Sirra Foods has established itself as one of India's most reliable exporters of rice and cooking oils due to its exceptional processing facilities, excellent customer relations, and unwavering dedication to fulfilling customer expectations.

Sirra Foods is esteemed for its exceptional raw material quality, personalized packaging options, and offering ethical assistance to customers.

The firm is being led by an exemplary leader with expertise in the food sector and extensive management experience.

The leadership's expertise and extensive experience have guided the company in developing a distinctive business model and innovative approach. This has allowed the company to effectively cater to buyers by comprehending their requirements and offering comprehensive solutions, encompassing raw material selection, packaging, bag design, and seamless supply chain facilities.

Our Process & Infrastructure

Sirra Foods possesses an internal research and development facility that skillfully combines scientific and agricultural knowledge to ensure the production of premium-grade culinary oils and rice.

Sirra Foods performs the procedures of parboiling (for rice) and crushing seeds (for culinary oils) with meticulous attention to detail and the appropriate methodology. The machinery utilized in these procedures is imported from Japan and Germany, and for packaging we employ no-touch technology of the highest caliber.

With a packaging capacity of more than 60,000 litres for mustard oil and over one thousand metric tons for rice, our proficient staff guarantees that the products are produced and exported in accordance with international standards.
