

By integrating culturally safe practices, we optimise the wellbeing and productivity of your workforce

Assisting workplaces to embrace a culturally safe and respectful work environment, we set the process in motion to improve outcomes for First Nations staff, customers, and clients. Even better, your entire workforce, including non-Aboriginal people, benefit from inclusive, culturally sensitive approaches.

Kimberley Wanganen Consultancy provides:

Cultural Safety education

Cultural Safety audits

Reconciliation Action Plan development

Reconciliation Action Plan implementation

Co-design workshops developing cultural practice frameworks

Cultural supervision

Yarning circle facilitation

Tailored programs to suit:

Government Departments

Non-Government

Local Government and many more

Not-for-Profit Organisations

Private Enterprises - big and small

The many benefits include:

Attraction and retention of First Nations staff

Developing a culturally safe workplace

Improving outcomes for First Nations customers

Embedding culturally safe practices into your supply chain

Meet Kimberley Wanganeen

A proud First Nations woman, cultural consultant, leader, and advocate, Kimberley specialises in cultural safety, best practice and governance.

A collaborative participant in the development of your workplace culture, Kimberley's highly developed strategic skills will analyse and then recommend improvements to your current workplace frameworks, policies and procedures.

A leadership and management professional, Kimberley has proven experience facilitating workshops, ensuring the cultural safety of participants. Importantly, she has vast experience in leading and supporting co-design processes, particularly in the development and implementation of Practice Frameworks and Reconciliation Action Plans.

Kimberley is dedicated to ensuring all organisational systems provide cultural safety for First Nations staff, and by extension, through service provision to First Nations clients and customers.

For a confidential yarn to improve your workplace productivity,

CONTACT

Kimberley Wanganeen

M: 08 7009 4212

E: Kimberley@kwanganeen.com.au

Operating on Kurna Land – Always Was, Always Will Be