Background and Context

The Maldives consists of 26 natural atolls, comprising of 1,192 small, low-lying coral islands, stretching north to south over a total area of 90,000sq.km. The population of Maldives is 407,660 (Census: 2014) dispersed over 188 islands. These islands do not have surface freshwater. Freshwater resources in Maldives are very scarce and the scarcity is both temporal and spatial. The main natural freshwater resources available in the country are groundwater aquifers that occur in the porous coral sands and rainfall.

Groundwater lenses in the islands lie at an average depth of 1-1.5 m below the ground surface. They exist as thin fresh water lenses floating on top of the underlying saline water. Traditionally drinking water was abstracted from these shallow aquifers using hand-dug open wells. However, in many inhabited islands of Maldives, fresh groundwater has been depleted as a result of salt-water intrusion due to over-extraction of fresh groundwater. The shallow depth of the groundwater lenses of the islands makes this freshwater resource vulnerable and susceptible to contamination from land-based human activities. Hence, people are reluctant to use groundwater for drinking or cooking as the quality has deteriorated. Most of the people in the atoll rely on rooftop harvested rainwater for potable purposes. These rainwater harvesting systems are a combination of household and community collection and storage systems.

Rainwater harvesting is widely practiced in the atolls. In the pre-2004 tsunami period, only 35 percent of households had rainwater tanks. After the tsunami, each household in the Maldives was supplied with a 2500L high-density polyethylene (HDPE) rainwater tank.

Climate change is causing adverse impacts and posing challenges on water security in the country. Warming temperatures, changes in precipitation patterns, and sea level rise have affected and will likely continue to affect water supply and quality. Each year several islands have reported shortage of drinking water and fresh water has been supplied to cater to this need. Desalinated water is the main source of water supplied to islands during water shortages. The demand for desalinated water is highest during the dry season, generally from January to April.

Desalinated water is transported on ships to islands that report water shortages during the dry period each year. Transporting desalinated water on ships to the dispersed islands has been a challenge over the years as an increasing number of islands face water shortage each year. In an attempt to provide a long term solution to this problem the Government has pledged towards provision of water supply to all inhabited islands by the year 2023 with full-fledged desalinated water supply network with household connections.

“Supporting Vulnerable Communities in Maldives to Manage Climate Change-Induced Water Shortages” project under Green Climate Fund (GCF) is implemented by the Government of Maldives aims to cater this water security need in significantly affected islands. The project aims to achieve part of the complete result by the following deliverables.

- a. Scaling up integrated water supply system to provide safe water to vulnerable households (at least 32,000 people, including 15,000 women);
- b. Decentralized and cost-effective dry season water supply system introduced benefiting 73,000 people across 7 Northern Atolls;
- c. Groundwater quality improved to secure freshwater reserves for long term resilience on 49 islands;

Development and Implementation of a National Integrated Water Resource Conservation and Management Framework (IWRCMF) and the subsequent island specific plans are essential for the sustainable management and conservation of the water resources in the island communities. The need and requirement for the framework and the plans are highlighted in the Strategic Action plan for water and sewerage (2020-2025) and the recently published regulations of the water and sanitation sector. Hence, The Government intends to apply part of the proceeds of the Green Climate Fund project towards procuring the services of Consultant for the works of “Development of national water resources management framework”
