

THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE UNIVERSITY CODE OF CONDUCT FOR INTERCOLLEGIATE ATHLETICS

Introduction

This Code of Conduct exemplifies the commitment of The Pennsylvania State University (“Penn State” or the “University”) Department of Intercollegiate Athletics (the “Athletics Department” or the “Department”) to full compliance with the University’s and the Athletics Department’s policies and procedures, including the policies set forth in the University’s Athletics Integrity Program (“AIP”), the Penn State Intercollegiate Athletics Policy Manual (the “ICA Policy Manual”), the National Collegiate Athletic Association (“NCAA”) Constitution and Bylaws and the Handbook of the Big Ten Conference (“Big Ten Handbook”), as well as the principles regarding institutional control, responsibility, ethical conduct and integrity reflected in the NCAA Constitution and Bylaws and the Big Ten Handbook.

The purpose of this Code of Conduct is to serve as a guidepost to direct the ethical bearing of the Athletics Department. It was drafted to be congruent with both the University’s Values and the Athletics Department’s own Vision, Mission and Core Values, which together reflect the principles that serve as our measure of success, regardless of the outcome on the field.

The Vision of preparing students for a lifetime of impact is the purpose of the Athletics Department at Penn State.

The Mission of Penn State’s Athletics Department is driven by a commitment to comprehensive excellence. It serves its student-athletes by creating conditions for their success, so they can maximize their full potential. The Athletics Department engages the collective Penn State communities to serve as a valuable campus asset in the interest of advancing the broader University mission

The Athletics Department has committed to deliver on this mission by modeling the University’s Values of Integrity, Respect, Responsibility, Discovery, Excellence, and Community. These represent the first principles of both Penn State Athletics and the University’s commitment to all its constituents. The Athletics Department further has stated its Core Values as being: Tradition, Teamwork, Diversity, Transparency, and Innovation.

Our Values define who we are, not how we did. These Values are those attributes that, whether experiencing the highest high or the lowest low, will not be compromised or abandoned.

This Code of Conduct, signed by all who lead, play, coach, or support intercollegiate athletics at Penn State helps maintain the ethical foundations of supporting a broad-based athletics program that is the equal of any in the nation; achieving the most favorable graduation rate possible for student-athletes; fielding teams that compete at the highest levels of national and conference play; encouraging individual excellence and the esteem that follows; aiding in the social preparation of young people for the diverse world they are about to enter; creating an awareness of public service and the importance of participation in community outreach; and to entertain the University student body and staff, alumni and fans with a consistently high level of competition that does not compromise the integrity which has characterized the Penn State program from its inception.

This Code of Conduct will help ensure that our Mission, Vision and Values are ingrained in everything we do and that our commitments to the ideals of excellence, scholarship, integrity, ethical conduct, diversity, leadership, public service, athletic performance and sportsmanship are fulfilled.

Applicability

This Code of Conduct is applicable to all “Signing Parties” as defined by the University’s AIP, which includes all student-athletes who participate on each of the University’s NCAA-sanctioned Division I intercollegiate athletics teams; all coaches and all managers of any of the University’s NCAA-sanctioned Division I intercollegiate athletics teams; all University staff and other University and Athletics Department employees who are directly involved with any of the University’s NCAA-sanctioned intercollegiate athletics teams; the University’s Board of Trustees, individually and collectively (the “Board of Trustees”); the President of the University; and all members of the Athletics Director’s Management Team.

For purposes of this Code of Conduct, an individual is “directly involved” with a University NCAA sanctioned Division I intercollegiate athletics team if such individual directs, controls or assists with any such team’s activities and has a reasonable likelihood of recurring personal interaction with both varsity student-athletes and coaches resulting from his or her employment responsibilities.

The Penn State Principles

Our Core Values are reflected in the following Penn State Principles, which were developed to embody the values to which we expect our students, faculty, staff, administration, trustees and alumni to adhere. The University also is deeply committed, however, to freedom of expression. Thus, the Penn State Principles do not constitute University policy and are not intended to interfere in any way with an individual’s legally-protected academic or personal freedoms. We expect, however, that all Signing Parties to this Code of Conduct will endorse these common principles voluntarily, to the extent applicable to them, thereby contributing to the traditions and scholarly heritage of Penn State left by those who preceded them, and will thus leave Penn State a better place for those who follow.

The Penn State Principles are as follows:

I will respect the dignity of all individuals within the Penn State community and the local community and of all individuals with whom I compete on behalf of Penn State.

The University is committed to creating and maintaining an educational environment that respects the right of all individuals to participate fully in the community. Actions motivated by hate, prejudice, or intolerance violate this principle. I will not engage in any behaviors that compromise or demean the dignity of individuals or groups, including intimidation, stalking, harassment, discrimination, taunting, ridiculing, insulting, or engaging in acts of violence. I will demonstrate respect for others by striving to learn from differences between people, ideas, and opinions and by avoiding behaviors that inhibit the ability of other community members to feel safe or welcome as they pursue their academic goals.

I will practice and promote the practice of academic integrity.

Academic integrity is a basic guiding principle for all academic activity at Penn State, allowing the pursuit of scholarly activity in an open, honest, and responsible manner. In accordance with the University Code of Conduct, I will practice and promote the practice of integrity with regard to all academic assignments. I will not engage in or tolerate acts of falsification, misrepresentation or deception because such acts of dishonesty violate the fundamental ethical principles of the University community and compromise the worth of work completed by others.

I will demonstrate social and personal responsibility.

The University is a community that promotes learning; any behaviors that are inconsistent with that goal are unacceptable. Irresponsible behaviors, including alcohol or drug abuse and the use of violence against people or property, assisting or abetting wagering on intercollegiate athletics, undermine the educational climate of the University by threatening the physical and mental health of members of the University community. I will exercise personal responsibility for my actions and I will make sure that my actions do not interfere with the academic and social environment of the University. I will maintain a high standard of behavior by adhering to the University Code of Conduct and respecting the rights of others.

I will be responsible for my own academic progress and I agree to comply with all University policies.

The University allows students to identify and achieve their academic goals by providing the information needed to plan their chosen program of study and the necessary educational opportunities to complete that program successfully, but students assume final responsibility for course scheduling, program planning, and the successful completion of graduation requirements. I will be responsible for seeking the academic and career information needed to meet my educational goals by becoming knowledgeable about the relevant policies, procedures, and rules of the University and my chosen academic program, by consulting and meeting with my adviser, and by successfully completing all of the requirements for graduation.
