NU'S TOP STORYLINES, STREAKS & TRENDS

OPENING WHISTLE

Northwestern will close out the regular season on Sunday with a trip to University Park to face Penn State. Kickoff is set for 11 a.m. CT.

Sunday will be the final day of the Big Ten season, with eight of the conference's nine teams in action. The Wildcats will be looking to clinch the seventh seed for the Big Ten Tournament with a win over PSU, and will finish in eighth with a loss. Four teams still have the opportunity to be conference champions.

Chicago's Big Ten Team enters the match having won four of its last five, with the only loss against No. 7 Michigan State. In NU's last two victories, Tommy Katsiyannis has scored a combined three goals. The first year leads the team with four goals on the season and his eight total points are tied for the team lead with Camden Buescher and Mac Mazzola.

Penn State is coming off a 2-1 win over James Madison on Wednesday. The victory gave the Nittany Lions a mark of 4-9- 2 overall, and they hold a 1-6- 0 record in Big Ten play.

LAST TIME OUT

The Wildcats defeated Loyola on Tuesday afternoon in a match that went to double overtime. Katsiyannis scored the winner in the 104th minute when Mazzola set him up on a counter attack.

Ty Seager opened the scoring with a header just three minutes into the second half. Loyola tied the game with fifteen minutes to send the match to an extra period. Near the end of the first overtime, goalkeeper Robbie White saved a penalty kick as well the shot off the ensuing rebound, either of which would have won the match for Loyola. The junior finished with eight saves in the contest.

SERIES HISTORY

Northwestern holds an all-time record of 8-24- 3 against PSU. Before Head Coach Tim Lenahan took over the program, NU was 0-12- 0 against Penn State. Since his hiring in 2001, the 'Cats are 8-12- 3 in the teams' meetings, including three straight wins since 2014.

In their most recent matchup, Northwestern prevailed 1-0 on Senior Night last season at Martin Stadium. A first-half goal from Jeffery Hopson that was assisted by Riley Kelliher proved to be the difference in the contest.

STRENGTH IN NET

Northwestern is averaging 4.81 saves per game this season, good for third-best in the Big Ten. Francisco Tomasino, Miha Miscovic, and Robbie White have all seen time in goal on the campaign, each making at least four starts. Miscovic has made 18 saves and was at one point ranked third in the Big Ten in saves per game. White recorded a shutout in his first start and has tallied 20 saves in three conference matches. If he were eligible, White would rank fourth in the conference in save percentage, fifth in total saves, and first in saves per game. Tomasino played the full 90 minutes and recorded his first shutout of the campaign in the win over DePaul on Oct. 11.

FIRST YEAR SPARK

First year Tommy Katsiyannis has brought energy to the offense with four goals on the season. Notching two against Rutgers, he became the first player to record multiple goals in a match since Brandon Medina in the opening game of 2016. Katsiyannis also recorded six shots on goal in the match, which was good for a new program record. His eight points on the season are tied for the team lead, and he ranks seventh in the Big Ten with two game-winning goals.
