History of Tea

In the 1830s, the British East India Company became concerned about the Chinese monopoly on tea, which constituted most of its trade and supported the enormous consumption of tea in Great Britain. The British colonists discovered tea growing wild in Assam and in the 1850s started cultivating tea plantations locally.

India is one of the largest tea producers in the world, although over 70 per cent of its tea is consumed within India itself. A number of renowned teas, such as Assam and Darjeeling, also grow exclusively in India. The Indian tea industry has grown to own many global tea brands and has evolved into one of the most technologically equipped tea industries in the world.

Journey of Indian Tea

As connoisseurs of tea, our passion is in sourcing, blending and delivering the best product possible. Our master tea tasters evaluate hundreds of blends to ensure consistency across batches, while our blending and packing facilities follow the highest manufacturing and food safety standards, resulting in consistent, fresh, and high-quality products around the year.

With our founder's dedication and master blender's passion to bring premium quality Indian teas to the world.

Tea Export From India and Export Destinations

- ✔ Total tea export stood at US$ 826.47 million in FY20 and US$ 755.86 in FY21.
- ✔ India stands fourth in terms of tea export after Kenya (including neighbouring African countries), China and Sri Lanka.
- ✔ As of 2019, India was the second largest tea producer in the world with production of 1,339.70 million kgs.
