Unique water source in the North Caucasus

At an altitude of 2,400 meters, there is a unique spring, whose fresh water overcomes the path through the massifs Mountains and glaciers have been around for more than 20 thousand years before they hit the surface of the earth. This spring is located in the Republic of North Ossetia-Alania, just 8 kilometers west of the village of Akhsau. The source from which this amazing water is taken is a real natural miracle, preserving its properties for many millennia.

01 production

High-tech equipment allows us to maintain the highest quality standards. The production process is fully automated and meets all sanitary and hygienic requirements.

02 water treatment

Fresh water makes its way through the massifs of mountains and glaciers before reaching the surface of the earth. Water obtained from mountain springs is bottled in its original form without changing its physico-chemical composition. The water quality is monitored by laboratory tests. The next important step is ozonation, which provides a high degree of purification and destroys the structure of many pollutants, pathogens, viruses. During the ozonation process, all natural minerals and trace elements are preserved in the water, as well as a unique chemical composition and a unique mild taste. Thanks to such long-term filtration, the water is not only purified, but also enriched with useful minerals.

03 chemical composition (mg/l)

Mineral composition:

Hydrocarbonates HCO_3 -50-200 MG/L
