In 2013 the Lobos achieved their highest ever ranking by Baseball America as they rose to No. 13 in the polls on May 20. They played a total of 22 games while ranked in 2013, nearly doubling their all-time total of 24. Their 14 wins while ranked was more than the 12 they had accomplished in the entire history of the program prior to that season.

The Lobos jumped into the Baseball America poll for the first time on April 15, 1985, at No. 19. New Mexico would climb as high as No. 14 that season and finished the regular season ranked No. 19. However, the Lobos went 0-2 in the WAC Tournament and ended up ranked No. 23 in the final poll, taken after the College World Series.

The highest-ranked team UNM ever beat is No. 1 Texas, and the Lobos did it twice, claiming 2010's series against the Longhorns with victories of 6-5 on Feb. 20 and 3-1 on Feb. 21. Eleven times UNM has played the No. 1 team in the nation (Arizona St. eight times; Texas three times).
