* Started the NCAA Tournament Game

Nov. 11, 1998 - South Carolina vs. Charlotte Charlotte, N.C. - Attendance: 461

South Carolina women's soccer coach Sue Kelly is ecstatic about her program's future, though Wednesday night the present was somewhat disappointing.

Carolina, playing in its first NCAA tournament in the program's fourth season, lost 2-0 to Conference USA power Charlotte at the 49ers' Transamerica Field in the tournament's first round. South Carolina ends its season 11-7-1, but with a roster full of freshmen and sophomores, the Gamecocks' future looks bright.

"(UNCC) had a lot of momentum toward the end of the season," Kelly said. "It was a great performance by them. We have a very young team. We were beaten 6-0 in our last game, and I made some changes in our lineup for this game. We certainly want to do this again. We will continue to strengthen our schedule. We won't slow down. We'll continue to move on the foundation our seniors have built."

UNCC's offense was on the attack all night, peppering South Carolina goalkeeper Emily Crain with 18 shots. The 49ers scored on their eighth shot at the 58:15 mark as Meredith Mayo took a pass from Jill Currie and fired in a shot past Crain. Carrie Hughes knocked in a shot with her right knee on a crisp pass from Christina Papp at 75:05 to complete the 49ers' scoring.

South Carolina got nine shots off on goal, with five saved by UNCC keeper Jessica Brooks.

* Started the NCAA Tournament Game

Nov. 16, 2007 - South Carolina vs. Duke Athens, Ga. - Attendance: 903

Officially the game goes down as a tie but for South Carolina's women's soccer team, the season is over.

After a 1-1 standstill through 110 minutes, the Gamecocks fell 4-1 in penalty kicks in the first round of the 64-team NCAA soccer tournament.

"It's an awful way to lose but that is the game of soccer," Shelley Smith said. "Unfortunately we didn't get the job done in PKs."

In penalty kicks, Duke hit its first three to give the Blue Devils a 3-0 lead after USC was unable to get it past GK Alison Lipsher. USC's Kim Miller then put one on the board for the Gamecocks, but the outcome had already been determined.

Officially for the Gamecocks this contest goes down as a tie, but semantics don't change the reality.

"It definitely feels like a loss," Smith said. "In this type of environment it is a loss because you're not able to play again."

The first half was scoreless after each team only mustered one shot on goal. In the second half, Duke's Lorraine Quinn broke the tie with a shot from 20 yards to give Duke the 1-0 lead at the 63:10 mark.

USC answered back two minutes later. Using her speed, USC's Darcel Mollon drew a foul to set up a Brittney Rhoades free kick. From the right corner, Rhoades sent the ball into the goal where SEC Defensive Player of the Year Blakely Mattern was standing to put the ball in the bottom right corner of the net to tie it at 65:29.
