The Season:

The University of New Mexico opens the 2019 season at the University of Colorado for a five-day event, the Colorado Invitational. Prior to the CU Invitational, UNM will compete in the first of two RMISA giant slalom qualifiers. The ultimate goal for UNM is in March at the NAAs, where UNM is looking to extend its streak of top-nine finishes to 37 straight years.

The Coaches:

The University of New Mexico Lobos are coached by Joe Downing, who is the program's head alpine coach. Joe was named the interim head coach after former coach Fredrik Landstedt left for the University of Utah to become Director of Skiing after an 11-year run as UNM's head coach. Taking over as the head Nordic coach is former student-athlete and NCAA participant Christian Otto, who was previously an assistant Nordic coach. Aljaž Praznik and Carl-Johan Öster are former student-athletes for the Lobos who are serving as assistant coaches for Nordic and alpine, respectively.

What to Look For

The University of New Mexico embarks on another season with a top nine national finish in its sights, but so much more to go after. The team has a lot of new faces, starting with Joe Downing as the head coach. The seventh year Lobo coach enters his first as the head coach after taking over for Fredrik Landstedt, who is now the Director of Skiing at Utah.

On the Nordic side, only one male and female return from last year, and both have NCAA experience, and they are joined by six new skiers, three male and three female. For the alpine squads, all three NCAA participants on the women's side return, including All-American and two-time champion Kat Irwin, with three other new alpine skiers. On the men's side two NCAA participants return, including Vegard Busengdal, who also won twice on the circuit and earned All-America honors last year.

Following Along

The alpine events at Eldora Mountain Ski Resort will not have a livestream, but all the races can be witnessed on the net via live timing.

All three alpine races will have live timing available at www.live-timing.com.
