UNDERSTANDING THE COGNITIVE CONTINUUM: When is it time for more assistance and residential support?

Presented by Dr. William Mansbach, Founder and Chief Executive Officer of Mansbach Health Tools, LLC, which supports the BCAT® Research Center. He is also the Chief Executive Officer and President of CounterPoint Health Services, a multidisciplinary behavioral healthcare company specializing in geriatrics and dementia care.

As older adults with cognitive impairment attempt to age in place, challenges to live independently and safely increase with progressive cognitive decline. In this webinar, Dr. Mansbach will discuss the cognitive continuum, from normal cognition through advanced dementia, and indicate specific “markers” for additional functional and residential support. He’ll address when it’s time to stop driving, arrange for more support in the home, transition to a senior living community, and more. Dr. Mansbach will also present the science supporting a new construct, the Cognitive Task Manager, as an effective marker for additional support needs.
