This Week: At the Nuttycombe Wisconsin Invitational Presented by Under Armour

LOBOS EYEING IMPROVEMENT AT ELITE WISCONSIN INVITE

New Mexico is heading to the exceptionally competitive Nuttycombe Wisconsin Invitational Presented by Under Armour this Friday in Madison, Wis., as it looks to improve its credentials for the national championships.

The Lobos, with their 11th-ranked women's team and a young men's squad, are aiming to pick up wins against other teams so they can build résumés worthy of the NCAA Championships that will be held November 19 in Terre Haute, Ind.

After the women took fourth at the Joe Piane Notre Dame Invitational two weeks ago, the Lobos started off their pursuit of a second consecutive NCAA team title strongly.

Although the women dropped slightly in the poll and the youthful men struggled in their first major team competition, both showed flashes of potential that portend future success.

This week's elite meet at Thomas Zimmer Championship Cross Country Course gives Franklin's harriers a chance to further improve their postseason prospects.

31 teams make the NCAA Championships — two automatic bids from nine regions plus 13 at-large teams — so securing wins against other teams at Wisconsin will go a long way toward NCAA bids.

However, the Lobos will have to contend with a stacked field. Although this meet is entering its eighth year, Wisconsin is easily one of the top invitationals outside of the NCAA Championships.

18 women's teams and 18 men's teams ranked in the USTFCCCA National Coaches' Poll will be making their case for the NCAAs Friday.

For the Lobo women, it will be their two frontrunners leading the charge.

Reigning Mountain West Women's Athlete of the Week Alice Wright and Calli Thackery finished in the top five at Notre Dame, and the duo will again be looked to for top finishes.

UNM can also look to Sophie Connor, their third scorer at Notre Dame, along with Natasha Bernal and freshman Alex Buck, both of whom scored two weeks ago. There's also additional depth with Kathryn Fluehr, Kendall Kelly, Kyoko Koyama and Kieran Casey.

On the men's side, the Lobos will receive the services of seniors Graham Thomas and Adam Cotton after they missed Notre Dame.

New Mexico will also look to a strong follow up from Jacob Simonsen after he led the men at Notre Dame. Jesus Mendoza, Zac Castillo, Emil Danielsson, Jared Garcia and Alexander Palm will also be key this week.

WRIGHT NAMED MOUNTAIN WEST ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

Alice Wright was named as the Mountain West Women's Cross Country Athlete of the Week for meets contested September 29-October 1.

Wright, a redshirt junior from Worcester, England, placed second overall and guided the now 11th-ranked Lobo women's team to a fourth-place finish at the Joe Piane Notre Dame Invitational on Sept. 30 in Notre Dame, Indiana.

In her first race of the season, Wright finished with a time of 16 minutes, 16 seconds over the five-kilometer course at the Burke Golf Course.

She finished just 4.3 seconds behind individual champion Anna Rohrer of Notre Dame (16:11.7), who was running on her home course. Wright led the race through one mile and rallied from a third-place standing at four kilometers to finish second overall.

It's the third straight year Wright, a two-time cross country All-American, improved on her finish at Notre Dame. She placed fifth last year (16:29.5) and eighth in 2014 (16:23.2).

Wright is the only athlete along with teammate Calli Thackery to place top 10 at the last three runnings of the Notre Dame Invitational.

This honor is Wright's first such accolade in cross country, and it's the team's first since Courtney Frerichs was selected after finishing runner up at the Notre Dame Invitational last year.

LAST TIME OUT: WOMEN 4TH AT NOTRE DAME

The New Mexico women's cross country team placed fourth overall at the Joe Piane Notre Dame Invitational on September 29, while the Lobo men's team placed 23rd.

The Lobo women were paced by top-five finishers Alice Wright (second place) and Calli Thackery (fifth) as they ran to another top-five performance at Notre Dame, including back-to-back titles in 2014 and 2015.

The youthful New Mexico men also posted a promising showing as their young runners got their first taste of high-level NCAA action.

Wright, a redshirt junior, crossed the line in 16 minutes, 16 seconds, just 4.3 seconds behind individual titlist Anna Rohrer of host Notre Dame. Wright's runner-up finish is the second in a row for UNM at the Notre Dame Invite, following Courtney Frerichs' second-place race last season.

Thackery, a senior, also registered a superb mark, traversing the women's five-kilometer course in 16:30.9.

The Lobos' also earned scoring runs from senior Sophie Connor, who placed 37th in 16:59.8, and freshman Alex Buck (60h, 17:16.5) and Natasha Bernal (62nd, 17:17.3).

Connor was 67th at this meet last year, and showed potential as a key player for UNM, which is without 2015 All-Americans Rhona Auckland and Ednah Kurgat.

Kathryn Fluehr (71st, 17:23.1), Kendall Kelly (93rd, 17:41.0) and Kieran Casey (96th, 17:41.7) also ran for New Mexico.

On the men's side, the Lobos' youth proved to be a significant factor en route to finishing 23rd.

New Mexico relied on a lineup that featured four freshmen. And while the youthful team finished in 23rd place, the Lobos showed flashes of talent.

True freshman Jacob Simonsen led the way with a 72nd-place run clocked at 24:41.7. He was followed by senior Jesus Mendoza in 105th place (24:57.2).

Redshirt junior Zac Castillo also scored in 136th place (25:19.6), with freshmen Emil Danielsson (141st, 25:22.9) and Jared Garcia (153rd, 25:33.8) also chipping in scoring finishes.

Alexander Palm (180th, 26:06.8) and Tyler Valdez (188th, 26:16.3) also ran for the New Mexico men.

LOBO WOMEN PICKED NO. 1 IN MOUNTAIN WEST MIDSEASON POLLS

New Mexico women's cross country team claimed the top spot in the Mountain West Midseason Women's Cross Country Coaches' poll. The Lobo men were tabbed fourth in the men's midseason poll.

The polls, released October 5 and listed in their entirety on page 5 of these notes, have the UNM women, the preseason coaches' favorites, keeping hold of the top honor in the conference, while men's team remains in the No. 4 position.

In the women's poll, No. 11 New Mexico tallied nine of the 11 first-place votes for a total of 99 points to earn the top spot. No. 10 Boise State collected the other two first-place votes and 92 points to claim second place.

Colorado State earned 79 points for third, followed by Air Force with 68 points and Wyoming with 63 points. Utah State (62 points), Nevada (47), San José State (35), Fresno State (24), San Diego State (18) and UNLV (18) placed sixth through 11th, respectively.

On the men's side, the Lobos tallied 29 points total to place fourth. Colorado State earned the top spot in the poll with five first-place votes and 47 points, while Boise State came in second with three first-place vote and 44 points. Air Force (38 points) was ranked third.

Utah State (23 points), Wyoming (21), San José State (13) and Fresno State (9) rounded out the eight-team poll, placing fifth-to-eighth, respectively.

REIGNING CHAMPS

New Mexico women's cross country won the NCAA team title in 2015 and start 2016 looking to repeat. Their title last season was the program's first, and was the University of New Mexico's second NCAA title in any team sport (skiing, 2004).

The Lobos captured their title behind one of the most dominating performances in NCAA history, placing all five of their scorers in the top 25 at E.P. 'Tom' Sawyer State Park in Louisville. UNM combined to score 49 points — the lowest team score by any team since 1982 — en route to a 80-point victory over runner-up Colorado.

New Mexico's margin of victory is the fifth-largest in NCAA history and the best since 2004. No. 2 Colorado finished with 149 points, while No. 5 Oregon was third with 214 points.

2016 Olympian Courtney Frerichs led New Mexico with a fourth-place finish, while Alice Wright was close behind in fifth place.

Rhona Auckland (13th), Calli Thackery (15th) and Molly Renfer (24th) also scored for the Lobos, who registered a team spread of 29.5 seconds, the lowest since the NCAA moved the distance of the championship race to six kilometers in 2000.

All five earned All-American honors (which are given to the top 40 finishers). Consequently, UNM was the first women's team to have five All-Americans in a single championships since Villanova in 2009.

New Mexico is also just the first team since the 2001 BYU women to place all five of their scorers in the top 25.

NEWS AND NOTES

POLL POSITION

New Mexico women's cross country team is currently ranked 11th in the most recent U.S. Track & Field and Cross Country Coaches Association National Coaches' Poll released Tuesday, October 4.

The defending NCAA team championships, the Lobo women earned 245.5 points. After starting the season ranked No. 1, it's the second straight poll UNM wasn't the top-ranked team.

New Mexico was ranked No. 1 for 10 straight polls. However, it is the 36th-straight poll the Lobo women's team was ranked.

THE TOP-FIVE STREAK

Although the New Mexico women's cross country team won the NCAA title in 2015, the Lobos aren't a one-hit wonder.

As noted below, the UNM women have qualified to eight straight NCAA Championships. But since 2010, the Lobos have placed top-10 at every NCAA, too.

UNM's streak of top-10 finishes at the NCAA Championships is the longest active streak and is tied for the 10th-longest in NCAA history.

PUTTING EIGHT STRAIGHT NCAA QUALIFICATIONS IN PERSPECTIVE

The Lobo women have qualified to eight straight NCAA Championships, dating back to 2008. It's one of eight active streaks in the NCAA that has reached at least eight years.

UNM's run is also one of just 22 streaks in Division I history to reach at least eight years, and ranks as the eighth longest current streak in Division I history

FRANKLIN'S GOING TO NEED ANOTHER OFFICE TO FIT ALL OF HIS TROPHIES

If your team keeps winning championships, it's completely understandable is you keep racking up the honors yourself. For UNM head coach Joe Franklin, that's the reality.

Since he arrived at UNM in 2007, Franklin has claimed 13 (of a possible 18) Mountain West Cross Country Coach of the Year honors, with eight straight Women's Coach of the Year and five Men's Coach of the Year plaudits. He swept both in 2014.

However, since 2009, Franklin has earned all but two MW CoY honors. Air Force claimed two men's Coach of the Year honors, with Juli Benson in 2010 and Ryan Cole in 2015.

BUT HE MIGHT NEED A WHOLE NEW BUILDING FOR HIS NATIONAL AWARD

The U.S. Track & Field and Cross Country Coaches Association (USTFCCCA) named New Mexico head cross country Joe Franklin as the 2015 NCAA Division I National Women's Coach of the Year.

Franklin coached the nation's top-ranked women's team to one of the most dominating seasons in the NCAA history, and capped off the 2015 campaign with a national title.

The Lobo women won the NCAA Division I Cross Country Championships Saturday at E.P. 'Tom' Sawyer State Park in Louisville, Ky., with a team score of 49 points, the lowest team score in modern meet history.

New Mexico placed all five of its scorers in the top 25, led by its group of All-Americans: Courtney Frerichs (fourth place), Alice Wright (fifth), Rhona Auckland (13th), Calli Thackery (15th) and Molly Renfer (24th).

Franklin and his harriers finished the season with perhaps the best performance at an NCAA cross country meet ever, as the Lobos registered the lowest team score by any team since 1982, the smallest team spread (29.5 seconds) in the history of the six-kilometer championship, the most All-Americans (five) since 2009 and the most top-25 finishers (five) since 2001.

For Franklin, this is his second national coach of the year honor. He was named the USTFCCCA National Men's Coach of the Year in 2004 while coaching Butler University.

GREAT ON THE GRASS, GREAT IN THE CLASSROOM

New Mexico women's cross country was named the NCAA Division I Women's Scholar Team of the Year for the 2015 cross country season by the U.S. Track & Field and Cross Country Coaches Association (USTFCCCA).

Lobo men's cross country was also named as an All-Academic Team, making it the second straight year both the men's and women's teams were named All-Academic.

Individually, six members of the 2015 NCAA team cross country championship team were named USTFCCCA All-Academic, while one member of the men's team was accorded All-Academic honors.

For the women, the Scholar Team of the Year award is the first in both UNM and Mountain West history.

In order to receive the honor, the Lobos not only had to be the top finishing team for their respective gender at the NCAA Cross Country Championships, but also have at least a cumulative team GPA of 3.0. The Lobos posted a team 3.65 GPA last fall, which was also a program record and the 17th-straight semester of at least a 3.3 GPA.

LOBO WOMEN PICKED AS MW PRESEASON FAVORITES, MEN 4TH

New Mexico women's cross country was selected as the favorite to win the 2016 Mountain West women's cross country title, as voted by the league's coaches in the women's preseason coaches' poll.

The Lobo men were tabbed fourth in the men's version of the poll.

It's the sixth straight year that the Lobo women, the reigning NCAA champions, were picked as the preseason favorite. The New Mexico women have won eight straight MW cross country titles, while the men have won six of the last seven men's championships.

The New Mexico women captured the top spot in the preseason poll by earning 99 points and nine of the 11 first-place votes.

The Boise State women scored the other two first-place vote and 92 total points to place second, while Colorado State registered 79 total points to place third. Air Force (67 points), Wyoming (63), Utah State (56), Nevada (53), San José State (30), Fresno State (27), San Diego State (20) and UNLV (19) claimed fourth place through 11th, respectively.

On the men's side, the Lobos tallied 31 points total to place fourth in the men's poll. Colorado State earned the top spot in the poll with five first-place votes and 46 points.

Boise State came in second in the poll with one first-place vote and 43 points, while Air Force was tabbed third with the final two first-place votes and 40 points. Wyoming (23 points), Utah State (19), San José State (12) and Fresno State (10) rounded out the eight-team poll, placing fifth-to-eighth, respectively.

WOMEN'S XC/TRACK FINISHES 8TH IN PROGRAM OF THE YEAR STANDINGS

New Mexico women's cross country and track & field program placed eighth in the U.S. Track & Field and Cross Country Coaches Association's Terry Crawford Program of the Year award standings for the 2015-16 academic year.

The Lobos combined to gain 46.5 points for their best-ever finish in the final standings, which combine the teams' finishes from the 2015 NCAA Cross Country Championships, 2016 NCAA Indoor Track & Field Championships and the 2016 NCAA Outdoor Track & Field Championships.

It's the third time in program history that the Joe Franklin-coached women earned the award, after placing 16th in 2012 and 14th last year.

New Mexico is the highest-finishing school from a non-Power Five conference.

The women's cross country team got New Mexico in the standings first as the Lobos won the NCAA Cross Country Championships in November. It's the second ever national title in any sport in New Mexico history.
UNM continued to shine during indoor track, as Sophie Connor (fifth in the mile) and Calli Thackery (6th in the 3000) helped the Lobos to a 30th-place finish in the team standings.

The UNM women's capped the year with another national title, as Courtney Frerichs captured the NCAA championship and NCAA record in the 3,000-meter steeplechase at NCAA Outdoor Championships. Alice Wright added a runner-up performance in the 10,000, helping the Lobos post program bests in team finish (15th) and team points scored (18th).

Presented annually since 2009, the NCAA Division I Program of the Year Award recognizes the most outstanding cross country and track & field programs in Division I based on the institution's performance through the academic year. Final standings are predicated on the institution's combined finishes at the NCAA Division I Championships in cross country, indoor track & field, and outdoor track & field.

To be eligible for the award, teams must qualify for all three NCAA Championships. Scores for award are calculated from the team's each finish at those championships (i.e., first place earns one point, second place two points, 31st place 31 points, etc.). The team with the lowest total score for all three championships receives the award.

15 women's teams scored at all three 2015-16 championships. Leading the final standings was NCAA indoor champions Oregon (six points), with NCAA outdoor champs Arkansas (12) and Oklahoma State (29.5) rounding out the top three.
