FIRST SERVE

» Making its seventh appearance in the NCAA national semifinals in the last eight years, fifth-seeded Penn State is set to square off against top-ranked Stanford Thursday, Dec. 18 at 9:30 p.m. ET. The matchup will broadcast live on ESPN2 with Beth Mowins and Karch Kiraly on the call.

» Penn State advanced to the final four with a 3-1 victory against fourth-seeded Wisconsin in the Louisville regional finals. Senior Micha Hancock earned Louisville regional MVP honors while redshirt junior Aiyana Whitney and freshman Haleigh Washington joined her on the all-tournament team.

» Penn State is 8-8 all-time against Stanford having recently come up short in a close five-set loss in Palo Alto earlier this season. In NCAA tournament action, PSU knocked the Cardinal out of national championship contention with a 3-2 in the 2013 Lexington regional.

» Since 2007, Penn State has made more appearances in the national semifinals than any other program. The Lions have participated in seven of the last eight final fours, leading Texas by one appearance (6). Southern California (3), California (2) and Stanford (2) are the only other teams in the nation to appear in the NCAA semifinals more than once in that span.

» Making its 34th appearance in the NCAA tournament, Penn State is one of just two programs, with Stanford being the other, to participate in every postseason event since 1981. The Nittany Lions hold an 88-26 all-time record in NCAA tournament action.

» Six Nittany Lions earned nine Big Ten postseason awards. Seniors Micha Hancock and Nia Grant earned unanimous All-Big Ten honors, while freshman Haleigh Washington picked up All-Big Ten, All-Freshman and Big Ten Freshman of the Year honors. Redshirt junior Aiyana Whitney and freshman Ali Frantti also earned All-Big Ten Honorable Mention honors.

» Four earned AVCA All-Northeast Region honors including Micha Hancock, Nia Grant, Aiyana Whitney and Ali Frantti. Frantti was also named AVCA All-Northeast Regional Freshman of the year making her the eighth Nittany Lion in program history to earn Regional Freshman of the Year honors.

» Averaging 1.03 aces per set, senior Micha Hancock has once again secured herself as the nation's leader in the category for the 14th consecutive week. With more aces than anyone in the NCAA standings (124) in 2014, her career total (378) ranks first all-time in both the Big Ten and Penn State record books.

» As a team, Penn State is averaging 1.96 aces per set, which ranks first nationally and leads the conference.

» Penn State's .348 hitting clip ranks first in the nation, while also leading the Big Ten. Hancock's also paced a trio of top Nittany Lion attackers to .364 or better hitting, led by Nia Grant's .442 hitting clip, which ranks fourth nationally and second the conference. Haleigh Washington's .487 hitting percentage leads the Big Ten, while Aiyana Whitney rounds out the group with a .364 hitting percentage, which is slotted third in the Big Ten standings. As a team, Penn State is out-hitting its opponents .348-.144.

» This year, PSU has matched up against 10 different teams that made this year's 64-team NCAA tournament bracket. In 12 outings, the Nittany Lions are 9-3 against the field of regular season NCAA tournament team opponents.

» Penn State's 3-1 win vs. Wisconsin improved PSU to 10-3 against teams ranked in the AVCA Top 25 this season.

» With 31 assists against the Buckeyes (10/28), senior Micha Hancock eclipsed the 5,000 career assists mark, making her the sixth Nittany Lion in program history to reach the milestone. She is the first to accomplish the feat since Alisha Glass (2006-09).

» With 1,159 wins, head coach Russ Rose is presently in sole possession of first place on the DI NCAA all-time wins list ahead of current Hawaii head coach Dave Shoji (1,151). The two active head coaches have traded the top spot throughout the season. Both Rose and Shoji are the only two NCAA DI head coaches to have more than 1,000 career wins.

» In his 36th season at the helm of the program, five-time AVCA DI National Coach of the Year Russ Rose returns four starters and 11 letterwinners from last year's NCAA national championship squad.

RE-WRITING THE RECORD BOOK

With seven aces in the win against Siena, senior Micha Hancock served her way to the top of the Big Ten single-season record book with 116 aces on the year to break the previous conference mark which was set by Minnesota's Sharon Oesterling in 1989. Hancock has since moved into sole possession of first place on the NCAA single-season 25-point scoring format aces list with 124 aces, which passes the record (118) originally set by Christine Edwards (Jackson State) in 2012.

SIX NITTANY LIONS EARN NINE BIG TEN POSTSEASON AWARDS

Six Nittany Lions earned nine Big Ten postseason awards. The Nittany Lions were well represented on all three conference teams, while freshman Haleigh Washington has earned Big Ten Freshman of the Year honors.

Seniors Micha Hancock and Nia Grant earned unanimous selections to the All-Big Ten team while freshman Haleigh Washington joined the duo on the All-Big Ten squad. Redshirt junior Aiyana Whitney and freshman Ali Frantti picked up All-Big Ten honorable mention accolades. Frantti and Washington also earned unanimous spots on the All-Freshman team. Senior Lacey Fuller rounded out the group as Penn State's sportsmanship honoree.

Washington is Penn State's 12th Nittany Lion in program history to garner Freshman of the Year honors. PSU has claimed the individual honor in four of the last five years with current Nittany Lions Hancock and Courtney each earning the laurel in 2011 and 2012, respectively.

Hancock earned her fourth consecutive postseason honor, as she's earned a spot on either the All-Big Ten team or the Big Ten All-Freshman squad each year. Grant, Whitney, Frantti and Washington all picked up their first career conference postseason accolades.

THAT'S SOME HEAVY HITTING

Senior Setter Micha Hancock has directed the Nittany Lions to a .348 hitting clip, which ranks first in the nation, while also leading the Big Ten. Hancock's also paced a trio of top Nittany Lion attackers to .364 or better hitting, led by senior Nia Grant's .442 hitting clip, which ranks fourth nationally and second in the conference. Haleigh Washington's .487 hitting percentage leads the Big Ten, while redshirt junior Aiyana Whitney rounds out the pair with a .364 hitting percentage, which is slotted third in the Big Ten standings.

PROTECTING THE HOUSE

Including an 18-1 mark in 2014, Penn State owns a 564-33 (.945) all-time record at home in Rec Hall. Following a dominant straight set victory in the regular season finale against No.10 Nebraska, the Nittany Lions improved to 257-18 (.935) all-time in Big Ten matches on the court in Rec Hall.

Only Ohio State has defeated the Nittany Lions on their home court more than three times, having topped PSU five times. Penn State has posted unblemished records in Big Ten play at home in seven of the last 10 years, winning 186 of 200 matches in the 10-year stretch. In the past five seasons, PSU has captured 90 wins in 100 total conference tilts with fewer than five league losses each year.

STRAIGHT SET SUCCESS

Penn State has earned 30 of its 33 (91%) victories this season in straight sets. Within those 30 sweeps, PSU has held seven teams (Iona, William & Mary, Eastern Illinois, DePaul, East Carolina, Rutgers and Siena) to less than 40 total points scored in a match. Last season, the Nittany Lions earned 23 of their 34 victories in 3-0 sweeps. Additionally, Penn State earned 16 consecutive wins by way of a straight-set decision from Oct. 18 to Dec. 12, having 50 consecutive sets in the span since dropping two on the road in a five-set win at then-No. 14 Purdue, Oct. 17.

SSSS...BOOM!

Establishing herself as one of the top servers in the nation, senior Micha Hancock is presently averaging 1.03 aces per set, which ranks first nationally for the 14th consecutive week, while also ranking atop the Big Ten conference standings. Hancock closed out the last two weeks of the non-conference slate with back-to-back weeks featuring at least 21 aces.

Building on her PSU career record throughout the 2013 season, she moved into sole possession of first place on the Penn State all-time list with 254 aces on the year to surpass Ellen Hensler, who previously set the record in 1986. Since reaching the mark last year, Hancock has improved her total to 378, which also ranks first on the Big Ten all-time record list.

In the Big Ten standings, her 124 aces this year puts her into sole possession of first place on the Big Ten all-time single season record list, as she broke the record originally set by Minnesota's Sharon Oesterling in 1989. With one ace against Michigan earlier this season she earned her 92nd ace to reset the PSU all-time single-season record that she previously set in 2011.

DOM CAN DIG IT!

Leading the team in digs in 31 of 37 matches this season, senior libero Dominique Gonzalez highlighted the 2014 conference opener with her third 20-dig performance of the season against then-No. 5 Wisconsin, before following with a season-high mark of 26 digs in a 3-1 win at No. 17 Minnesota. Recently, she posted her fifth 20-dig performance of the season with a match-high 24 in the NCAA regional final match against the Badgers. Her 3.66 digs per frame ranks 10th in the Big Ten.

ROSE ON TOP OF NCAA DI ALL-TIME WINS LIST

With 1,159 wins, head coach Russ Rose remains atop the NCAA DI all-time wins list with eight more victories than current Hawaii head coach Dave Shoji (1,151). The two active head coaches have traded the top spot throughout the season. Both Rose and Shoji are the only two NCAA DI head coaches with more than 1,000 career wins. The two are also one of three active NCAA head coaches across all three divisions to have more than 1,100 career wins. Additionally, Rose owns the all-time record for NCAA DI career winning percentage, having posted a career clip of .864 in the past 35 seasons.

THREE EARN BIG TEN WEEKLY AWARDS

Penn State nearly swept the Big Ten weekly awards, with three Nittany Lions earning honors after a 2-0 week at home. Redshirt junior Aiyana Whitney was selected Player of the Week, while senior Micha Hancock earned Setter of the Week honors and freshman Haleigh Washington picked up her second-consecutive Freshman of the Week award.

Whitney's Player of the Week award is the first conference award of her career. Leading the team in kills last week, she totaled 33 kills averaging 5.50 per frame on .698 hitting. Hitting .682 or better in both matches, she opened the week with a match-high 16 kills against Iowa before registering a match-high kills 17 against Minnesota.

Hancock's Setter of the Week nod is her fifth of the season. She paced the team to a .387 hitting efficiency during the undefeated week at home, averaging 12.00 assists per set. She directed the Nittany Lion offense to a .457 hitting percentage in a 3-0 win against Iowa before leading the team with a match-high four aces in a straight-set win against Minnesota.

Washington's award marks her second consecutive freshman of the week honor. She closed out the week ranked second on the team in both kills (21) and blocks (7), while also posting a .500 overall hitting clip. She highlighted the week with double-digit kills (12) against Iowa on .667 hitting and a team-high six blocks against Minnesota.

WASHINGTON REELS IN BIG TEN ROOKIE OF THE WEEK AWARD

After helping the team to a pair of wins at home, freshman Haleigh Washington has earned Big Ten Freshman of the Week honors. The award is the second consecutive weekly honor for the rookie middle blocker. Washington highlighted a 2-0 weekend at home with back-to-back double-digit kill performances. Against Rutgers, she led the team with 13 kills on .688 hitting, adding two blocks, one ace and one dig. The next night, she returned to the court to finish tied for second on the team with 10 kills on 13 errorless swings, while also finishing second the team with five blocks. Averaging a team-high 3.83 kills per set, she also led the squad with 23 kills. Defensively, she finished tied for third on the team with 1.17 blocks per set on the week. Since earning her way into the starting lineup on the road at Iowa (10/4), Washington's recorded nine consecutive multi-block performances, amassing at least five blocks in five of the last 10 matches.

GONZALEZ, HANCOCK PICK UP BIG TEN WEEKLY HONORS

After opening the 2014 conference slate with wins against two top-20 teams, seniors Micha Hancock and Dominique Gonzalez both collected Big Ten weekly accolades. Hancock was selected as the Big Ten Setter of the Week while Gonzalez was tabbed the Defensive Player of the Week. Gonzalez earns her first career Big Ten Weekly honor while Hancock's is the 14th Setter of the Week nod of her career.

Gonzalez led the team with 6.71 digs per set in a 2-0 week on the road that featured wins against fifth-ranked Wisconsin and No. 17 Minnesota. She posted back-to-back 20-dig performances during the week. After logging 21 digs in a win against the Badgers, she set a season-high mark with 26 digs in the victory against the Gophers, marking the fourth match of the season that she's recorded 20 or more digs. Hancock guided the Nittany Lions to a .273 overall hitting clip, averaging 12.57 assists per set. Individually, she hit .542 during the week without a single attack error. Hancock put down a career-high nine kills on 12 perfect swings against the Badgers, while also tallying a double-double with 38 assists and 10 digs.

DUO NAMED BIG TEN/PAC-12 CHALLENGE ALL-TOURNAMENT

Dominique Gonzalez and Ali Frantti earned Big Ten/Pac-12 Challenge All-Tournament team honors. Gonzalez highlighted the weekend with her fourth career 20+ dig match against the Cardinal, while Frantti logged her first career double-double with 22 kills and 11 digs.

TOUGH DEFENSE

Penn State has limited its opponents to .144 hitting this season, which ranks first in the Big Ten standings and fourth nationally. PSU has held 27 teams to .200 or lower hitting on 28 occasions in 2014. The Nittany Lions have limited eight squads to hitting clips between .201-.255. Only one team (Illinois/.315) has posted a .300 or better hitting percentage. The Nittany Lions held their first five consecutive Big Ten opponents to less than .200 hitting, while also limiting Rutgers to a Big Ten-match low -.039 attacking percentage. In 20 conference matches, only the Illini were able to hit higher than .250 against Penn State.

FORCE OF THE FROSH

Six freshman have made their collegiate debuts for Penn State this season, including Ali Frantti, Heidi Thelen, Simone Lee, Lainy Pierce, Haleigh Washington and Skylar Dykstra.

All ranked within PrepVolleyball.com's top 10, Frantti, Lee and Washington have established themselves as solid contributors this season. Averaging a team-high 3.21 kills per set on .313 hitting, Frantti has started every match for the Nittany Lions. Lee ranks seventh on the squad with 135 kills on the year, while Washington is fifth with 199. Despite missing two weeks early in the season, Washington's averaging 2.76 kills per set on .487 hitting, while also averaging a team-high 1.24 blocks per set, which ranks seventh in the Big Ten standings.

Frantti's highlighted the season with a double-double performance at then-No. 2 Stanford with 22 kills and 11 digs. Lee also capped off a productive weekend in Palo Alto, Calif. with her second double-digit kill performance of the season with 11 kills against UCLA. She followed that with a team-high 12 kills in the Big Ten opener at Wisconsin. Washington posted a career-high performance with 14 kills on .583 hitting, while also tallying a team-high seven blocks against then-No. 15 Illinois. She also notched a career-high nine blocks on the road in a straight-set win at then-No. 17 Ohio State. Most recently, Lee came off the bench in the second set of the NCAA regional finals against Wisconsin with 12 kills, including seven in the second frame alone on .750 hitting with zero attack errors.

HANCOCK GARNERS SECOND BIG SETTER OF THE WEEK HONOR

Following an undefeated weekend at home, senior Micha Hancock earned her second consecutive Big Ten Setter of the Week honor. Hancock shared her 13th career Setter of the Week award with Wisconsin's Lauren Carlini.

Hancock directed the Nittany Lion offense to a .490 overall team hitting percentage over the weekend as Penn State picked up wins against Eastern Illinois, DePaul, UIC and East Carolina to earn the Penn State Alumni Classic title. Totalling at least 21 aces for the second straight week, Hancock highlighted the weekend with two or more aces in every match this weekend. Averaging 1.83 aces per set with 22 aces on the week, she matched a season-high mark with eight aces against DePaul and East Carolina.

GRANT, HANCOCK COLLECT BIG TEN WEEKLY HONORS

After helping PSU claim the Villanova Classic title, senior Nia Grant was selected as the Big Ten Player of the Week, while senior Micha Hancock was tabbed Setter of the Week. Grant powered the Penn State offense with a team-high .618 hitting percentage during the undefeated weekend on the road. She posted double-digit kills in three-of-four matches, recording errorless hitting performances in back-to-back matches against Villanova and Yale. In addition to Villanova Classic All Tournament team honors, Grant also set a career-high mark with an .846 hitting efficiency against the Bulldogs.

Hancock directed the Nittany Lions to a .351 team hitting clip during the week, averaging 11.60 assists per set. On her way to Villanova Classic Most Outstanding Player honors, she logged 21 service aces in the tournament, highlighting the event with a season-high eight aces against American. Averaging 1.62 aces per set for the week, she also tallied six aces against both Villanova and Kansas.

HANCOCK EARNS AVCA NATIONAL PLAYER OF THE WEEK AWARD

Following her third consecutive Big Ten Setter of the Week honor, senior setter Micha Hancock was been selected as the AVCA DI National Player of the Week. Hancock's national recognition is the second of her career and the 10th time that a Penn State women's volleyball student-athlete has been selected as the AVCA DI National Player of the Week.

Hancock helped the Nittany Lions to wins against a pair of top-20 teams including victories on the road at No. 5 Wisconsin and No. 17 Minnesota. She directed the offense to a .273 hitting percentage on the week, while registering a .542 individual hitting clip.

BIG TEN PLAYER OF THE WEEK NOTES

Three different Nittany Lions have earned Big Ten Player of the Week honors in 2014 (Nia Grant, Aiyana Whitney, Haleigh Washington), marking the first time the Nittany Lions have had at least three different honorees in a single season since 2009.

TRIO EARNS PENN STATE CLASSIC ALL-TOURNAMENT TEAM HONORS

Following back-to-back double-digit kill performances in her first two collegiate matches, freshman Ali Frantti earned Penn State Classic Most Outstanding Player honors. Senior Micha Hancock and junior Megan Courtney each earned spots on the All-Tournament team for their performances during an undefeated opening weekend at home. Hancock directed the Nittany Lions to a conference-high .436 hitting clip during the week, while also pacing Frantti (.482) and Courtney (.500) to a pair of Big Ten top-five hitting clips. Hancock's 11.33 assists per set ranks third in the league.

ROAD WARRIORS

Penn State moved to 9-1 in Big Ten matches on the road after sweeping past Northwestern in straight sets in the final road test of the regular season. PSU is 10-2 on the road this year in regular season contests.

PSU opened the 2014 Big Ten slate with a four-match road swing that featured matches against a trio of top-25 opponents. The Nittany Lions posted a 3-1 mark in the first two weeks of conference play picking up wins against No. 5 Wisconsin, No. 17 Minnesota and Iowa, despite a four-set loss to then-No. 8 Nebraska.

MORE BIG TEN WEEKLY HONORS FOR FRANTTI

Following a weekend of team-high performances in Palo Alto, Calif., freshman Ali Frantti was tabbed the Big Ten's Freshman of the Week for the second consecutive week. She opened the weekend with her first collegiate double-double against then-No. 2 Stanford, posting a match-high 22 kills on .405 hitting, adding 11 digs and two blocks. The next evening, she returned to the court to lead the offense with her fourth double-digit kill performance of the season, putting down 14 kills on .619 hitting, adding five digs in a straight set victory against UCLA.

WELCOME BACK!

In conjunction with Penn State's 50 years of Women in Sport celebration, all four opposing head coaches in the Penn State Alumni Classic were former Nittany Lions, including Eastern Illinois' Kate Price (2008), DePaul's Nadia Edwards (2001), University of Illinois-Chicago's Katie Shumacher-Cawley (2002) and East Carolina's Julie Torbett (1990).

PENN STATE TABBED BIG TEN PRESEASON FAVORITE

Penn State earned the No. 1 ranking in the 2014 Big Ten Preseason Coaches' Poll, which is decided by the league's 14 head coaches. The top-ranking marks the ninth time in the last 10 years that the 16-time defending Big Ten champion Nittany Lions have been voted No. 1 the preseason standings.

PRESEASON ALL-BIG TEN NITTANY LIONS

PSU is well represented on the All-Big Ten Preseason Team, with more honorees than any other conference team in the league for the second consecutive year. Senior setter Micha Hancock highlights a trio of 2014 honorees as a unanimous selection. She's joined by senior middle Nia Grant and junior outside Megan Courtney. The nod is the second consecutive for both Hancock and Courtney and the first career for Grant.

HANCOCK NOMINATED FOR 2014 ESPY AWARD

Penn State's Micha Hancock was one of two PSU student-athletes to be nominated for a 2014 ESPY Award, presented by ESPN. Hancock was nominated for Best Female Collegiate Athlete. Hancock's nomination marks the third time a PSU women's volleyball student-athlete has been up for an ESPY. Megan Hodge earned a nomination in 2010, following the '09 season, while Blair Brown was selected in 2011 following the '10 season.

I SCREAM, YOU SCREAM, ICE CREAM!

Earlier this summer Penn State's renowned Berkey Creamery unveiled a new "hall of fame" ice cream flavor named after legendary Nittany Lion women's volleyball head coach, Russ Rose. For the first time in more than 20 years, the flavor, Russ "digs" Roseberry, joins the creamery's lineup of "hall of fame" permanent flavors. The ice cream variety is made with black raspberry puree, red raspberry sauce and pure Wilbur's chocolate in a strawberry base.

NITTANY LIONS EARN TOP RANKING IN AVCA PRESEASON POLL

Penn State women's volleyball earned the No. 1 overall ranking in the 2014 AVCA Preseason Coaches' Poll. This year's poll features more Big Ten teams than any other conference, with the Nittany Lions among seven other league teams to be ranked within the top 25 and one of four to be within the top 10. Since 2004, Penn State has been ranked within the top five in every AVCA preseason poll, having earned a top-ranking five times (2008-11 & 2014).

Earning 32 of a possible 60 first-place votes, PSU claimed the top spot ahead of No. 2 Texas, No. 3 Stanford, No. 4 Washington and No. 5 USC. The Big Ten is also well represented in the lower half of the top 10 rankings with Wisconsin, Nebraska and Purdue in spots six through eight, consecutively. BYU and Florida rounded out the last spots at No. 9 and No. 10.

NITTANY LIONS IN THE NCAA TOURNAMENT

With an 88-26 all-time record in the NCAA tournament, Penn State has totaled 10 national final appearances ('93, '97, '98, '99, '07, '08, '09, '10, '12, '13), 11 trips to the national semifinals ('93, '94, '97, '98, '99, '07, '08, '09, '10, '12, '13) and six national championships ('99, '07, '08, '09, '10, '13).

A FORCE IN THE NATIONAL SEMIFINALS

Penn State is 9-2 all-time in the NCAA national semifinals after a dominant 3-0 win against Washington in the 2013 semifinals. Since 2007, Penn State has made more appearances in the national semifinals than any other program. The Lions have participated in seven of the last eight final fours, leading Texas by one appearance (6). Southern California (3), California (2) and Stanford (2) are the only other teams in the nation to appear in the NCAA semifinals more than once in that span.

REGIONAL FINAL FACTS

Penn State owns an 11-5 record all-time since the regional final match began in 1993. Penn State knocked off fourth-seeded Wisconsin to put together a 7-3 mark in elite eight matches, in the last 10 years having only missed the round of eight in 2011.

REGIONAL SEMIFINAL SNIPPETS

Making their 12th consecutive trip the NCAA regional semifinals, Penn State posted a straight set win against No. 12 UCLA. The Nittany Lions' streak of appearances in the round of 16 is the longest active DI stretch.

SUCCESS IN THE SECOND ROUND

Penn State improved to 20-5 all-time in round two of the NCAA tournament after posting a 3-0 win against Dayton. The win against the Flyers also marked Penn State's 12th consecutive second-round victory, since 2002, when Temple knocked PSU out of the tourney.

FIRST ROUND FACTS

PSU hosted the first two rounds of the NCAA tournament for the 28th time since 1981, welcoming a trio of tournament teams to Rec Hall last week for the 24th consecutive year. With the win against Siena, Penn State improved to 29-5 all-time in opening matches of the tourney, stretching its streak of 3-0 victories in the first round to 25 straight.

NCAA TOURNAMENT NOTES

- Penn State hit .436 or better in each of the opening two rounds of the NCAA tournament, posting a .436 (47-6-94) hitting clip against Dayton in round two.
- The Nittany Lions snapped Siena's nine-match winning streak in the opening round of the tournament, while also limiting All-MAAC first-teamer Meghann Wright to -.032 hitting (7-8-31).
- In the win against Dayton, Penn State held A10 Player of the Year Alaina Turner to just .148 hitting (9-5-27). While Turner ranked sixth nationally with 0.51 aces per set, she did not have any aces against the Nittany Lions.

RECORD BOOK WATCH: MICHA HANCOCK & NIA GRANT

With 31 assists against Ohio State (10/28), senior Micha Hancock eclipsed the 5,000 career assists mark, making her the sixth Nittany Lion in program history to reach the milestone. With 116 aces on the year, she's the just the second-student athlete in Big Ten history to amass 100 aces in a season.

Ranked second on the team and 11th in the conference with 1.11 blocks per set, senior Nia Grant moved improved her career blocks total to 455 after posting five blocks in the NCAA regional final match against fourth-seeded Wisconsin. The mark is tied for 12th on the PSU career list and puts her just 45 blocks shy of becoming the ninth Nittany Lion to reach the 500 career blocks plateau.

WHITNEY, GONZALEZ NAB PSU ALUMNI CLASSIC ALL-TOURNEY HONORS

Redshirt junior Aiyana Whitney and senior Dominique Gonzalez earned Penn State Alumni Classic all-tournament honors. Whitney was selected as the most outstanding player while Gonzalez earned a spot on the all-tournament team. Whitney posted a team-high .600 hitting clip, registering a career-high two aces against DePaul and a squad-best 13 kills against UIC. Gonzalez continued her steady play from the backrow, averaging a team-high 2.50 digs per set across four matches. She highlighted the weekend with 10 digs against UIC.

HANCOCK HIGHLIGHTS VILLANOVA CLASSIC ALL-TOURNAMENT SQUAD

Penn State dominated the Villanova Classic All-Tournament team as senior Micha Hancock highlighted a trio of honorees with MVP honors. Senior Nia Grant and redshirt junior Aiyana Whitney each earned All-Tournament team laurels. Hancock led the way from the service line, notching 21 aces on the weekend, while Grant powered the Penn State offense with a team-high .618 hitting percentage. Whitney had a season-high 13 kills and a career-high six blocks vs. No. 24 Kansas (9/13).

WASHINGTON EARNS B1G PLAYER OF THE WEEK HONOR

Following a pair of career-high performances in two victories against No. 17 Ohio State, Haleigh Washington has earned Big Ten Player of the Week honors. The award is the first of Washington's career and the second time a Nittany Lion has been selected as the Big Ten Player of the Week during the 2014 season.

Washington led the team with a .444 hitting percentage in a 2-0 week, hitting .429 or higher in back-to-back straight set wins against Ohio State. Defensively, she led the Nittany Lion blocking unit with 16 total blocks (4 BS, 12 BA), averaging 2.67 per set during the undefeated week.

SERVING UP A PROGRAM RECORD

Penn State served up 15 aces in a straight set victory against DePaul last weekend to match a PSU program record. The Nittany Lions originally set the record for the most amount of aces in a three set match in 2002, posted 15 aces against Fairfield Sept. 7th.

PENN STATE POSTS 38TH 20+ WINS SEASON

Following a straight-set victory against Michigan State, the Nittany Lions posted their 20th victory of the season, marking the 38th time in program history that PSU has reached 20 wins in a season. Penn State has reached the mark every year since the inaugural women's volleyball season in 1976.

NITTANY LIONS MONTH - BY- MONTH

Penn State is 40-5 (.889) all-time during the month of August, after notching a trio of victories against TCU, Iona and William & Mary last weekend. The Nittany Lions' first two losses came during the inaugural NACWAA in 1995 when Nebraska swept PSU, and in the 1999 NACWAA when Florida outlasted Penn State, 3-2, in the opening round. The Nittany Lions have not dropped a season opening match since losing to Oregon in 2011.

Penn State is 369-57-4 (.866) all-time during the month of September. The Lions are 194-18 (.915) during September dating back to the 1995 season and 52-9 (.852) within the last six years.

PSU is 394-69 (.851) all-time during the month of October. Penn State has posted a 93-13 (.877) mark in October across the last 10 seasons, and a record of 58-5 (.921) in the last five years, without losing a match during the month from 2007 to 2010.

Penn State is 294-57 (.838) all-time during the month of November, including a 97-8 (.924) mark across the last 10 seasons. The Nittany Lions posted a six-year streak from 1995-2000 where they did not lose a match in the month, and in the last five seasons, Penn State has a 53-3 (.946) mark in November.

In 2013, the Nittany posted unblemished records in three months, going 2-0 in August, 8-0 in October and 10-0 in November. The Nittany Lions compiled an 8-0 mark this year in the month of November.

QUICK SETS

From Oct. 16, 1996 to Nov. 9, 2001, Penn State won 139 consecutive matches when taking a 2-0 lead. Since joining the Big Ten in 1991, Penn State has played in 801 total matches, winning 742. Across the last seven years, Penn State has earned 181 of its 230 victories in three sets (79%), including 37-of-38 (98%) in 2008 and 32-of-38 in 2009 (84%).

In the last 15 years, the Lions have only lost 61 matches. And of those 22 teams that defeated the Lions - BYU, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Long Beach State, Michigan, Michigan State, Minnesota, Nebraska, Northwestern, Ohio State, Oregon, Oregon State, Purdue, USC, Stanford, Temple, Tennessee, Texas, UCLA, Washington and Wisconsin - only nine of these teams (Nebraska, Stanford, Ohio State, Illinois, Wisconsin, UCLA, Minnesota, Michigan State and Florida) have been able to beat Penn State a third time. The Lions have compiled a 289-61 mark in the last 15 years versus these teams.

WHO'S BACK

Two-time first team AVCA All-American Micha Hancock leads a solid group of four starters from last year's NCAA national championship squad. Hancock directed the Nittany Lion offense to a .305 hitting clip in 2013, which concluded the season ranked fifth nationally.

AVCA Honorable Mention All-America Nia Grant and starting outside Megan Courtney are two of Hancock's top attackers who return to the court. Having ranked within the top of the Big Ten and national standings throughout the season, Grant's .350 hitting clip closed out the year ranked second best on the team and fifth in the final conference standings. Courtney, who picked up 2014 Preseason All-Big Ten honors, finished the year with 297 kills, averaging 2.47 per set on .272 hitting. Her 2.51 digs per frame and 0.73 blocks per set ranked third on the squad.

Defensively, the Nittany Lions also return two-year starting libero Dominique Gonzalez, who has proved to be a steady leader in the back row. Averaging 3.28 digs per set in 2014, she amassed 416 digs on the year, posting double-digit digs in 23-of-36 matches in 2013.

EXPERIENCED SENIOR CORE

Comprised of four, this year's senior class features Lacey Fuller, Dominique Gonzalez, Nia Grant and Micha Hancock. Along with back-to-back Big Ten titles in 2012 and 2013, the veteran class holds a 16-2 (.889) mark in postseason play with a 4-0 mark in the 2014 NCAA tournament along with two consecutive NCAA national semifinal appearances in 2012-13 as well as the 2013 NCAA national title.

SPOTS TO FILL

Penn State has entered the 2014 season without a trio of standout student-athletes who were instrumental in the Nittany Lions' fifth national crown in the last seven years. 2013 Graduating seniors Deja McClendon, Katie Slay and Ariel Scott combined for 10 AVCA All-America honors during their four-year careers on the court, guiding both the 2010 and 2013 teams to a pair of NCAA national titles.

McClendon highlighted the 2013 All-America class as the only player to be honored as a four-time All-American. A true multi-faceted student-athlete, The Nittany Lions will have to replace McClendon's ability to pass, block, defend and attack. PSU will also need to replace Scott, a three-time AVCA All-American opposite who consistently served as the Nittany Lions' go-to hitter. Defensively, Slay departs Penn State as one of the most prolific blockers in program history, having earned three consecutive All-America honors to go along with her 627 career blocks, which ranks sixth all-time.

FRESHMAN INFLUENCE

Regarded by PrepVolleyball.com as "a class that rivals the best ever," Penn State's incoming freshman class features eight newcomers who will all be competing for spots on the court in 2014. Along with four state Gatorade Player of the Year honorees, five Nittany Lion newcomers were ranked within PrepVolleyball's top 15 in the nation, while three ranked among the top three.

NEW YEAR, NEW STAFF

Fresh faces on the court are not the only new additions this year, as a new staff joins Rose for the 2014 season. Following the departure of five-year assistant coach Kaleena Davidson, Stevie Mussie joins Penn State as an assistant coach after serving as in the same role at the University of Virginia.

Penn State women's volleyball gained more momentum shortly after Mussie's hiring as former All-American and Nittany Lion assistant coach Salima Rockwell re-joined the staff as associate head coach after spending five seasons at Texas.

LEADING LIONS

Seniors Nia Grant and Dominique Gonzalez have been selected as 2014 team captains. Senior Micha Hancock will also serve as the 2014 floor captain.

SUCCESS IN THE SEASON OPENER

Penn State improved to 30-6 all-time in season-openers after sweeping TCU in the first match of the Penn State Classic. The win against the Horned Frogs marked the Nittany Lions' third consecutive season-opening victory.

STREAKING!

Penn State holds the top three winning streaks in Big Ten history. Penn State's most recent streak of 65 consecutive matches began on Nov. 11, 2006 and ended on Sept. 24, 2010 at Illinois. It is the longest streak in league history. Penn State's other two conference winning streaks were 49 matches and 41. Illinois owns the fourth (40) and fifth (25) longest conference winning streaks.

Freshmen Frantti, Washington play key roles for Nittany Lions

UNIVERSITY PARK — A few minutes after the Penn State women's volleyball team had dispatched Dayton in three sets last Saturday, statistically putting on a dominating performance, coach Russ Rose had some harsh words for his team.

He was critical of the team's energy level and passion.

She may be just a freshman, but Haleigh Washington took it as a challenge.

"If Coach says the team is lacking energy, it means I have to step it up," Washington said. "I've got to be goofier, I've got to have bigger dance moves, I've got to find a way. There's always a way for energy to leak. That's the thing about energy — it's incredibly contagious."

The seniors talk about leadership and inspiring the team on the court, but the biggest ball of energy on the floor this season has been the 6-foot-3 middle blocker from Colorado Springs, Colo.

And on a team with four seniors in key positions, it will be a pair of freshmen in Washington and Ali Frantti who will have a huge influence on whether the Nittany Lions advance to the program's seventh national title.

The road for the defending champions resumes with their NCAA regional semifinal against UCLA at 7 p.m. Friday at the KFC Yum Center in Louisville, Ky. Wisconsin and Ohio State meet in the other match, with the winners tangling at 4 p.m. Saturday.

In a freshmen class that was heralded nationally as the year's best, and in the discussion for the best class ever, Frantti and Washington have stood out. Frantti has started every match and leads the team with 3.27 kills per set. Washington missed the first few weeks of the season battling injuries, but appeared in 22 matches, starting 18, with an average of 2.72 kills per set, a team-best .492 hitting percentage and a team-leading 1.22 blocks per set.

"The biggest thing for them is they always want to improve," senior middle blocker Nia Grant said. "That's awesome. If you never want to stop learning, then you're always going to get better."

They also were rivals for season-ending honors. Washington was the Big Ten's Freshman of the Year, while Frantti won the honor for the Northeast Region. Washington actually cannot win any national honors — her hitting percentage would be leading the nation as well — because she hasn't played enough sets after missing so much time early.

"They are both very — one's crazy and one's really enthusiastic," senior setter Micha Hancock said. "They're great people to play around. I couldn't have asked for a better freshman class. They're efficient, and I love that about them."

They both have handled all that has been asked of them, and as the season has progressed both have added new places along the net to take swings.

"I don't think they get too rattled by competitive environments or opponents," Rose said. "Those are things, they have to learn new tricks along the way, new shots. You can't have the same shot at the beginning of the year, middle of the year, end of the year because all the teams have access to all your tapes and videos."

Frantti was tearing up the competition right from the outset. She led the team in kills in each of its first two matches, and by the fourth contest of the season, a 3-2 loss to Stanford, she put down a match-high 22 kills. She's been the team-leader in kills 15 times, although there was a stretch in the middle of the season in which she struggled.

"It's just focus in on what I can do, what I can control," Frantti said. "I think it's just, I'm trying to get better at being consistent when I play. Overall I think it's the mental game. You have to be strong at all points."

The 6-foot-1 outside hitter from Spring Grove, Ill., also was helped in finding her footing with the team by graduating from high school early and enrolling at Penn

State in January. It gave her seven months to learn with the team, including spring practices, before the start of training camp. "She's grown so much," Grant said. "Her level of mental capacity has come such a long way. She's a lot smarter, her game has improved with different shots, her defense and her passing has gotten a lot better."

Washington also has added variety in her offense, although almost all of her swings still come from a one-legged takeoff. Most volleyball players, especially middles, approach the net with a takeoff from two feet, jumping almost straight up. For most swings, Washington rises up like on a basketball layup.

"I am awful off two feet," Washington said. "Which is terrible, because as a middle you should be very versatile."

Along with her hitting is her undeniable fire. After nearly every Penn State point when she is on the court, Washington puts that passion on display.

"Haleigh's always smiling," Frantti said. "I love playing with Haleigh."

So, is there ever a time when she isn't smiling?

"When I miss that block that I know I was supposed to get," Washington said, gritting her teeth, "I tend to lose a smile. But I don't know. There's always the next point."

Washington said she wasn't viewing this weekend's matches as being too different from all the other tournaments she has played in before her arrival, it's just that the crowd, the pressure and the stakes will be bigger.

She is ready for that challenge too.

"It's still volleyball," Washington said. "Playing the game you love."

Nittany Lions' Fuller, Gonzalez are fire and ice heading into NAAs

UNIVERSITY PARK — The personalities are different, the styles of play are different, but there is no denying their importance.

Lacey Fuller is fiery and excitable, silly and outgoing, and possessing an engine that doesn't stop.

Dominique Gonzalez is calm and steady, she talks plenty but it's not as noticeable, and is one of the best back row players in the Big Ten, even if it isn't acknowledged by the conference.

The women on the front row of the Penn State women's volleyball team get the bulk of the glory. Rec Hall erupts when a Nittany Lion hammers down a huge kill or stuffs an opposing player with a block, and Micha Hancock gets almost the entire building to go silent before a collective "boom!" with each of her serves.

But the defending national champions would not be 30-3 and a No. 5 seed for the NCAA Tournament without top-level play from its passers.

The Nittany Lions head to the first round to meet Siena (19-14) at 7:30 p.m. at Rec Hall, following American and Dayton at 5 p.m. in the first match. The winners meet in the second round at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

The passing from the back row will play a big role if Penn State hopes to win the program's seventh national title.

Both Fuller and Gonzalez, two of Penn State's four seniors this season heading into their final weekend of home matches, are the team's top passers and help in the transition from defense to offense. They just happen to have different approaches to the same goal.

"They're wired totally different, for sure," coach Russ Rose said. "Lacey loves volleyball, loves competing, hates to lose. Dom is a great passer, a good leader, but not wired the same way. What makes them valuable is you pack the two of them together, and we really don't have great replacements for those two individuals as we head into next year, but we will focus on this year first." Both women acknowledge their differences.

"We're a lot different from each other, but we complement each other in different ways," Gonzalez said.

"Coach talks about it, (Fuller is) a little edgy sometimes because she does play hard. She has a lot of energy all the time."

"Dom's super steady with her emotions and her game," Fuller said. "She's really consistent as a passer and defender. She's also really good at managing our underclassmen, so if they're kind of nervous or anything, she's really good at just talking to them and telling them specific information about what's going on."

Talking is certainly an under appreciated part of the game, especially for a back row player. In addition to the physical role of passing, receiving serves and trying to dig up an opponent's swings, they also have to call out blocks and make other calls during points.

As a libero who is in the back row for all but one-half of a rotation in every match, Gonzalez has learned to talk more in her job.

Their job is also a lot more intricate than one might think by just watching from the Rec Hall bleachers, with pages and pages of scouting reports and charts. Over the years past liberos have admitted it has taken the better part of a year to get up to speed with all that is expected of that position.

"It was a pretty steep learning curve," Gonzalez said. "There was a lot to learn about the game, and the speed of the game and the facets you have as a backrow player, not just a libero but a back row player in general, the steadiness you have to have and the technique behind it that goes into it that people don't see, the talking, all of that, you have to learn quickly."

Both women know and understand their roles beyond passing and serving as well.

Gonzalez has the steady hand on the rudder, whether the Nittany Lions are rolling off eight straight points, like they did last Saturday to start a win against Nebraska, or losing three or four in a row.

"I like to be that person you look at on the court when things aren't going our way," Gonzalez said, "'Hey, it's going to be OK. We're going to be OK and we're going to win.'"

"She's not flashy but she's tough and a great passer," Rose said. "She's a good defensive player and she's really been a very stable human being in our program."

Fuller, meanwhile, loves to pump energy into her teammates, whether it's at game point in front of a packed Rec Hall crowd or late in a South Gym practice.

"Whenever a drill or a game starts, I'm just really focused," Fuller said. "I do definitely try to bring energy because I don't have as much responsibility, so I definitely need to make an impact any way I can."

"She has played every practice as if it's going to be her last practice," Rose said. "It's a cliché in a lot of ways, but in her case it's really accurate. There aren't a lot of kids that I've said, 'I would coach you forever.' She's a kid I would coach forever."

Despite their steady and dependable play, the pair rarely gets acknowledged outside State College. Gonzalez had been Big Ten Defensive Player of the Week just once in her career. Penn State is 12th out of the 14 Big Ten teams in digs, and Gonzalez ranks 11th at 3.62 digs per set.

The problem is the Nittany Lions are usually a solid blocking team, and have the nation's best hitting attack.

"Part of our strength is our weakness," Rose said. "There are just fewer balls to be dug. We're terminating at a high level. ... If you want to lead the conference in digging, you want to keep the ball in play. We're not trying to keep it in play. We want somebody to take a quality swing."

Taking a quality swing starts with a good pass from Fuller and Gonzalez. They will be showing off those skills in Rec Hall for the last time Friday and Saturday.

"Being able to play one last match in Rec Hall will be nice," Gonzalez said. "The goal is still to get as far as you can, win a national championship, but we realize it's going to be tough. It's a hard road. Every team wants the same thing."

Whitney Looking to Build on Strong Start to 2014

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. — Everyone has an idol or role model that he or she grows up admiring, whether it be a family member, a celebrity, an athlete, or someone in a different occupation. We based our lives and principles around these certain individuals because we wanted to grow up and accomplish everything our heroes had achieved.

The same story goes for women's volleyball redshirt junior Aiyana Whitney who began playing volleyball after watching her older sister, Anissa Whitney, on the court.

"[I started playing] in middle school," said Whitney. "My older sister picked it up in her high school years and I was just kind of one of those little sisters that said "I want to do it too," and I didn't expect to fall in love with it, so I mean, I guess I would owe it all to her and me just wanting to be like her."

Whitney's older sister helped shape Aiyana into the player she is today.

"I knew nothing about the sport and she definitely helped me out as best as she could growing up," said Whitney. "I think kind of just watching her play and then she kind of encouraged me to take it more seriously and you know, start to really try and improve my game to play at top level."

Nearly four years ago, when it came time for Whitney to select a college to attend, she knew that no other school would compare to Penn State when it came to playing volleyball at the top level.

"You come to a program like this because you want to play in gyms such as Nebraska the other night," said Whitney. "I mean, those are the atmospheres you come to big schools for and I think just Penn State's tradition of winning and excellence and success has been something that draws any player who wants to play big time volleyball, so I think that's what made me come."

Whitney is having an excellent season thus far. She currently has a .377 hitting percentage, which sits at the fifth spot in the Big Ten standings. She received MVP honors from the Penn State Alumni Classic for leading the team in terrific offensive and defensive performances, especially during the win over UIC when she led the team with 13 kills on .722 hitting. Whitney also made the All-Tournament Team following the Villanova Classic after she recorded double-digit kills and a career-high of six blocks in the team's win over No. 24 Kansas.

This past weekend, Whitney logged nine kills and two blocks as Penn State faced off Nebraska and Iowa. Though the Nittany Lions swept past Iowa, the team fell short against Nebraska. Although, Penn State beat Iowa to cap off the weekend, Whitney believes that there is still much to improve on.

"I think we just need to get our game a little tighter. I feel like we had a lot of holes in our game in terms of running on offense. It was kind of difficult for us to get middles involved and things like that," said Whitney. "I know on a personal note, blocking and transition balls are something I need to work on and I think if we get that side of our game a little more air-tight than we have a better chance of competing harder against our opponents."

Whitney is looking on the positive side of things, nonetheless.

"I think coming out of it, we see what we need to work on and we see where we need to tighten our game," said Whitney. "I think it's kind of given us even more motivation going into this week of practice to really prepare for this upcoming weekend."

The Nittany Lions take on Northwestern and Illinois this week and Whitney is moving forward with great confidence.

"This season, I definitely want to defend what we earned last year and I think the best way to do that is to pick up our game now and look forward to the rest of the season," said Whitney. "No one ever likes losing and loses are pretty awful, so I think right now the main focus is on the matches we have ahead of us and just getting better every day."

Ali Frantti has helped women's volleyball with her offense and her laughter

UNIVERSITY PARK — If you've heard anything about Penn State women's volleyball in the past couple of weeks, you've probably heard the name Ali Frantti at least once or twice — and rightfully so.

The freshman phenom has burst onto the college volleyball scene. She's led the team in kills in all but one match so far this campaign. She's amassed 67 kills over the course of five matches, good for tops on the squad .

She takes big, quick swings at the top of the net. Standing at 6-foot-1 , she patrols the airspace in search of kills and blocks. And more often than not, she gets them.

But even when she doesn't, it doesn't change her demeanor. Whether she's just slammed a ball in the middle of the opponent's defense or she's squeaked one just wide outside the line, there's one common denominator: she's always smiling.

That's just who she is. It's what she does. No matter what Frantti's doing, she seems to always be smiling. And, you better believe it's real.

"I think she's a pretty genuine individual," coach Russ Rose said. "And I think people respond well to people when they're like that."

Alexandra, Ali for short, comes from a big family. Six people occupy the Frantti home: Ali and her three brothers, and parents, Dan and Kelly.

Now, at Penn State, Frantti is adjusting to life with sisters — 19 to be exact.

Many of her new "siblings" are older than the 18-year-old Frantti, and if you ask her, that's a good thing.

The upperclassmen have played a vital role in helping Frantti and the rest of her classmates acclimate to life in Happy Valley.

One such sister helped Frantti tackle her first road trip this past weekend when the team travelled to California to take on two Pac-12 powerhouses.

Junior outside hitter Megan Courtney filled the big sister role as her roommate on the West Coast. In between back-to-back primetime performances, Courtney said the freshman had a little bit of a tough time.

"She forgot her key every single time we went back to the room and she forgot her jersey one time," Courtney said through laughter. "And everyone is looking at me because I'm like the junior and I was just saying it's not my fault ... You know, she's Ali so you've got to keep an eye on her."

Laughter is no stranger to Frantti. She's not afraid to laugh at herself and she's always making her teammates laugh, whether it's telling a joke during practice, continually forgetting her hotel key, or livening up workouts.

"She's a little crazy in the weight room," senior setter Micha Hancock said. "She hit herself with the bar one time and it was funny, so we give her a hard time with that."

Hancock added that there isn't really a time when Frantti is not cracking a joke or providing humor in some fashion.

The freshman and the senior have had similar stories so far.

Hancock showcased her incredible talent in her first match during her freshman season against USC, and she's been starting ever since. That year, Hancock was named Big Ten Freshman of the Year — an accolade Frantti could very well be in line to take.

The senior sees a little bit of herself in young Frantti.

"She's not afraid to play, and I think I was the same way," Hancock said. "I think we were both a little naïve in that we didn't really know what we were doing. We were just playing hard and doing what we could."

That's Frantti's mantra. Her desire is to do whatever is asked of her in order to contribute to the team. Whether that's leading the team in kills or simply boosting her team's spirit, she's willing to do whatever it takes to win.

"She's awesome," Courtney said. "Just looking over at her and seeing that she has a smile on her face whether we're losing by 20 points or winning by 50. That's the kind of person she is."

Frantti's classmate Simone Lee knows what it's like to play alongside Frantti. More often than not, Frantti and Lee are on the court at the same time for Penn State, plus she played a year of club ball with her prior to arriving in Happy Valley.

But Lee also knows what it's like to play against her. She did it quite a few times during her high school years. Through the years, Lee has become very fond of her counterpart.

"I love Ali," Lee said. "Everything about her. She's just super full of energy all the time. What you see on the court is what is going to happen off the court. I just love being around her. She always brings a smile to people's faces, which isn't a normal thing for a lot of people to do."

Frantti had the advantage of enrolling early last year. She was able to get her feet on the ground before diving into her first season as an NCAA athlete. But even with the extra semester, these first few weeks have been a bit of a challenge.

"It's a whole different ball game when you come and you have the season and everything," Frantti said. "But it's been great so far. I think I've been adjusting well."

She said she still has things to work on like organization and seeking help from professors. But that's expected. She is just a freshman, after all.

Coming into a program with three starting spots to fill, the second-ranked recruit in the nation had an opportunity to jump right in and make a splash. And it was a cannonball.

Rose said Frantti was essentially a starter ever since her first action in preseason practices.

All of the hype is not going to her head, though. She's quick to thank the five other players on the court for her individual success. She is appreciative of her teammates and knows she wouldn't be where she is without them.

But the freshman misses home, too. She recognizes that without it, she wouldn't be where she is now.

"Honestly, I just miss being home in my little hometown," Frantti said. "You know, it's that community that's supported you for so long. They've seen you grow up. It's just great and I just love the people."

A native of Spring Grove, Illinois — a small town of about 5,000 — she misses the close-knit community. State College is a far cry from it.

At University Park, it can be easy to feel like one of one million in the crowd on an average day. And, Frantti has some of those. She goes to class like everyone else. She studies, stresses about assignments and walks the streets.

For five of the seven days of the week, Frantti is one of thousands of Penn State students with a busy schedule. But for two days of the week, when Frantti takes the court alongside five of her sisters, she forgets about all that. Often, she helps her teammates do the same.

"She's very comfortable," Hancock said. "It's just her persona — it's how she is. It's been nice to have a little life in the freshman class and I think she's really helped the whole team kind of relax a little bit."

Frantti is relaxed when she's on the court. She doesn't look nervous or frightened by bright lights. She's at ease — at home. For two nights, for two matches, Frantti is focused on one thing: playing volleyball.

Always with a smile on her face.

Women's Volleyball's Micha Hancock a Relentless Competitor

UNIVERSITY PARK — The recipe for success can be modeled after Penn State women's volleyball senior Micha Hancock. The ingredients are simple - be competitive, be tough, work hard, be a leader and be humble.

Hancock is adorned with many awards during her decorated Penn State career. She was the 2013 NCAA Tournament Most Outstanding Player, was named AVCA First Team All-America for two consecutive years, was named a finalist for an ESPY, among many other accolades. All of the recognitions begin with Hancock's drive to be the best.

Be Competitive: Hancock started playing volleyball when she was very young. Her mom, a volleyball player herself, brought Hancock into the gym with her before she could even walk. When she was nine, she began playing competitive volleyball with her older sister.

The Oklahoma native grew up trying to keep up with her sister, who is three years older, whether it was on the court or off. This is where Hancock's competitive spirit originated.

"Even when we're running to the car, I want to get there first. I've always been pretty competitive," Hancock said. "I feel like it's in my blood."

Hancock's competitive nature grew with her and eventually became a part of her. And it helped her land a spot on Penn State's roster. In high school, Hancock was committed to play volleyball at another college. During spring break of her senior year of high school, she visited Penn State, talked to head coach Russ Rose, changed her commitment... and the rest was history.

"I liked the staff, I loved the campus, I loved the school, and I had heard great things about it, so I made the decision to come here," Hancock said.

Her teammates and coaches have appreciated her competitive nature as well. In fact, Rose's favorite part about Micha is how competitive she is.

"She's really competitive, she's got a great arm and she's physically competitive," Rose said.

Hancock and associate head coach Salima Rockwell have a close relationship and it shows during matches. Against No. 17 Ohio State on Tuesday night, Rockwell took Hancock aside and had a one-on-one conversation with her during a time out. As Rockwell spoke, Hancock nodded her head, seeming to be on the exact same page as Rockwell.

"Micha's awesome. She's so much fun to coach. She's someone that's confident. And she's a severe competitor," Rockwell said.

Playing on the court with a player like Hancock benefits the entire team. Teammate and friend Megan Courtney said she has formed a great relationship with Hancock over the past three years.

"She's like no other person I've ever played with. She's competitive, she's a great role model, she does what she does really well and she expects the best out of you," Courtney said. "She's a great person to play with because she's never too high or too low. She's always consistent."

Be Tough: "Sssss... Boom!"

That's the sound of the crowd in Rec Hall while Hancock serves. The cheer, replicating the sound of a bomb, is because of her aggressive, explosive serve.

Her serve came from playing as both a hitter and a setter in her early years of volleyball. She uses the skills she learned from being an attacker in her serving. Hancock has 322 career aces, a program record.

Being an attacker gave Hancock the skills to become a successful hitter on the team, as well. Against Ohio State, Hancock had five kills on seven swings.

Hancock is both mentally and physically tough. She rallies the team after losing a point, dives for every ball and serves tough.

Freshman Haleigh Washington admires Hancock for how tough she is. Washington said she hopes to play like Hancock one day.

"[It] doesn't matter if we're down, [it] doesn't matter if we're up, [it] doesn't matter what's happening, she's a really tough kid. She's a hard worker, she'll hit the ground, she'll dive, she'll roll around, she'll keep going, she'll get criticism," Washington said. "She's a tough kid that can handle a lot. It's really admirable and it's something that I want to develop as a player myself."

Work Hard: Hancock's efforts against Ohio State did not go unnoticed. In addition to her five kills, the senior setter had four digs and a season-high seven blocks. She is working hard both physically and emotionally as a leader of the team, trying to rally the team and increase the level of play during the remainder of her senior season.

"The biggest thing we're trying to focus on is coming out of the gate strong. It's nice to have three 3-0 wins in a row, you feel like you're getting tighter with the group," Hancock said. "We needed to have more energy [earlier in the season] and I think we've been showing that with our 3-0 wins."

Hancock has been a hard worker since

Women's Volleyball's Micha Hancock a Relentless Competitor

she stepped on the court. She holds the Penn State record for career aces, she has been named Big Ten Setter of the Year, AVCA First-Team All America, Big Ten Player of the Week, Big Ten Freshman of the Year and much more.

Her hard work paid off in 2013 when the team won the NCAA National Championship. But surprisingly, that isn't her favorite memory as a Penn State women's volleyball player.

"[My favorite memory] was the two years leading up to the national championship because it created the fight we had that third year, my junior year, to win the championship," Hancock said. "And that's the most important thing, just being a team."

Be a Leader: As a freshman playing in every match, Hancock was guided by seniors, who showed her the ropes of Penn State women's volleyball. Now, as a senior, it's her time to be a leader.

Her goal for her senior season is to continue as a successful leader of the team.

"[My goal is to] lead the best I can, get as much out of this team as we can," Hancock said. "I'm trying to work with the staff, work with the girls individually, watch film, know what I can be better at and ease the path to hopefully compete for a championship."

Hancock's leadership during matches is what sets her apart from other players. In every huddle, she is the one telling her teammate, 'good job', telling the team what to do next and encouraging the team after a lost point.

During timeouts, after Rose talks to the team, it's Hancock's turn, getting the players ready for the next series of points.

She's the first to high-five the player who got the kill, ace or block, and she's the first to lift a teammate's spirit after an error or lost point.

Washington said Hancock's leadership has been efficient and it has helped her adjust to playing college volleyball.

"She keeps us very focused, which is a good trait to have, especially as a leader. She focuses on the next point, focuses on staying calm, focuses on staying excited," Washington said. "She makes sure that we're paying attention, that we're ready for the next play and that we know what's going on. Especially as freshman, we haven't played the game very much, she keeps us locked in."

From a coaching standpoint, Rockwell also sees her success as a leader.

"She's a senior now, she's got that sense of urgency. She wants to win, she wants to be great," Rockwell said. "The girls feel that, they follow along with that. She's doing an excellent job leading this team."

Be Humble: The match against Ohio State on Tuesday was an important match between two Big Ten teams. The Big Ten Network had a camera set up on the court during warm ups and most of the time, the camera was on Hancock.

As she stretched, jogged and talked to teammates, the camera was right there with her. But not once did she act differently, or even acknowledge that that camera was on her.

Courtney said that despite the attention that Hancock gets for her level of play, she always remains humble.

"She gets a lot of hype for how good she is, but if you actually have a chance to talk to her, and sit down with her and actually have a meaningful conversation with her, she is so down to earth," Courtney said.

What's Next: As a senior, this season is Hancock's last time in a Penn State uniform. She said being a senior feels very different.

"I definitely feel the urgency of senior year and trying to lead these girls, the young ones especially, who have so much talent," Hancock said. "It's great to see them working hard, but also getting them mentally prepared for the years to come. It's really fun."

After graduating, Hancock hopes to play professionally.

"I love the game so much, and that's what I want to do," Hancock said.

The team and the Penn State volleyball community will miss Hancock when she graduates, but her legacy will live on.

"I'm really going to miss her, but I wish her the best of luck in what she does. And I know even then, if she plays professionally or for the national team, she's still going to be humble and great," Courtney said. "She's just an all-around great person, not just a great player."

Nia Grant looks to round out career with return to national championship match

UNIVERSITY PARK — Nia Grant admitted to being a little star-struck last week.

"It was surreal," Grant, the senior middle hitter for the Penn State women's volleyball team said.

Despite being filled with confidence from four successful seasons and a 2013 national championship, what had Grant fumbling her words?

Former Nittany Lion All-American and 2012 Olympic silver medalist Christa Harmotto paid a visit to the team.

Harmotto played a major role in two national championships before she graduated and turned professional, one of a number of standouts in the deep and rich history of the Penn State program. When Harmotto graduated she set the NCAA record for single-season hitting percentage and was second in career hitting, although those marks have since been surpassed.

While she may not be breaking any NCAA records, Grant has been doing her part to make her career memorable. Her career will be celebrated, along with teammates Micha Hancock, Dominique Gonzalez and Lacey Fuller, at the team's Senior Night and regular-season finale against Nebraska at 8:30 p.m. on Saturday. The Division I NCAA Volleyball Tournament selection show will be the following day.

With an opportunity to run off six more wins in the NCAA Tournament and graduate in December with a second national title to her credit is something Grant is looking forward to doing, to join the likes of Harmotto.

The two of them got to talk, middle hitter to middle hitter, last week to thrill the Grant, a senior from Warren, Ohio. They had met before, when Grant was still in high school making a recruiting visit and there was a brief "hello," but nothing like last week's encounter.

"Christa walked in the other day and I was like, 'Oh my God!'" Grant said. "I couldn't believe it. It was somebody I've been looking up to as far as volleyball for so long, and she's standing right there giving me feedback."

The list of standout Penn State middle hitters is not limited to Harmotto, who was gone for a season before Grant enrolled in her first class. Arielle Wilson, who broke those single-season and career hitting percentage records the next season, was Grant's immediate predecessor in the middle, and Katie Slay was a teammate for three seasons, just to name a few All-Americans.

"It was a lot of pressure just to fill in the shoes," said Grant, an honorable mention All-American as a junior. "That's a big deal. Those are your idols and you're just supposed to come in and fill their shoes. It was scary."

Even today, as one who is leaving her own mark, she still considers those shoes pretty sizable.

Getting the 6-foot-2 Grant to reach her full potential wasn't always the easiest, according to coach Russ Rose, who said there were "some battles to get Nia to do some things."

"She has worked it out," Rose said, "and it will have a great deal to do with our chances for success."

After quietly working her way through the previous three seasons, with the outgoing personalities of Slay and Deja McClendon at the forefront of the team, Grant has appeared comfortable being a leader this season.

She is more aggressive in her swings, and her blocking has improved.

She leads the nation hitting .462, and is third on the team averaging 2.41 kills per set, while her 118 total blocks paces the team and her average of 1.16 blocks per set is second on the Lions behind freshman Haleigh Washington.

As a junior, Grant was averaging just 1.76 kills and 0.82 blocks per set while hitting .350.

"Potential to performance is so much the player," said Rose, pointing out Grant needed time to mature into her role. "The coaches have to identify it, but the players have to embrace it and really make it a part of what they want to accomplish."

While another NCAA title would be the perfect way to end her career, Grant also admitted to hoping she gets a conversation with someone else soon. She would love getting an invitation from women's basketball coach Coquese Washington to join the Lady Lions.

"If she wants me," Grant said. "I don't know if I can say no."

She plays the game occasionally, but the lithe Grant admits she has never tried to work in the low post against someone the size of, say, 6-foot-5 junior Candace Agee and her sturdy frame. She talks with Agee frequently, is friends with a number of team members and has threatened to Agee she was going to stop by practice.

"Athletically I think I could handle it," Grant said. "But it's a lot different from volleyball."

But Grant also knows she belongs on the volleyball court, loves the game, is not burned out and hopes to play the sport professionally as long as possible.

Saying good-bye on Saturday night will be tough, and seeing the season end in December will be even tougher.

"I'm going to miss my friends," Grant said. "They're all in the locker room. Once I leave I'm going to have to start over, but I'm excited to see what's next, to just grow up I guess."

Penn State women's volleyball welcoming old, new faces to Rec Hall this weekend

UNIVERSITY PARK — The No. 6 Nittany Lions (22-3, 10-2 Big Ten) welcome a mixture of new and old faces to Rec Hall this weekend in their matchups with Big Ten newcomers Rutgers (7-18, 0-12) and Maryland (9-14, 2-10).

Tonight's 7 p.m. match with the Scarlet Knights will be the first between the two in three years, while Saturday's contest at the same time against the Terrapins is the first meeting in just shy of 10 years.

Maryland is coached by former Penn State assistant Steve Aird and director of operations Adam Hughes.

Aird played volleyball for the men's team at Penn State from 1997-01 and coached at Auburn and Cincinnati before returning to State College in 2007 as an assistant coach and director of operations for the women's program.

After leaving the coaching field for several years, Aird reclaimed an assistant position with the Lions in 2012 and was a part of the 2013 national championship team.

Lions coach Russ Rose believes that this weekend's outing with Maryland presents an interesting dynamic because Aird knows so much about Penn State, while Rose and staff know relatively little about the Terrapins.

"I want them to have success because I care for them, but I don't want them to have success against us," Rose said. "I want them to have success in building a program on their own two legs."

The Penn State players reiterated Rose's sentiments regarding playing against a former coach.

"Maryland has two of our former coaches there, and they're great," senior Dominique Gonzalez said.

"They've been around us for a little while so they know what we have to offer. So I think we're going in with same mindset that we've always had — go out there, play our best volleyball, play hard and hopefully come out with a win."

Gonzalez acknowledged that despite a poor record on paper, the opponents this weekend have offered other Big Ten teams an array of challenges.

Junior Megan Courtney, who played two years under Aird and Hughes, believes Maryland has a unique advantage over other Big Ten even though it is newer to the conference.

"It's kind of intimidating coming into Rec Hall [as an opposing team]," Courtney said. "But they [Aird and Hughes] aren't going to be intimidated and they can tell their team what it's like because they both have experience playing and coaching in here."

Courtney still wants to perpetuate the notion that the Big Ten is a tough conference to play in, especially among the elite teams like the Lions.

"I think the team's mindset is to show them what the Big Ten is about," Courtney said. "I don't mean that in a bad way. It's just Penn State volleyball prides itself in being hard working and really taking care of business."

Nittany Lions beat Wisconsin in 4 sets, headed to NCAA semifinals

LOUISVILLE, KY. — In a season for major freshmen contributions, it was a first-year player igniting the Penn State women's volleyball team Saturday evening at a key time.

Simone Lee came off the bench to play the final three sets and fired up the Nittany Lions to rally past Wisconsin 3-1 in the NCAA regional finals at the KFC Yum Center.

The 22-25, 25-16, 25-22, 25-19 victory sends Penn State to its 12th national semifinal, and seventh in the last eight seasons, as the team looks to defend its crown and earn its sixth banner in the last eight years.

"It was a hotly contested match and both teams played really hard," coach Russ Rose said. "We're thrilled with the opportunity to continue our season for another week."

After their 18th straight win, the Nittany Lions (34-3) will face No. 1 Stanford, a 3-0 winner over No. 8 Florida, in the national semifinals in Oklahoma City at 9:30 p.m. Thursday. The Cardinal and Nittany Lions share the NCAA record for most titles for a program with six apiece. Penn State beat Stanford in last year's regional final, and the Cardinal edged the Lions 3-2 in early September.

Texas also advanced after beating North Carolina 3-1, and Nebraska faced BYU late Saturday to determine the final semifinal spot.

In a rematch of last year's NCAA title match and a battle of the Big Ten's top two teams, Aiyana Whitney put down 16 kills, Haleigh Washington posted 10 kills and five blocks, Nia Grant also had five stuffs, Dominique Gonzalez recorded 24 digs and Megan Courtney picked up 13 digs and a pair of aces.

Lee came on as a substitute for a struggling Ali Frantti and had a big second set before cooling off a little. She finished with a dozen kills against seven errors to hit .161, adding a pair of blocks.

"I was just really glad to be able to come in off the bench and make a difference on the court," Lee said. "That's one thing Coach talks about a lot is just how, if you get the opportunity to play, you want to make a difference."

While Frantti and Washington have gotten the bulk of the attention for this year's freshman class, Lee also had a solid season. The product of Menomonee Falls, Wis., played in 25 matches and started one, knocking down 2.02 kills per set and hitting .241.

Her 12 kills matched her season high entering the night — when the Lions and Badgers met in the regular season in Madison.

Another of Penn State's big weapons also struggled. Micha Hancock, the nation's leading server and the program's single-season and career ace-server, had trouble getting her serve on the court. The senior, who also had 45 assists and seven kills, had six service errors and two aces, breaking through when she ticked the net on an attempt with the ball fluttering to the Badger side late in the third set.

Wisconsin (31-3) also struggled with its serve, with 14 errors against one ace for some free points for Penn State.

Both teams put up less-than-stellar numbers. The Nittany Lions, the nation's best hitting team, succeeded at just a .182 rate while the Badgers hit .155. Wisconsin also won the blocking battle 14-11 and the Lions had a 56-45 edge in kills.

The Badgers were hampered by a high-ankle sprain for setter Lauren Carlini, the Big Ten's Setter and Player of the Year, who turned her left ankle early in the first set. Reports had her wearing a boot on her foot all week and missing practices, and she missed about eight points before returning to the court, moving around with an obvious limp, although coach Kelly Sheffield said her earlier injury was different from Saturday's.

"The doctor told me if we won this match that she probably wouldn't have been able to play next week," Sheffield said. "She got it really, really good. I mean, everybody saw she looks like (former New York Knick legend) Willis Reed out there limping around."

If anyone could sympathize with Carlini, it would be Hancock, who suffered a sprained ankle in the 2012 NCAA semifinals in a loss to Oregon — on the very same floor.

"I know exactly how it feels wobbling on the court," the senior setter said. "You're not 100 percent. And it sucks too, because it's nice to compete when someone's at their best, and that's what you want."

Carlini did collect 38 assists, with 13 kills for Courtney Thomas and 12 each for Kelli Bates and Dominique Thompson. Haleigh Nelson racked up nine blocks and Thomas added eight, and Taylor Morey had 17 digs.

Penn State struggled through the first set, even with Carlini hampered by her injury. Four errors from the service line, five unforced errors from the hitters and some inconsistent passing helped the Badgers. The Lions hit a tough .095 in the frame.

"Definitely a shaky start for sure," Whitney said. "But it's like what Coach tells us all the time — we have to look in each other's eyes. We have to know the ultimate goal is reachable. If we dig deep and we grind it out, then we can get together and pull out a win."

The loss ended a run of 50 consecutive set victories for Penn State, dating back to a match against Purdue on Oct. 17, with a run of 17 straight 3-0 sweeps.

To start the second set, Rose chose to put in Lee for Frantti, and it paid off almost immediately.

Frantti had one kill, three errors and hit minus-.200 in the first set.

Lee put down six kills on eight error-free swings in the second, capping the frame with a huge cross-court blast to lock it up.

Both teams struggled through some sloppy play in the third, but the Lions closed the frame on a 5-1 run, capped by a solo block for Lee.

The fourth set was nip-and-tuck until the Nittany Lions closed by taking seven of the final eight points, with three kills and two blocks for Whitney during the stretch. Whitney and Grant combined to stuff a Bates attempt on the final point to earn the berth to Oklahoma City.

Nittany Lions cruise past Siena in first round

UNIVERSITY PARK — It took a little while, but once the Penn State women's volleyball team got warmed up, it was a handful to stop.

Siena had no answers Friday night.

Dominating with its size and power, the fifth-seeded Nittany Lions swept away the Saints 25-17, 25-10, 25-5 Friday night at Rec Hall in their NCAA first-round match.

"We had a nice day controlling the ball," coach Russ Rose said. "It wasn't a match where we had to play our best, but I thought we kept the ball in play and picked up our offense certainly in the second and third games."

Haleigh Washington led the Nittany Lions (31-3) and all players at and above the net with nine kills and six blocks.

Dayton took the first match in four sets over American, with the Nittany Lions and Flyers (30-5) meeting at 7:30 p.m. Saturday for the second round and the final match of the season in Rec Hall.

Aiyana Whitney added eight kills, Nia Grant had six kills and three blocks. Simone Lee also had six kills, and Megan Courtney recorded four blocks. Dominique Gonzalez posted 11 digs.

Also, Micha Hancock gave out 33 assists to go with her seven service aces, giving the nation's leading server 116 for the year to break the Big Ten single-season record and leaves her two short of the NCAA record.

"It's cool," Hancock said of the record. "I want to go back on the end line and serve as hard as I can for the team and see what kind of cushion we can get so people are more relaxed."

Penn State ruled the net with an 11-2 blocking advantage, hitting .415 and holding the Saints (19-15) to .011 hitting. Leading the domination was Washington, who was error-free on her 10 swings to hit .900 for the night.

"I thought me and Nia both did a pretty good job of closing the block," Washington said. "I thought Aiyana and Megan really worked hard to press (over the net). It's all about being low and over, especially with a team like this. I thought as a whole we controlled it pretty well."

Meghann Wright's seven kills and Bobbi Lin Kalama's 14 digs led Siena. The Saints' toughest stretch came during the third set, when they put down just one kill against 12 errors to hit minus-.458.

Jacqueline Skeen, a 5-foot-7 middle hitter, is almost always outsized at the net in every match she plays, and she knew Friday would be tough.

"I'm just used to it," said Skeen, who had five kills. "I just had in mind, our coach is telling us, 'Go out there, have fun, play your best and do what you can.'"

The Saints also got to see the serving of Hancock up close as they watched the lefty surpass five aces in a match for the ninth time this season. She passed the Big Ten single-season mark of 113 aces by Minnesota's Sharon Oesterliog set in 1989.

Hancock is two more winners away from the Division I record for the 25-point rally-scoring era, set by Christine Edwards of Jackson State in 2012.

"That's a very good server," coach Garvey Pierre said. "She's been acing almost everybody. I've been watching a lot of games of her. It's not just us.

We've been prepared, but even as prepared as we could be, it's hard to pass a fast ball that's really low above the net."

Nittany Lions sweep Dayton to advance in NCAA Tournament

UNIVERSITY PARK — The Penn State women's volleyball team will be one of the final 16 teams left in the nation next weekend.

The Nittany Lions swept away Dayton 25-20, 25-18, 25-16 Saturday night in Rec Hall in the NCAA Tournament second round.

But coach Russ Rose was more concerned about what wasn't working for his team, with eyes on chasing a seventh national title.

"I didn't think we played very well tonight," Rose said. "We just made a lot of not-typical plays for the veteran players involved that were making those mistakes. Whenever you get in the tournament you feel fortunate when you advance, and I'm not going to sit up here and sing the praises of many of the people."

Megan Courtney pounded down 11 kills while Micha Hancock served up three aces to get her name in the NCAA record book as the Nittany Lions (32-3) head to the regional semifinals for a 12th straight season and for the 28th time in program history. The run of a dozen straight appearances is the longest active streak in the nation.

Penn State will next face UCLA (22-110, a 3-0 winner over Long Beach State late Saturday night. The regional semifinals are Friday in Louisville, Ky., and the finals are Saturday to earn a spot in the national semifinals. The Lions swept the Bruins 3-0 in early September. Wisconsin and Ohio State will meet in the other regional semifinal.

The Nittany Lions also got nine kills each from Ali Frantti and Haleigh Washington, eight digs each from Hancock and Dominique Gonzalez, three blocks from Nia Grant and 36 assists from Hancock.

The senior setter also moved her single-season ace total to 119, breaking the NCAA Division I record of 118 set by Christine Edwards of Jackson State in 2012. The record is just for matches played for rally scoring to 25-point games. The records when matches were played to 30, or during side-out scoring before the turn of the century, are much higher.

Hancock also has 373 aces for her career, by far the program record.

Statistically, the Nittany Lions were sound. They hit .436, making just six hitting errors, winning the kills battle 47-32, the blocking 5-2, the ace count 9-3 and the digs tally 39-37.

But there were 12 service errors, the team's serve-receive game was off the mark and a number of plays on which Rose felt his team did not play hard enough.

"I thought we had a lot more energy (Friday against Siena in the first round)," Rose said. "I thought our commitment to each other and to Penn State was far better than it was this evening. I've been here for 36 years and every day that I've been here I've coached about Penn State. I have pretty good antennas when it looks like somebody is straying from it. I was pretty disappointed in some people's efforts tonight."

With just a few days of practice before the Nittany Lions fly to Louisville, they know there is a lot of work to do in South Gym as they try to defend their national title.

"You just need to remember what you're playing for," Courtney said. "It's a chance to advance. It was a chance to show who we are and inflict fear on the teams we're playing next if we were to advance. I don't think we did that very well."

The Flyers (30-6) got nine kills and 10 digs from Alaina Turner, eight kills from Jill Loiards and 25 assists from Jane Emmenecker.

They knew before the match toppling Penn State on its home floor would be a tall order, but they were not intimidated.

"We've played big teams before, like earlier this season we played Nebraska and we hung with them," senior outside hitter Rachel Jones said. "I think we had the mindset that, if we play our game, we can hang with them."

Penn State women's volleyball: Nittany Lions sweep Nebraska

UNIVERSITY PARK — On a night the Penn State women's volleyball team honored its seniors, it was a pair of Nittany Lion fourth-year standouts who put exclamation points on the end of the regular season.

Micha Hancock ripped off two straight aces to start the match, while Nia Grant hammered the ball into the floor for the final point.

In between, the No. 4 Nittany Lions played well enough to sweep away rival No. 10 Nebraska in front of a packed Rec Hall.

Ali Frantti pounded down a match-high 17 kills in Penn State's 25-21, 25-15, 25-16 victory Saturday night for the team's 14th win in a row, with 13 straight in a sweep.

"It was a tough match," coach Russ Rose said after career win No. 1,155. "Micha especially came out really strong out of the gate."

Hancock finished with four aces to go with 33 assists and three blocks. She extended her single-season team record to 109 aces, leaving her nine shy of the Division I record.

"We're happy this was in three and this was a great team," Hancock said. "We get in the gym and we take our first round seriously."

Penn State (29-3, 17-2 Big Ten) had already wrapped up second place in the Big Ten, with Wisconsin securing its first conference title since 2001 on Friday night.

The Nittany Lions and Cornhuskers will be looking for at-large bids to the NCAA Tournament and figure to be earning high seeds. The bracket will be announced on ESPNU at 8:30 p.m. Sunday.

Megan Courtney added eight kills, Haleigh Washington had six kills and four blocks and Dominique Gonzalez posted 10 digs. Penn State hit .257 with a 42-33 kills advantage and a 7-5.5 blocking margin.

Before the match the program honored four women ready to graduate in Hancock, Grant, Gonzalez and Lacey Fuller.

Hancock had to harness her emotions quickly before stepping back to the service line to start the match.

"I knew I was going to cry, and I was trying to tell myself it's about the game, it's not about Senior Night," Hancock said. "... I know we were all kind of tearing up and stuff ... and I was like, 'Well, I look weak. Everybody on the opposing team saw me cry, but whatever.' I tried to make that like I wasn't emotionally wrecked."

The Nittany Lions could not have asked for a better way to open the match, as Hancock wowed the packed house of 5,327 with her serving prowess. She nailed back-to-back aces to start the match and had a total of four, plus two more points earned on Frantti kills after Nebraska overpasses on the serves, to race to an 8-0 lead.

"I just wanted to hit the ball deep and at the passer-hitter," said Hancock, who was part of a collection of eight Lion aces for the match. "It kept working for me."

The Huskers crawled back into the set to add drama, but a solo block for Frantti locked up the first frame 25-21.

While the serving was on fire, the Penn State front row struggled, hitting just .105 with eight errors — five unforced — in the frame.

The hitting was much improved in the second with a .419 game. Washington began to find her range and Frantti continued to be on fire. She finished by hitting .536 on the night with just two errors on 28 swings.

"She was the only one that played really well against them when we played at Nebraska," Rose said of a 3-1 Husker win in early October. "It's great to have her step up like that."

Penn State then feasted on Husker errors early in the third to build a five-point lead, and that margin never dipped below three the rest of the way. A 7-1 run closed the match, capped by an overpass that sailed above the net to Grant, who pounced on the chance for her fifth kill of the match.

"I was actually hoping they wouldn't call me over," Grant said. "That's what I thought they were going to do, but I was happy we won."

Kelsey Fien's 10 kills, Justine Wong-Orantes' 13 digs and Mary Pollmiller's 25 assists paced the Cornhuskers (20-8, 14-5)

Nittany Lions hoping they have done enough to earn strong NCAA seed

UNIVERSITY PARK — The Penn State women's volleyball team is headed into its final week of the regular season, with a big match looming to close the schedule.

But coach Russ Rose also has his eyes on what happens Sunday, and what kind of road his Nittany Lions will have to travel to capture another national championship.

Penn State has been having another incredibly successful season, with a 28-3 record, not to mention some high statistical rankings both for the team and individuals.

Penn State is also holding onto second place in the Big Ten, and barring an upset it will not catch the conference leader, Wisconsin, as the Nittany Lions visit Northwestern on Wednesday before closing the regular season at 8:30 p.m. Saturday at Rec Hall against Nebraska.

The Badgers lost to the Nittany Lions way back on Sept. 24 — and haven't lost since to move close to the conference title.

Penn State's only losses in the conference were at Nebraska and home against Illinois, to go with an early-season five-set loss to No. 1 Stanford (28-0), and have since run off a dozen straight wins.

Even with all that success, and a No. 4 ranking in the American Volleyball Coaches Association poll, the Nittany Lions are still wondering how much respect they will get when the NCAA bracket is announced.

Penn State is No. 10 in the Ratings Percentage Index, a ranking based on a formula involving strength of schedule, a team's record and the record of its opponents.

"My position on this is different from everybody else's," Rose said. "I look at it as the most important thing is to win. I'd rather win than have a high RPI and not win. I've never heard of anybody go to their administration asking for a raise because their RPI was on fire."

The RPI is taken heavily into account by the NCAA tournament committees in most sports, including volleyball, and Rose is concerned his team may run into a stronger opponent earlier in the tournament than it should because of that RPI number.

The Nittany Lions are buoyed by the conference schedule — five other Big Ten teams are ranked in the AVCA top 20 — and matches against UCLA and the No. 1 Cardinal.

But the strength of schedule also is dragged down by teams like Iona, William and Mary, Eastern Illinois, DePaul, Illinois-Chicago and East Carolina.

Only East Carolina in that list has a record above .500, but the last four programs mentioned all are coached by former Nittany Lions, and they were in Rec Hall in September as part of a celebration of the school's 50th anniversary of women's athletics.

"If my RPI is down because we played the Alumni Classic," Rose said, "... and that's what causes us a problem, I would do it again. What's important to me might not be what's important to the volleyball committee."

It is because of those matches that leave a 28-3 Nittany Lion team ranked behind seven-loss teams Oregon and Illinois.

But it's not like Penn State has not shown it has the makings of another strong team when the calendar turns to December.

The Nittany Lions are the nation's top hitting team — by far. Penn State is hitting .356, while Florida is second at .317. They also have the nation's leader in hitting (Nia Grant, .470) and aces (Micha Hancock, 100).

The meetings with the Wildcats and Cornhuskers will be good appetizers for Thanksgiving week — the matches with Nebraska are always among the best in the nation each season — but the main course is always the NCAA Tournament. Penn State will be seeking to capture its seventh national title.

Even with eight freshmen on the roster and two of them key starters, they all know the tradition and the end goal.

"A lot of our success will be based on how they handle the pressures and expectations of the program," Rose said. "That's kind of tough."

Penn State women's volleyball's "three-headed monster"

UNIVERSITY PARK — Coach Russ Rose referred to Haleigh Washington, Nia Grant and Aiyana Whitney as "the three-headed monster" after Penn State's Saturday night sweep of Minnesota.

With four regular season matches to go, Washington, Grant and Whitney hold the top three spots in the Big Ten rankings for hitting percentage.

The 2008 Nittany Lions were the last team to have three teammates lead the Big Ten in hitting percentage. That season, Rose's team went on to win the National Championship.

It is still far too early to say that Penn State (26-3, 14-2 Big Ten) could win its second consecutive NCAA title, but the Lions have a similarly potent trio leading the way. Back in 2008, it was a senior, Christa Harmotto, and two sophomores, Arielle Wilson and Blair Brown, atop the conference. This time, a freshman ranks first, followed by two upperclassmen.

Since returning from an injury that hindered her playing time early in the season, freshman Haleigh Washington has become the Big Ten's most efficient offensive player. She leads the conference with a .491 hitting percentage.

Washington also is tied for fifth in the Big Ten with an average of 1.25 blocks per set. She had five block assists and one solo block in the victory over Minnesota.

"I tend to be sporadic sometimes, so I have to remind myself to stay focused, to stay calm," Washington said.

Grant, a senior, ranks right behind Washington in Big Ten with a .476 hitting percentage. She is the only player in the Big Ten with at least 200 kills and a hitting percentage over .400.

And Whitney, a redshirt junior, has become one of the most dominant players in the Big Ten. Her .395 hitting average ranks third in the conference, but it is the number of efficient attacks that have made her stand out. She has both the most kills, 276, and the most attacks, 522, of the three leading players.

"My ultimate goal is just to take the pressure off [her teammates]," Whitney said of her recent success.

In the past two matches Whitney has led the team in kills, with 16 against Iowa, and 17 against Minnesota.

Rose stressed the importance of feeding the trio member with the hottest hand.

"It's good when the setter can recognize who's playing well and get them the ball," Rose said.

Nittany Lions sweep Minnesota before packed crowd

UNIVERSITY PARK — The Penn State women's volleyball team showed a little bit of everything in its match against Minnesota on Saturday night at Rec Hall.

Most importantly, it sent a lot of people home happy.

Behind a 17-kill performance from Aiyana Whitney, and in front of a season-high standing-room-only crowd of 5,569, the No. 6 Nittany Lions swept away Minnesota 25-20, 25-12, 25-23.

The win extended the Lions' wins streak to 10 straight, with the last nine all by 3-0 sweeps.

"A lot of things were terrific," coach Russ Rose said. "I thought the crowd was fantastic. It was a great day in Penn State athletics."

Whitney put down her total on .682 hitting as the nation's top-hitting team posted a .315 hitting night, and held the Golden Gophers to .080 hitting. Penn State (26-3, 14-2 Big Ten) also got nine kills and six blocks from Haleigh Washington and eight kills from Nia Grant.

"The three-headed monster of Haleigh, Nia and Aiyana were very good," Rose said. "... It's good when the setter can recognize who's playing well and get them the ball. We feel really good."

Dominique Gonzalez posted 14 digs while Micha Hancock had 31 assists and four aces. The ace total gives the senior setter 91 for the season, matching her career high when she was a freshman, which is also the program's single-season record.

Led by Washington, the Nittany Lions took the blocking battle 9.5-7, including 7.5-3 over the final two frames.

"(I was) just more focused," the freshman said. "I tend to be sporadic sometimes, so I have to remind myself to just stay focused, stay calm, trust what I know, trust my reads and just go with it."

Daly Santana's eight kills, Paige Tapp's seven kills and five blocks, Erica Handley's 25 assists and Alyssa Goehner's eight digs led Minnesota (16-11, 6-10), which has dropped seven of its last 10 matches.

"There's a lot of variance when you're dealing with youth," Gophers coach Hugh McCutcheon said. "There was great crowd, great environment, great for volleyball, but I think our kids felt a little pressure in the second set and once we started to bleed we struggled to stop."

The second and third sets could hardly contrast any more.

Penn State dominated in the second set in shocking fashion, with nearly every hitter on fire as the Lions hit .387 in the set, the Gophers hit .000 and Penn State had a 4-1 blocking margin in the frame. The Nittany Lions shot out to a fast 9-4 lead, then closed on a 10-4 run capped by Hancock and Grant teaming up to block Goehner.

"Not surprised," McCutcheon said. "Penn State's done that to other teams. We've seen it before. It's just disappointing we couldn't get into a better frame of mind."

The tables were turned quickly in the third, with Minnesota racing to a 7-1 lead assisted by a pair of Santana aces and Penn State hitting and service errors.

"Just because you win one game easy doesn't mean it's going to happen (again)," Rose said. "When we're down 8-2 in the third game, I'm not thinking about how easy the second game is. I'm wondering what I didn't do in the intermission to get them ready to play."

But the Nittany Lions rallied to knot it at 13-13, and the teams traded points and the lead until a four-point Gopher run had them two points from forcing a fourth set at 23-21. But Whitney rocked in the last of her kills on a cross-court swing, back-to-back Gopher hitting errors put it at match point and a Gonzalez ace, shanked by Minnesota libero Dalianliz Rosado, wrapped up the set and match.

"It was a little worrisome," Hancock said. "I know we're better when we control the ball, but it's hard to have that confidence when you come off the second game like that and then you're kind of low. It's all mental readiness."

Penn State hits the road for three straight matches, starting at Michigan on Wednesday, and is not home again until the regular-season finale against No. 11 Nebraska on Nov. 29.

Nittany Lions still loaded after winning title

LINCOLN, Neb. — Even with the wealth of volleyball riches returning from a national championship team and the nation's most touted incoming freshman class, Penn State coach Russ Rose couldn't help but be concerned by what his team had to replace.

A decorated trio of seniors — outside hitters Ariel Scott and Deja McClendon and middle blocker Katie Slay — capped their careers in Happy Valley with the program's sixth NCAA title and formed what Rose believed may have been the best front row in college volleyball history.

Click Here!

"I don't know if anybody graduated what we graduated," Rose said. "We graduated 10 years of All-America (honors) in the front row."

But if the rest of the country was prepared for a respite from Penn State's dominance, the No. 3-ranked Nittany Lions (14-1, 2-0 Big Ten) have made notice they're not ready to give up the crown.

Penn State will try to continue its strong start in Friday's 7 p.m. match at No. 8 Nebraska (8-3, 2-0).

Penn State reloaded with a crop of freshmen who may be the most decorated ever in college volleyball. Five of the seven newcomers were ranked in the top 15 by PrepVolleyball.com, and several already are making an impact.

Freshman outside hitters Ali Frantti and Simone Lee — both of whom Nebraska recruited heavily — enrolled early in January.

Frantti leads a balanced attack with 3.26 kills per set, and had 22 in Penn State's lone loss at No. 1 Stanford. Lee put down a team-high 12 kills when the Nittany Lions swept No. 6 Wisconsin in Madison in a rematch of the 2013 national title match.

"The ability to play at a same level every day is something you usually attribute to veterans or the real outlier athlete that can hit the ground running," Rose said.

The returning cast has been equally impressive. Junior opposite hitter Megan Courtney is a six-rotation threat, and starting middles Nia Grant, a senior, and Aiyana Whitney, a junior, are each hitting at least .420.

"Penn State, they're hard to gang up on because they have so many weapons, so you've got to be really good in your system," NU coach John Cook said. "You've got to be really disciplined, and we have to be able to block more than just one hitter."

Tying it all together is senior All-America setter Micha Hancock. Originally recruited as an all-around player who excelled at attacking, Hancock was a late addition to the Nittany Lions' 2011 class, but has blossomed into one of the country's top setters. Hancock has set Penn State to a nation-leading .372 attack percentage while beguiling opponents with a wicked, left-handed jump serve.

"When she came in as a freshman, she was a really talented hitter and server, and really eager-to-learn setter," Rose said. "She's gotten better as a setter these three years. But one thing she's always been is a competitor and been tough."

Preparing for Penn State isn't the only challenge Cook faces this weekend. Nebraska will host Ohio State (9-5, 0-2) at 5 p.m. Saturday, less than 24 hours after the start of the Penn State match.

The NU coach said the Huskers are now better suited to handle the mental challenges of the back-to-back tests. After Friday, Nebraska will have played four of the top five teams in the country.

"I feel like we're getting better every week," Cook said. "Not only getting volleyball better, but we're getting mentally better. We're understanding better what we have to do, how valuable each point is."

Penn State women's volleyball: Nittany Lions hold off Michigan State

UNIVERSITY PARK — (10/25/2014)

The Penn State women's volleyball team wasn't playing the best of matches, and faced a pair of set points for Michigan State in the first frame.

The Nittany Lions didn't blink.

No. 7 Penn State rattled off four straight points to take that set, and went on to win the match 26-24, 25-17, 25-21 over the Spartans at Rec Hall.

"It was kind of like a click of a switch," said Dominique Gonzalez, who had an ace during that late first-set run. "'We need to go. This is our house. We've got to play well.' After we got a few-point run, we kind of kicked into gear and realized we could take that set."

Aiyana Whitney put down 12 kills and Ali Frantti added 11 to pace the offense.

Micha Hancock racked up another four aces to go with 33 assists. The nation's top server now has 82 service winners on the season, matching her total for all of 2013 and nine short of her single-season career high from her freshman season. She has 336 for her career.

Penn State (20-3, 8-2) also got 14 digs from Gonzalez and three blocks from Haleigh Washington.

Allyssah Fitterer, Chloe Reinig and Jazmine White each registered seven kills to pace the Spartans (12-9, 5-5). White also had six blocks, with Michigan State winning the battle of the block 9-5.

That contributed to Penn State hitting .258 as a team.

"Michigan State's a tough opponent because they're so physical and they're really big at the net," coach Russ Rose said. "They outblock everybody they play and when they control the ball they can cause a lot of problems. We could have lost that first game for sure."

The first set was tight, with 15 ties, but Michigan State took a late lead with a quick three-point spurt, capped by a backrow kill from Reinig and a Washington spike sailing wide.

The teams traded points to put the Spartans up 24-22.

Frantti took a quick set from Hancock in the middle and ripped it off a blocker, sending Gonzalez back to the service line. The senior libero delivered a soft floating serve that just barely cleared the net and fell inside the 10-foot line for an ace to tie up the frame.

"That was pretty much Coach called it," Gonzalez said. "I had served there the past couple times as well and we thought it would help get them out of system and set up our defense for what we wanted. The fact that it pulled out an ace was great, but we were doing it more to set up our own defense."

A Spartan error and a Hancock kill then wrapped up the game, and gave the Nittany Lions the momentum it needed the rest of the match.

The final two sets were rather choppy, with a number of point runs for both teams. Aside from an 8-1 run to close the second set, which included a pair of Hancock aces, and a 4-1 run in the third capped by a Frantti kill, neither team had a lead larger than three points all night.

"They're a great team," Gonzalez said. "They have a lot of big hitters and (libero) Kori Moster's great on defense. She gets a lot of balls. We knew it was going to be a tough game just because they are so physical at the net and she digs a crazy amount of balls. We knew that we have to stay focused throughout the match."

Frantti led the offense with .409 hitting in her 14th match of the season with double digits in kills, including six of her last eight contests.

"Everybody's been hot and cold at times," Rose said. "For us to play at our highest level, everybody has to play well. I'm not sure I can tell you it's going to happen. If it doesn't happen on Tuesday, we'll be real disappointed."

Nittany Lions suffer rare home loss against Illinois

UNIVERSITY PARK — The Penn State women's volleyball team was off to a blazing start Saturday afternoon, but the fire burned out quickly.

No. 15 Illinois fought back from big deficits for a 26-24, 16-25, 25-23, 25-22 victory.

The loss at Rec Hall was a rare one for the No. 5 Nittany Lions. It was Penn State's first home loss since Sept. 27, 2013, and just the fourth home loss since the start of the 2006 season. It ended a run of 19 straight home victories.

"I thought we had a great opportunity today, especially when we came out as strong as we did in the first game," coach Russ Rose said. "We had a great crowd and the band did a terrific job. We had everything going for us, but we didn't play as a team. That rests with me. I have to find a way to get them to play a little bit better together."

The Nittany Lions raced to a 14-4 lead to open the match, and were close to wrapping up the first set at 19-9 before the wheels began to fall off.

Penn State again built a huge lead in the second set at 18-6, saw Illinois again slice into the margin to as close as 21-15 but this time held the lead to even the match 1-1 heading into the 10-minute break.

After that, the Illini controlled the early portions of the final two sets and never lost the lead. Penn State did cut a fourth-set margin from as large as nine down to 24-22 but could not complete the comeback.

"The worst part is we had fire at the end of the game," said freshman Haleigh Washington, who had a match-high seven blocks. "It's the worst feeling when you're so close and you're thinking that it's good, but then it's too little, too late."

Penn State (16-3, 4-2 Big Ten) saw balance on offense with 15 kills for Aiyanna Whitney, 14 for Washington and 13 each for Ali Frantti and Nia Grant. Megan Courtney posted 13 digs, Dominique Gonzalez added 12 and Lacey Fuller had 10 digs. Micha Hancock gave out 53 assists to go with four blocks and three aces, Frantti also had four blocks and three aces, and Courtney put up four blocks as well.

The Illini (12-5, 4-2) got 19 kills and 1 dig from Jocelynn Birks, 17 kills from Liz McMahan, 11 kills from Katie Roustio, 18 digs from Julia Conard, 14 digs and three aces from Brandi Donnelly, 47 assists from Alexis Viliunas and four blocks each from Anna Dorn and Katie Stadick.

Illinois hit .315 to Penn State's .310, and the Nittany Lions led in kills 67-61, in blocks 13-8, in aces 6-4 and trailed in digs 63-54.

Penn State is back on the road next weekend, giving the team six road matches in eight Big Ten contests so far this season, by visiting Purdue and Indiana.

espnW Volleyball Player Of The Week: Penn State's Dominique Gonzalez

Kills are the flashy things that get noticed. Great digs get crowds roaring too. But if you were to ask a volleyball statistics wonk like Penn State coach Russ Rose, he would probably tell you serve receiving was as important as anything.

Penn State has won six NCAA titles not just because of its big hitters but also because the Nittany Lions' back row traditionally does technical stuff so well. Defensive specialist Dominique Gonzalez is a great example of that.

She is espnW's national player of the week after contributing all the so-called little things that helped Penn State win two tough road matches to start Big Ten play.

At then-No. 5 Wisconsin last week, Gonzalez had 21 digs and four service aces in the Nittany Lions' 3-0 sweep. In a 3-1 victory at then-No. 17 Minnesota, Gonzalez had 26 digs. In neither match did she have a reception error.

Gonzalez led the national champions in digs last year with 416. The senior from San Antonio is a big fan of the NBA champion Spurs, who are the epitome of teamwork at the professional level. Understanding how each piece of the puzzle fits has been huge for the Spurs, and you could say the same thing about Penn State volleyball.

The Nittany Lions -- ranked No. 3 nationally -- face Big Ten rival Nebraska on Friday, and you can be sure Gonzalez will be covering a lot of ground against the Huskers. Just as she always does.

Also considered this week:

- Penn State setter Micha Hancock, Gonzalez's teammate, had nine kills, 10 digs and 38 assists against Wisconsin and four kills, five digs and 50 assists against Minnesota.

- UCLA's Karsta Lowe had a combined 49 kills and 16 digs as the Bruins went 1-1 last week.

- Arizona State's Macey Gardner had a combined 57 kills and 26 digs as the Sun Devils went 1-1 last week, including their first win at USC since 1995.

Brother and sister each playing in big games in Lincoln on Friday

LINCOLN, Neb. — Everything aligned almost perfectly this weekend in Lincoln for the Frantti family of Spring Grove, Illinois, for a one-stop, two-kid, two- (and maybe three-) game weekend.

And as any family trying to juggle the schedules of four kids playing travel sports knows, that is awesome.

Oldest son Connor, 20, is one of the top defensemen for the Lincoln Stars hockey team playing in the United States Hockey League, a feeder league to NCAA Division I hockey. Daughter Ali, 18, is already making a mark nationally in her freshman season as the leader in kills for the third-ranked Penn State volleyball team.

Both teams will play Friday in Lincoln, with the arenas only about one city block from each other. Penn State plays Nebraska at the Devaney Sports Center at 7 p.m. The Stars take on Sioux City across the street at the Ice Box at 7:05 p.m.

Their father, Dan, will be in Lincoln. He'll start at the volleyball game. If the volleyball match lasts only three or four sets, he'll have time to get across the street to watch the end of the hockey game.

And even if he can't make it to hockey Friday, he'll still get to watch Connor and the Stars play Sunday in Lincoln against Waterloo. Again, this all worked out perfectly, because the Stars rarely have Sunday home games.

Dan's wife, Kelly, will be in Indiana this weekend for parent's weekend at Culver Military Academy, where 17-year-old son Peyton plays hockey. Youngest son Chase, 13, plays hockey and football.

Dan has attended a few of Penn State's matches this season.

"As soon as the schedules came out a few months ago, I told Kelly, 'You're not going to believe this, but Ali and Connor are playing on the same night in Lincoln,'" Dan Frantti said. "I know Lincoln is a great sports town. I was there last year and watched a couple of games. I've been to hundreds of hockey venues over my lifetime, and that's right up there at the top. I like the old barns that have character, and the fans are into it.

"And I've heard it's quite an atmosphere there for volleyball. They get 8,000 fans, and I'm pretty excited to experience that."

This is a one-chance deal for the family. Next season, Connor will play at Northern Michigan.

NCAA Volleyball: Five Things To Know

There is a new top-ranked team in Division I volleyball, and it's not a surprise. Here are five things to take note of this week in the world of kills and digs:

1. Stanford takes top spot

In a rematch of the one of last season's best battles, Stanford defeated Penn State 3-2 on Friday at Maples Pavilion. The Cardinal followed that with a 3-2 victory over Illinois, and those two wins propelled Stanford to No. 1 in this week's American Volleyball Coaches Association poll, replacing the Nittany Lions, who dropped to No. 3. Stanford senior Morgan Boukather -- hitting against Penn State's Ali Frantti (5) and Aiyana Whitney (14) -- had 15 kills and 12 digs in the Cardinal's 3-2 victory Friday.

Stanford senior Morgan Boukather -- hitting against Penn State's Ali Frantti (5) and Aiyana Whitney (14) -- had 15 kills and 12 digs in the Cardinal's 3-2 victory Friday.

Stanford junior Inky Ajanaku won her second consecutive Pac-12 defensive player of the week award. The Cardinal lost 3-2 to the eventual national champion Nittany Lions last year in a regional final. This was an early litmus test for both teams, and each could walk away with positives.

This weekend, No. 20 Duke, Penn and Santa Clara visit Stanford.

2. Pac-12 off to powerful start

Stanford is one of eight schools in the Pac-12 that are undefeated through the first two weekends of the season, along with Arizona, Arizona State, Oregon, Oregon State, USC, Washington and Utah. Of course, some of them have tested themselves more than others.

This week, the unbeaten team that may have the most difficult time staying that way is No. 21 Arizona, which faces No.

2 Texas in Austin on Friday (8 p.m. ET, Longhorn Network).

3. New Lion already roaring

It didn't take long for 6-foot-1 freshman outside hitter Ali Frantti to establish herself as Penn State's newest young star. When your first college double-double comes against Stanford, it's clear you're the real deal.

Frantti had 22 kills and 11 digs against the Cardinal then added 14 kills and five digs in a sweep of UCLA. She has been the Big Ten's freshman of the week both weeks of the season.

The Nittany Lions play in the Villanova tournament this weekend, facing the host Wildcats, American, Yale and No. 24 Kansas.

4. Making the most of logistics

New Mexico State and UTEP are co-hosting an invitational this weekend, which is a neat idea. Las Cruces, New Mexico, and El Paso, Texas, are about 45 miles apart on Interstate 10.

The teams involved are New Mexico State (WAC), UTEP (Conference USA), BYU (West Coast Conference) and Colorado State (Mountain West).

The matchup of ranked teams is No. 9 BYU vs. No. 14 Colorado State, which will be Friday morning in Las Cruces. Then the Cougars will travel to El Paso to face UTEP on Friday night and return to play the Aggies in Las Cruces on Saturday. That final match between BYU and New Mexico State is on ESPN3 at 2 p.m. ET Saturday and features Cougars star Jennifer Hamson.

Meanwhile, the Rams will stay put Friday and play the Aggies in the evening then go to UTEP to face the Miners on Saturday.

By the way, the "neighbor" schools of New Mexico State and UTEP will play each other this season. But that won't be until late November.

5. Keep an eye on ... North Carolina

The 4-1 Tar Heels are ranked No. 17, with their only loss thus far at Illinois, which is ranked No. 12. North Carolina rebounded from that defeat with impressive wins on the road last weekend against other Big Ten teams -- Michigan State and Michigan -- and both were sweeps.

UNC senior Lauren McAdoo was named ACC player of the week after a combined 28 kills against the Spartans and Wolverines. To win two matches in Big Ten territory is a big deal for the Tar Heels, who were picked to finish third in the ACC behind Florida State and Duke.

In this weekend's Carolina Classic, the Tar Heels host No. 16 Kentucky, Georgia Southern and VCU.

Nittany Lions beat Kansas, wrap up Villanova tournament title

VILLANOVA — The Penn State women's volleyball team earned its fourth win in two days to wrap up the team title at the Villanova Classic on Saturday.

The weekend for the No. 3 Nittany Lions closed with a 25-10, 27-25, 25-23 victory over No. 24 Kansas, with another big service game for Micha Hancock. The senior setter, who also gave out 34 assists, delivered six aces. She finished the weekend with 21 aces and tournament Most Valuable Player honors.

Aiyana Whitney pounded down 13 kills and .571 hitting to pace the offense, adding six blocks, while Nia Grant had 10 kills. Megan Courtney posted five blocks, and Dominique Gonzalez picked up a dozen digs.

Penn State (8-1) hit .319 with a 9-6 blocking advantage, a 43-32 kills margin and held the Jayhawks to .134 hitting.

Earlier Saturday, Penn State swept Yale 25-14, 25-15, 25-15 behind 11 kills each for Ali Frantti and Grant. The pair also hit .647 and .846, respectively, with both error-free on their swings, and the Nittany Lions hit .419 as a team.

Freshman Haleigh Washington, in her first appearance of the season, had six kills on 11 error-free swings to hit .545, and Courtney had eight kills. Hancock gave out 35 assists and Gonzalez posted 19 digs.

The Bulldogs were held to .108 hitting, losing the blocking battle 4-1 and the kills battle 45-26.

Penn State returns to Rec Hall next weekend to host the Penn State Alumni Classic for matches against Eastern Illinois, DePaul, Illinois-Chicago and East Carolina. All four programs have Nittany Lion alumni as coaches.
