IOWA'S FINAL GAME IN SOUTH PADRE WILL OFFER STREAMED VIDEO

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, TX - - The University of Iowa's men's basketball contest against Bradley University, Friday, Nov. 23 will be televised by CSTV, while action from all games on the final day of the tournament will be available as streamed video via the internet.

The Hawkeyes meet Bradley at 6:35 p.m. the day after Thanksgiving and will play either Vanderbilt or Utah State the following day at either 5 or 7:30 p.m.

JumpTV Sports, the leading provider of live broadband video and global technology, will provide the streamed video of all final round games to be played Saturday, Nov. 24. The announcement came from Chris Spencer, President of Basketball Tournaments, Inc. "We are excited to be able to make available live broadband video coverage of selected games from our South Padre Island and Las Vegas tournaments," said Spencer.

The internet address for viewing Iowa's Nov. 24 contest is www.southpadreinvitationaltv.com.

While Iowa's Nov. 23 game with Bradley will be televised live, other Saturday games from South Padre Island will also be available via streamed video.

Streamed video of Iowa's opening game of the season, a 58-43 win over Idaho State, was provided by the Big Ten Network.

Iowa returns to action Sunday, Nov. 18, hosting Florida Gulf Coast at 1:05 p.m. in the first round of the South Padre Island Invitational. The Hawkeyes host Maryland Eastern Shore (8:05 p.m.) in the second round Tuesday, Nov. 20, before traveling to South Padre Island. Each of Iowa's two home games in the event will be televised by the Big Ten Network.

Fans attending Iowa's final home football game of the season, Saturday vs. Western Michigan, can present their football ticket stub to gain admittance to the Florida Gulf Coast contest for $10.
