of Saturday's doubleheader. English is best known for his speed, but he possesses a cannon arm as well.

"That was a big play, no question about it," Tanner said. "He can play defense, he can run and he can throw with the best of them. We've had some guys come through this program like Marcus McBeth and Jackie Bradley Jr. and Tanner that can make a play (with their arms). It's hard to get an assist from the outfield. There aren't many. He came up with a big one and gave us a chance to win."

English tallied two hits in the opener, collected a RBI single in the 3-2 victory on Saturday and finished his weekend with two runs scored and an RBI in the final game. Not bad for a guy playing major college baseball for the first time in front of a combined weekend total of 25,000 fans.

Freshman Joey Pankake started all three games this past weekend at shortstop.

the 13-1 victory. Martin is stuck behind Christian Walker at first, so his playing time might be limited in 2012. Starting next season, though, he should be USC's starting first baseman.

"The more at-bats we give Kyle Martin, the more he's going to be comfortable," Tanner said.

CARTER COUNTRY: Junior right-hander Ethan Carter returned to the mound for USC for the first time since the 2010 College World Series, in relief of Matt Price on Saturday, and was credited with the victory in the 3-2 win.

After taking the mound with the bases loaded and no outs in the top of the sixth, Carter hurled a career-high four innings for USC. He gave up a run on a single but got a huge boost when English threw out the potential go-ahead run at the plate.

Carter, who pitched last year at Louisburg (N.C.) College, fanned six of the 13 VMI batters he faced. With his patented slider working flawlessly, 32 of the 42 pitches Carter threw were strikes, an impressive strike percentage of 76.2 percent.

"My job was to go in there and pound the strike zone," Carter said. "I felt pretty good with all my stuff. It was nice being back out there. I told the guys (Friday) in the locker room that it felt good to put the uniform back on again."

ELON COMES CALLING: USC will return to action at 3 p.m. on Friday in the opener of a three-game series against Elon, whose program has risen in the Division I ranks in recent years. The Phoenix finished last season 36-21 overall, 23-7 in the Southern Conference.

Elon hosted a four-team tournament this past weekend and won all three games, beating Akron on Friday in the season-opener before sweeping George Mason on Saturday.

Game times for the Elon series are 3 p.m. Friday and 1:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

NOTES

* It might be a new season, but one thing remains the same for USC - great pitching. In the three wins over Elon, 11 pitchers saw action and combined for 36 strikeouts and just four walks in 27 innings. They compiled a 1.33 ERA while VMI hitters batted just .121 for the weekend with only one extra-base hit and 11 total hits.

* Junior left-hander Tyler Webb won his seventh career game in the 2-1 win over VMI in the opener. Webb's last win came on May 17, 2011, in a 9-5 win over UNC Asheville. Webb relieved starter Michael Roth and worked 2 1-3 scoreless innings with just one hit and struck out four.

* USC is ranked second in the nation in college baseball attendance after opening weekend averaged 7,751 fans per game.

* Junior Evan Marzilli was USC's leadoff hitter in all three games this past weekend and hit .500 (6-for-12) with a .538 on-base percentage. Marzilli enjoyed a 3-for-4 day at the plate and scored the game-winning run in the opener. He went 3-for-4 with a triple, a run scored and two RBIs in Saturday's 13-1 win.

* In addition to Beal, Bright, Costen, English, Greiner, Martin, Montgomery, Pankake and Seddon, other players debuting for USC this past weekend were third baseman LB Dantzler, right-hander Hunter Privette, outfielder Sean Sullivan, Thomason and second baseman Chase Vergason.

* USC's 16-hit total in the 13-1 win over VMI on Saturday represents the most hits by a Gamecock team since April 24, 2011, when the Gamecocks tallied 18 hits in a 13-4 win over Mississippi State. It is also

"Tanner English played a lot this weekend and got into a lot of situations," Tanner said. "He beat out a double-play ball (Saturday). This was valuable for him. We've been practicing since the fall, but it's not the same as cranking it up this weekend."

Costen belted his first career homer, a two-run shot in the eighth inning, and scored two runs in the second game on Saturday.

In the series finale, Martin started at first base and went 3-for-5 with a double, RBI and two runs scored in

Back to business: Gamecocks win opener

Dantzler introduces himself with timely hitting

By NEIL WHITE
nwhite@thestate.com

The South Carolina baseball team honored many of its heroes from last season's national championship team before Friday's game, but a new hero emerged by the time the 2012 season opener ended.

LB Dantzler, a junior third baseman from the State College of Florida, laced a two-out single into center field in the eighth inning to give the two-time defending champs a 2-1 win over VMI before a sellout crowd of 8,242 at Carolina Stadium.

His first hit could not have come at a better time in a game that settled quickly into a pitchers' duel — a scene reminiscent of last season when the Gamecocks won so many close games late with timely hits and strong pitching.

"It's pretty special," Dantzler said. "I'm just glad I could help the team win. That's always the most important thing, getting the win. I'll definitely remember it for probably the rest of my life."

Inserted into the cleanup spot, Dantzler impressed coach Ray Tanner, who began his 16th season at the helm and watched his team win an opener for the 14th straight season. Tanner liked how his newcomer handled the pressure, especially the way he took a 0-2 pitch from VMI reliever Alan Watts and lined it sharply.

"He's a new player, but he's comfortable with the bat in his hand," Tanner said. "We threw him in the middle of the order right away. He had a good preseason. But it was a big swing for us after being down in the count. It's great to see."

The hit drove in leadoff man Evan Marzilli, who began the rally with a bunt single for his third hit of the day and moved to second on Adam Matthews' sacrifice bunt.

"I wanted to see where the infielders were going to play. If they were playing me back, I was going to do that," Marzilli said. "That was my original intention. The key thing was just getting on base and getting that run across."

The junior center fielder also likes the look of his new teammate.

"He's a great hitter," Marzilli said. "Hopefully, he'll keep on delivering and get some key base hits like that."

Junior left-hander Tyler Webb picked up the win with 21/3 innings of scoreless relief. Sophomore right-hander Forrest Koumas, the team's new closer, got the final two outs for his first save. In a tight game, Tanner had to go with veteran arms to finish things.

"The mission today was to put the guys out there that have a little bit of experience," he said. "They did a nice job for us."

USC senior left-hander Michael Roth left after 89 pitches over six innings. He gave up one run on four hits while walking none and striking out six. VMI right-hander Coby Cowgill matched Roth with seven solid innings. The only run he allowed was unearned, as he gave up seven hits and walked one.

With those two pitchers starting, Tanner expected a low-scoring game.

"I've been anticipating all week Cowgill was going to be difficult. He's a veteran guy and had some good games last year. He was very efficient," Tanner said.

But the coach also knows that's the way of the world in college baseball with lower-scoring games the result of new bats introduced last season.

"Runs are hard to come by. The ball stays in the park. Not too many swings are going to leave the yard any more," Tanner said. "You've got to play defense and score when you have an opportunity. We're delighted we were able to win a game late today."

VMI took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when Cameron Walker drilled a one-out single and scored on a bloop single by Drew Bryan into left field.

The Gamecocks got the run back in the third. Junior second baseman Chase Vergason hit into a fielder's choice. With two outs, Marzilli singled to center to put runners on first and second before a wild pitch and a passed ball scored Vergason.

With six new players starting, it took the No. 3 Gamecocks some time to relax, especially in front of the big crowd. Dantzler admitted to some butterflies.

"Everybody's a little nervous. About the fourth inning, after we made a few plays, we started getting settled in," Dantzler said. "After the first inning or two, I kind of settled in and it just kind of became baseball after the first at-bat."

He noted the former players have been helpful in the transition.

"Scott Wingo has been real good talking to me about what to expect. All of them have just been kind of hanging around and helping you get ready," Dantzler said.

The second game of the series is at noon Saturday. The starting time was pushed up due to potential inclement weather later in the day. Junior right-hander Matt Price will draw the start for USC.

Healthy again, Matthews eyes big year

Talk about it in The Insiders Forum

When Adam Matthews has been healthy, he's been at his best.

But last season was a struggle for the White Knoll High School graduate as a bothersome hamstring injury robbed him of half the season.

Matthews is healthy again after a painstaking rehab process - he bounced back strong in the fall and the momentum has continued into preseason camp - and ready to take over full-time in right field.

"I feel good to go, physically and mentally," Matthews recently said. "I've finally overcome everything and getting back the speed I had. It has taken forever. I'm excited just like everybody else about the season and I feel like I can go out there and give it my all. Hopefully, I can stay healthy the entire year."

On Friday, he'll take the field after being bestowed with a prestigious title shared with Michael Roth and Matt Price - team captain.

"It's a great honor," Matthews. "These (younger) guys have really trusted me. I hope to be their captain this year and show them the ropes."

When healthy, Matthews is one of the fastest players on the team, but even he acknowledges freshman Tanner English is a little bit quicker. With Matthews, English and Evan Marzilli expected to challenge for the three starting spots in the outfield, few balls hit by the opponents should fall into the gaps.

"That kid can run", Matthews said. "Back when I first got here, I could give him a run for his money. We have a good group of athletic, fast guys. We have a great all-around athletic club. It's fun out there running around. The ground we can cover (is amazing). Not many balls will drop."

English, a freshman from Murrels Inlet (St. James High), has impressed Matthews with his physical skills in the field.

"He's a great defensive outfielder," Matthews said. "And he's made a lot of strides at the plate as well. With his speed, he just needs to continue putting the ball on the ground and running. He has made a lot of progress since the fall. He's going to have a great career here. The freshmen have really come in and showed what they have to offer and showed their athleticism."

Hobbled by the strained hamstring, Matthews was limited to 34 games last season as USC won its second straight national title, compiling a .264 batting average with two homers and 14 RBIs in 110 at-bats.

Even though he couldn't play, Matthews sought to turn a negative into a positive.

Paul Collins

"It was extremely frustrating," Matthews said. "I had to sit back, which is something no one likes to do and something I wasn't very familiar with. But I learned to work through it. I got some coaching experience being on the bench. When I saw someone doing something that had to be tweaked, I could help them a little bit. Hopefully, I helped a couple of guys out. It was frustrating, but I got over it."

But Matthews was healthy enough to score one of the most dramatic runs of the year for the Gamecocks. With a spot in the national championship series on the line, Matthews pinch-ran for Brady Thomas in the bottom of the 13th inning against Virginia in Omaha, Neb., on June 24.

Matthews moved to second on a throwing error by the Virginia pitcher before crossing the plate moments later on another throwing error by the same pitcher, when his throw to third base in an attempt to force Matthews sailed wide of the bag.

Adam Matthews scored one of the most dramatic runs of the 2011 season against Virginia in Omaha. Matthews easily raced home to give USC a thrilling 3-2 victory that propelled the Gamecocks into a national title showdown with SEC East rival Florida.

When Matthews stayed injury-free in 2010 as a sophomore, he batted .307 with seven homers and 31 RBIs in 64 games (56 starts). Despite missing a large chunk of the season in 2011, Matthews was selected by Baltimore in the 23rd round of the Major League Baseball draft, but chose to return to school.

USC opens its quest for a three-peat at 3 p.m. on Friday when it hosts VMI in the first of a three-game series at Carolina Stadium.

Even though the Gamecocks will feature several new players in 2012, Matthews insisted the expectations won't diminish. Ray Tanner is well known for his "one day at a time" approach, but the goal for USC remains the same - get to Omaha.

"This is a great program and we want our expectations to be high," Matthews said. "We know what we're capable of doing. To have that pressure on us and for the crowd to want us to succeed at the highest level, that's completely fine with us. We embrace that and want to run with it."

Being a local product from Lexington, Matthews was given the rock-star treatment when he visited his former high school last week for the first time in four years and talked with some of the teachers and students.

His most popular possession? The national championship rings, of course.

"It was kind of surreal. It was a great experience going back and talking to some of the young students and telling them about how I've overcome some adversity," Matthews said. "God has really blessed me since I've been here. It's been a lot of fun."

Quiet confidence of Colby Holmes

Holmes happy to toil in the shadows of his All-American pitching cohorts

By NEIL WHITE

nwhite@thestate.com

Pitching in a rotation that features standouts like Michael Roth and Matt Price might unnerve some pitchers. Not Colby Holmes.

South Carolina's junior right-hander enjoys being one step out of the spotlight.

"Being the low guy in the rotation is a good feeling," he said. "It's great being behind those two All-Americans."

USC coach Ray Tanner says there would never be any reason for Holmes to feel underappreciated.

"He might be overshadowed by a lot of the fans and the attention the program got, but not by the coaching staff or his teammates," Tanner said. "We know what he contributed, and we hope he does a little bit more this year."

After beginning last season in the bullpen, Holmes moved into the weekend rotation in the third SEC series and pitched well enough to stay there. He earned conference pitcher of the week honors for strong performances against Tennessee and Arkansas. He picked up the win with a solid outing against Alabama in the final series of the regular season to help the Gamecocks clinch the SEC championship along with Florida and Vanderbilt.

After a good start against Virginia in the College World Series, Holmes finished the season with a 7-3 record, 3.69 ERA and 77 strikeouts in 851/3 innings.

"Last year was a great experience for me," Holmes said. "It taught me a lot of things that, hopefully, I can carry into this year."

He looks forward to the prospect even if that means pitching the third game of a weekend behind Roth, a senior left-hander who won 14 games last season, and Price, a dominating closer the past two seasons now in the rotation.

"Those guys are going to be showing out in front of me," Holmes said. "I'm like, 'Why can't I show out, too?'"

The 5-foot-11, 200-pounder effectively throws a variety of pitches. He credited learning a changeup during summer collegiate play in Florence after his freshman season as a key for making him a better pitcher.

"I wouldn't say I'm a fireballer, but I throw somewhat hard," he said. "I have four pitches I can throw for strikes, and that was a big key for me last year. It made me real confident."

Holmes, a 47th-round draft pick of the Atlanta Braves coming out of Conway High in 2009, didn't end his freshman season brimming with confidence. After earning the mid-week starting role, he stumbled down the stretch, finished with a 5.33 ERA and was left off the 2010 postseason roster.

He was determined not to let that happen again.

"After not making the postseason roster, that kind of got me down a little bit," he said. "But it just made me want to work even harder so I could get back into that spot. It paid off, and midway through last year, I was starting again. So I just kept working hard. Hopefully, it pans out this year as it did last year."

Tanner said he likes how Holmes has picked up where he left off last season and projects him to be in the conversation with Roth and Price by having a 10-win season.

"He was really good last weekend. He pitched on a weekend when it seemed the bats were jumping a little bit," Tanner said. "His sinker was working. His velocity seems to be a little bit better, and his changeup is good to left-handers. I'd like to see him get into that double-digit win category. He's got a chance. He's a pretty good one."

Holmes shares the confidence of his coach in his own quiet way.

“I could be that guy,” he said.

COLUMBIA, S.C.—Michael Roth can't sit still.

To be certain, Roth does a great many things exceedingly well. Entering his senior year, South Carolina's ace lefthander is the most accomplished pitcher in college baseball, the reigning national ERA champion and a driving force behind back-to-back College World Series titles.

He is an International Business and Marketing double major, with a minor in Spanish, and he boasts a 3.83 grade-point average. He is a dynamo in the weight room, a leader in the clubhouse, and a giver in the community. He has an easy charisma and a natural comedic sense.

But Roth is a fidgeter, a twiddler, an irrespressible bundle of energy. Anyone who has watched South Carolina in the College World Series over the last two years surely recalls image after image of Roth goofing around in the dugout on days he wasn't pitching—and after his outings were completed. He is the rally cap ringleader, the organizer of coordinated cheers and handshakes, the man who lightens the mood when it needs lightening.

"This game's supposed to be fun, especially for us pitchers—we're not doing anything, we've got to find a way to keep us in the game, too," Roth says.

On a Friday in January, Roth takes a seat in the back row of his Marketing 457 class—personal selling. Sporting a day's worth of dark stubble on his chin and dressed in blue jeans, gray Nikes, a white Under Armour Gamecocks polo with black stripes and a lightweight gray national champions jacket, Roth looks like just another South Carolina student bursting with pride about the recent accomplishments of his school's baseball team.

A guest speaker shares his experiences in sales and offers advice; Roth is fully engaged. He takes copious notes—with his right hand, which is the first to shoot up during the ensuing question and answer session.

But his green, plastic chair squeals when he gently swivels in it—frequently—and he occasionally clicks the top of his ball-point pen, or tucks the clip of the pen into his lip.

Later, after a full day of workouts, he lounges casually in South Carolina's media room with a brown towel draped around his neck, talking about his approach to pitching and his upbringing and a dozen other topics that spring up organically during a session with a reporter. It doesn't take long for him to start fiddling with the towel—twirling it idly with one hand, wringing it with both.

Even Roth's workout regimen is tailored to keep his active mind stimulated; he bounces from one exercise to the next, never dwelling too long at any one station. On this day, he starts his workout by running into strength coach Billy Anderson's office and setting a dance song called Super Bass by Nicki Minaj to blare over the speakers in the weight room ("Can't you hear that boom, badoom-boom, boom, badoom-boom bass?").

"If you listened to one of Roth's workout CDs, you'd think a girl's team made it," Anderson says, shaking his head.

Roth's older brother Adam is a personal trainer and has helped him make some adjustments to his training routines. He loves to work out using a broad, heavy "battle rope," even though South Carolina pitching coach Jerry Meyers worries the workout puts too much strain on his shoulders.

Soon he makes his way to an incline bench and lifts 30-pound dumbbells in each hand, from his sides up over his head. After a break, he goes to 60-pounds in each hand.

"That's about as much as I'm comfortable with him doing on this one," Anderson says.

Roth then adds 10 more pounds to each dumbbell and does another set.

Anderson shrugs. "I said that's what I was comfortable with. That doesn't mean that's what he's going to do."

On any given day, Roth alternates his cardio workouts between jumping rope, elliptical machines and running.

"I have to mix it up because I get real bored running," he says. "Like, really bored."

"Michael is just . . . curious," South Carolina media relations maven Andrew Kitick says later, grasping for the right words to describe Roth's personality. "He will engage you in a way that is unusual. He has real awareness."

That combination of personality traits has helped make Roth a darling of South Carolina's oversized media contingent and rabid fan base, and a favorite of his coaches and his teammates. But his emergence as college baseball's figurative and literal poster boy owes even more to his improbable, overnight rags-to-riches transformation and his repeated dazzling performances on the sport's biggest stage. As everyone knows, America loves a triumphant underdog—especially if he has a big personality.

Plenty Of Fans

After meeting at 10:30 a.m. on the spacious concourse at Carolina Stadium—the palatial House that Ray Tanner Built—Roth leads the way to his Honda Accord (call it garnet-colored, with black interior). He turns on the engine, and a hip-hop/electro/dance/pop blend begins blaring through the speakers.

"Sorry—jammin'," Roth says, turning down the volume.

As he drives over some railroad tracks near the stadium, Roth tells the story of his car accident last spring, on his way to South Carolina's game against Clemson, which he started on the mound.

"It's not a bad railroad track, but people in the South can't drive," he explains. So when the SUV in front of him slammed on its brakes going over the tracks, Roth was reaching down to get his parking pass, and he plowed his car up underneath the SUV, resulting in $2,500 of damage to his Accord.

"The police officer gave me a ticket, then shook my hand and said, 'It was a pleasure to meet you,' " Roth recalls with a wry smile.

Strangers are always delighted to meet Roth around Gamecock-crazed Columbia. After eating lunch at a sub shop near the stadium, Roth makes his way to the exit, and a man calls out from a corner booth: "Michael, Michael! Congratulations, Michael."

"Going around town, many people know who he is," says Adam Matthews, Roth's roommate for each of the last four years. "He'll speak to them, and he's really good about taking pictures, signing. He's an easygoing guy, and he's willing to do that stuff."

Later, Roth poses for photos in the baseball office with South Carolina's two national championship trophies, cradling one in each arm. As he's mugging for the camera, South Carolina administrative assistant Kristi Davis calls out from her office, "You're the only one?"

"The only one," Roth answers. "I pretty much won them by myself. No big deal."

He pauses a beat, then turns and explains, "I get plenty of ribbing around here."

The barbs reached a crescendo in Omaha last year, when CWS billboards adorned with a giant action photo of Roth were plastered all around town—and on the side of TD Ameritrade Park.

"I got Tweeted at and somebody told me about it, and I was like, 'Uh-oh,' " Roth says. "The first practice, sure enough—bam!—there it was. And I was like, 'Oh, that's bad.' Then we got up to the stadium and I was on the big one on the side of the stadium, and I was like, 'Ho-oly crap.' So I got plenty of crap."

Roth's path to celebrity makes for a captivating tale. He grew up in Clemson territory—he went to Riverside High in Greer, S.C., outside Greenville—and while he denies that he was ever a fan of the Gamecocks' in-state rival, he admits that because his sister went to Clemson and many of his friends rooted for Clemson, he would cheer for the Tigers when he was young.

"Now I would never root for Clemson. Ever," he says emphatically.

His father, David (a former college baseball player at Binghamton), used to throw him Wiffle balls over and over again in the back yard, and when it got dark they would turn on their flood lights and keep going. David carefully monitored his son's development as a pitcher, prohibiting him from throwing breaking balls until he was almost 13, at which point he could only throw them in his pitching lessons. Roth thinks that helped him develop his killer changeup, but also might explain why his breaking stuff has not progressed as quickly.

Roth's father and his mother—Deborah, who moved to the U.S. from England when she was 13—drilled the importance of academics into their children's heads. Roth says straight A's were simply expected of him.

"My sister was third in her class in high school, and they always said I was smarter than her," Roth says. "But I would be like, 'But I'm cooler than her, Mom!' My sister would always study a lot, and not that I don't study, but I'm the type of guy that can just sit in class and remember most of what was said. I can look it over once or twice and go take a quiz or test. I was blessed with having a very intelligent mind; I got that from my parents."

Over the course of the day, Roth interrupts himself a few times to correct his grammar. That's an imprint of his mother's influence.

"My mom, being English, the typical thing you think of is prim and proper," Roth says. "Well, she would always get on me about the grammar. My mom is amazingly intelligent. I'll admit it: I'm a mama's boy. I talk to my mom on a daily basis . . . We don't talk a whole lot of baseball; she's always been like, if it's a good game, she'll say, 'You played great.' If it was a bad game, she'll be like, 'Wow, you sucked out there.' She's just very honest and up-front, and that's where I think I get a lot of my personality from."

Roth initially wanted to go somewhere far from home for college—traveling is one of his great ambitions, in keeping with his curious mind—but eventually decided to go to South Carolina, primarily as a power-hitting first baseman. Adjusting to college baseball was not easy for him.

"My freshman process was a lot harder than anybody knows," he says. "I went home for fall break not knowing if I wanted to come back. That was because coach Tanner was messing with my swing so much, and I just didn't like it anymore. I'm the type of person that if I don't like it, why am I doing it? I've never been a quitter—ever—so I didn't quit and stuck with it, and I'm glad I did, obviously."

That spring, Roth went just 2-for-13 at the plate. He made more of an impact on the mound, going 1-1, 4.22 in 32 innings, including two starts. But he still remembers getting booed at Carolina Stadium early in his freshman year against Clemson, when he entered a game with two men aboard and walked in a run on eight straight balls.

"So I've been booed here, and I've been cheered here," Roth says. "That process you go through as a freshman—you either learn how to take things in stride, or you can't be successful here."

After spending that summer in the New England Collegiate League, Roth returned to campus still hoping to win the DH job and expecting to pitch as well. One day in fall practice, after Roth finished some defensive work at first base, then-pitching coach Mark Calvi asked him if he'd ever considered dropping to a lower arm slot on the mound.

"I was like, 'No. Why?' I thought he was insane," Roth says. "And he was like, 'Well, just try it.' I wasn't resistant, I was just skeptical, like, 'I don't want to do this. I don't want to do it.' I wasn't excited to be a sidearm thrower. That first couple weeks my arm wasn't feeling right, because it's a different position. There's more stress because you're down like that. I think my body got used to dropping down, but I still wasn't happy. We always joked about the sidearmers: You know when you get dropped down you're only going in for about an out or two. So I was like, 'I really screwed myself back in the fall when I said I'd be OK dropping down.' "

Roth continued to work from his normal high three-quarters slot in bullpens, but South Carolina used him almost exclusively as a sidearming, left-on-left specialist for the bulk of 2010. He made 23 appearances prior to the College World Series, working less than an inning in 21 of them.

"That's probably the most bitter he's ever been," says Tanner, the Gamecocks' 16th-year head coach. "Sometimes he'd get two hitters, or an inning, and he's gone. And I'd try not to make eye contact, because that wasn't enough for him. But that was a tremendous contribution from him."

Using a low-to-mid-80s fastball from his low slot and a sweeping slider, Roth excelled in the lefty specialist role, carrying a 1.37 ERA into Omaha. But he showed what he could do in an extended outing against Bucknell in regionals, working 31/3 perfect innings of relief. He got to use his higher slot against righties.

The Gamecocks lost their CWS opener, and climbing through the loser's bracket taxed their pitching staff heavily. So Tanner turned to Roth to start the first of back-to-back elimination games against Clemson, just expecting the lefty to keep the game close for two or three innings. Instead, he allowed just one run in a complete-game three-hitter, and just like that he was part of College World Series lore.

Roth came back on three days' rest to start Game Two of the CWS Finals against UCLA, limiting the Bruins to a run over five innings in a no-decision, and the Gamecocks won in walk-off fashion in the 11th to capture their first national title.

South Carolina lost its entire weekend rotation after that season, so Roth entered his junior year as the presumptive staff ace, though he had yet to prove he could thrive in a starting role over a full season. But that's just what he did, going 14-3 (tied for most wins in the country) and leading the nation with a 1.06 ERA, to go along with 112 strikeouts and 41 walks in 145 innings.

For the second straight year, he started South Carolina's final game of the season on three days' rest—Game Two of the Finals, this time against Florida. This time, he earned the victory, allowing two runs over 72/3 innings.

His contribution four days earlier might have been even more vital—and not just because he held Virginia's potent offense to one run over seven innings of work in the bracket championship game. Roth's counterpart, No. 2 overall pick Danny Hultzen, was dominant for three innings, recording eight of the first nine outs via strikeout.

"It was like Hultzen was pitching from 22 feet," Tanner recalls. "We had no chance—we couldn't put a ball in play. I think in the third inning he had struck out like six in a row, then somebody fouled one back and our dugout erupted. I'm like, 'What happened? What's Roth doing down there?' Roth got the whole team cheering a foul ball. In the College World Series, he got them cheering a foul ball."

Hultzen wound up exiting after three innings because he was ill, and South Carolina went on to a thrilling 3-2 win in 13 innings. Roth didn't factor in the decision, of course, but he settled the Gamecocks down early on, keeping the dugout from getting dejected.

"I've been around college baseball for a long time, coaching 20-something years. I haven't seen a guy that's been able to work as hard, compete as hard as he does and have as much fun at the same time," Meyers says. "The fun isn't in any kind of negative way. It's always brought something positive to what's going on. It's helping us stay loose when other teams are tightening up, it's helping us compete when things are going good."

Welcome Back

The day after South Carolina's championship parade through Columbia and victory rally in Colonial Life Arena, Roth threw all his clothes in a bag and drove home to Greer. He got a call that day from Brad Tyler, the Indians area scout who had drafted him in the 31st round.

"He said, 'Hey man, how you doing? So, I heard you're going to Spain,' " Roth says. "I said, 'Yeah, I'll be back Aug. 8, so we'll have about a week to negotiate. Talk to you later!'"

He left for Spain the next day. International Business majors at South Carolina are required to spend time studying abroad, so Roth decided he would take the summer off from pitching—he had just thrown 145 innings, after all—to take three classes in Spain, including a course in windsurfing. Roth relished the low-pressure academic workload and slower pace of life in Spain. He spent the bulk of his days relaxing on the beach, reading or listening to music.

When Roth learned via Twitter that Matthews had decided to return for his senior year, keeping his close-knit group of housemates intact, Roth was elated.

"I was like, 'Yes! Hell yeah! Well, I guess I'm going back,' " Roth says. "One thing I was afraid of when I came home from Spain was having to make a decision of staying in school and having one more year of college baseball, or pursuing a dream of professional baseball. Because I didn't know, maybe they didn't sign their second- or third-round guy, and they came up with an extra $500,000. In which case, you look at yourself in the mirror and say, how do you not sign for that? So I was almost scared to come back. In college, I'm still not in the real world."

So Roth returned for one more year in the bubble of Columbia, where he is a beloved folk hero. It's a world where he is free to explore his academic interests, satisfying the appetites of his voracious mind. He places a great value on his relationships with teammates, coaches and friends, and spending another year with them matters to him, just as getting his degree and securing his future after baseball matters.

Meyers and Tanner are convinced Roth has the feel for pitching, determination and moxie to succeed as a big leaguer, despite his underwhelming fastball velocity.

But pro ball can wait.

"He'll tell you, 'I play baseball, but it's not my life,' " Tanner says. "I have a great deal of respect for people like that. Sometimes we get wrapped up with what we're doing, and it possesses us, but he's not like that."

Roth's Twitter profile says only this: "Baseball is something I do, not who I am."

"I want people to see that I'm actually a person too, I'm not just a baseball player who's a robot, like Albert—"I am not machine," he says, referencing a "This Is SportsCenter" commercial featuring Albert Pujols. "When I see people out, they always want to talk baseball, and I would almost rather not talk baseball, I'd rather talk about something else—anything. I think it's good for the fans to see that we have personalities."

Ultimately, Roth's magnetic personality will be as much a part of his enduring legacy as his Omaha heroics.

And that should put even his mind at ease.
