

BUSH VS GREENPEACE

FREE SPEECH ON TRIAL

In a move unprecedented in US history, George Bush is prosecuting an entire organization – Greenpeace – for a peaceful protest by its supporters.

For years, Greenpeace has worked to end environmental destruction and human rights abuses in the Amazon rainforest.

Last year, two Greenpeace activists climbed aboard a ship carrying illegal mahogany from the Amazon. They held up a banner calling on George Bush to ban the import of illegally logged timber. Amazingly, instead of halting the shipment, Bush is prosecuting Greenpeace.

From the suffragettes to the civil rights movement, public protest has brought positive change.

Don't let George Bush stifle free speech.
