Kipco-Damaco was founded in the early 1960's when a local craftsman started his own turkey slaughterhouse in West-Flanders, a region well-known in Belgium for its hard-working mentality and spirit.

Soon the company grew and the new innovative idea emerged to start producing Mechanically Deboned poultry Meat under the name of KIPCO-DAMACO. This new direction brought opportunities for exports, within EU and a little later outside the EU as well.

Today the Damaco Group has different offices spread out globally to cover the more than 100 export markets. Deboned poultry meat for the processing industry remains the core business and represents 60% of the overall volume.

Retail and wholesale of poultry, pork, beef, French fries and vegetables were integrated in the daily operations of the Damaco Group and gained a strong position in the activities of the group. Interesting fact; the company is still run by the family of the craftsman that originally started the business.
