FRESHMAN OF THE YEAR SETH BEER LEADS BASEBALL AMERICA'S 2016 FRESHMAN ALL-AMERICA TEAM

DURHAM, N.C. – Clemson outfielder Seth Beer is Baseball America's 2016 Freshman of the Year. Beer hit .369/.535/.700 with 18 home runs this spring, helping lead the Tigers to the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament title and host a regional for the first time since 2011.

Beer also highlights the Freshman All-America teams. He is joined on the first team by the two other freshmen who were named to Baseball America's regular All-America teams—Texas Christian's Luken Baker (utility) and Mississippi State's Jake Mangum (outfield).

Baker is one of three TCU players to make the Freshman All-America teams. Reliever Durbin Feltman also earned first-team honors, while outfielder Josh Watson claimed a spot on the second team.

Florida State and West Virginia were the only other teams to have multiple honorees. In all, 26 schools are represented on the two teams.

Baker and Florida third baseman Jonathan India were named first-team Freshman All-Americans a year after earning Baseball America High School All-American honors.

The staff of Baseball America selected the Freshman All-America teams.
