In 13 years at the helm of the Saint Louis University baseball program, head coach Darin Hendrickson has taken the Billikens to new heights, including numerous school records, Atlantic 10 regular-season and tournament championships and three NCAA Tournament appearances.

Hendrickson has coached 12 Major League Baseball draft picks in his tenure at Saint Louis, with four of them being in the top 10 rounds. Connor Lehmann, the most recent Billiken to be drafted, was selected the seventh round in 2019 by the San Diego Padres. James Norwood, picked in the seventh round in 2014, made the Chicago Cubs Opening Day roster last season.

Four players were deemed All-American status under Hendrickson's watch, including two Freshmen All-Americans. An additional three players were honored with All-Region accolades.

Hendrickson has seen 46 of his Billiken players earn All-Conference awards at the end of the season. That number includes 20 on the first team, 16 on the second team and 10 on the All-Rookie team.

In 2018, the senior-laden Billikens put together one of the best performances in program history with an overall record of 38-20 and a finish in the 2018 NCAA Regional in Oxford, Miss. Saint Louis captured both the Atlantic 10 Tournament Championship and the Regular Season crown and went on to numerous conference and national accolades. Coach Hendrickson was named the Atlantic 10 Coach of the Year as his team finished with a 19-4 record in league play. Hendrickson coached five players to Atlantic 10 post-season awards.

In 2013, the team matched the school record with 41 wins and claimed the Atlantic 10 regular season and tournament titles. It was the first time since 1966 that the Billikens won both conference titles. Saint Louis was named the four seed in the NCAA Regional.

SLU first reaped the benefits of Hendrickson's labor in 2010 when he led the Billikens to an Atlantic 10 Conference championship, an NCAA Regional appearance and a school-record 33 victories.
