

The ILLARGUI Group, through its subsidiary HEALTHY RAW MATERIALS, immerses itself in this world of allergen-free products.

Our processes and facilities are exclusively dedicated to the production of products that are especially gluten-free, but also without other types of allergens, thus avoiding any risk of cross contamination.

This allows us to ensure and certify our processes and products with the highest requirements and provide the consumer with confidence, peace of mind, guarantee and reliability. All this is endorsed by the ELS certification at European level.

Continuous collaboration with entities in the sector (we maintain constant contact with FACE and other associations), the development of tailor-made products with our clients, the analysis of the markets and our continuous research allow us to innovate with new references and improve formulations at all times, whether for standard products or for specific developments.
