IOWA TO MEET SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA AT HOLIDAY BOWL

The University of Iowa has accepted an invitation to play USC in the 2019 San Diego County Credit Union Holiday Bowl in San Diego, California, on Dec. 27. Kickoff is set for 7 p.m. (CT) from SDCCU Stadium and the game will be televised on FS1.

The Hawkeyes are making their 33rd bowl game appearance and fourth Holiday Bowl appearance -- the first since 1991. Iowa is 2-0-1 all-time in the Holiday Bowl, defeating San Diego State (39-38) in 1986, Wyoming (20-19) in 1987, and tying Brigham Young (13-13), in 1991.

The Hawkeyes are 2-7 all-time against USC, beating the Trojans in 1950 (20-14) and 1961 (35-34) in Los Angeles. USC won the last meeting, 38-17, in the 2003 Orange Bowl.

Iowa is 3-7 all-time against the Pac-12 Conference in bowl games. The Hawkeyes last played a Pac-12 team in the 2016 Rose Bowl -- a 45-16 loss to No. 6 Stanford. Iowa's last win over a Pac-12 opponent came against Washington (38-18) in the 1995 Sun Bowl.

The Hawkeyes closed out the 2019 season with three straight victories to post a nine-win regular season. Iowa finished third in the Big Ten West Division with a 6-3 record. The Hawkeyes' three losses came against No. 18 Michigan, No. 10 Penn State, and No. 16 Wisconsin by 14 combined points.

The Hawkeyes rank third among Big Ten teams in bowl appearances since 2001 and are bowl eligible for the 18th time under head coach Kirk Ferentz. Iowa is 8-8 in bowl games under Ferentz, including a 27-22 victory over No. 18 Mississippi State in the 2019 Outback Bowl. Since 2001, only Ohio State and Wisconsin have won more bowl games (including the FBS championship game) than Iowa.

Stanley has 19 career multi-touchdown games, including five this season. He completed three touchdown passes in the season opener against Miami, Ohio, three more in Week 2 against Rutgers, two against Middle Tennessee in Week 4, two against #16 Wisconsin in Week 9, and two against #8 Minnesota in Week 10. He has 10 career games with at least three passing touchdowns. Only Long has more in program history (11).

Stanley threw 26 touchdown passes in 2018, second most in the Big Ten, one shy of tying Chuck Long (1985) for the most in single season school history, and tied for second most all-time in single season history. Stanley also threw 26 touchdown passes in 2017. Stanley's 52 touchdown passes from 2017-18 are the most ever in school history over a two-year span. Long tossed 49 touchdown passes from 1984 (22) to 1985 (27).

Stanley was named to six preseason watch lists and listed on the preseason Big Ten third team by Phil Steele.

DEFENSE RANKS AMONG NATION'S BEST

First-team All-Big Ten honoree DE A.J. Epenesa leads a defense that ranks in the top 12 in scoring, passing, and total defense. Iowa is sixth in the country in scoring defense (13.2 ppg), 12th in total defense (304.3 ypg), and 12th in passing defense (184.2 ypg). Iowa's scoring defense is second in the Big Ten to Ohio State (11.8). The Hawkeyes held seven-of-12 opponents to their season-low point total.

Epenesa earned first-team All-Big Ten recognition for the second straight year. He leads Iowa in tackles-for-loss (13-69), sacks (9-54), quarterback pressures (9), and forced fumbles (3). He also has three pass break-ups.

Twice this season Epenesa was recognized as Big Ten Conference Defensive Player of the Week. He first earned the honor following Iowa's 23-19 win over seventh-ranked Minnesota on Nov. 16. Epenesa recorded 2.5 of Iowa's six sacks, three solo tackles and one assisted tackle, forced one fumble and had one quarterback pressure. He later earned the honor following Iowa's 27-24 win at Nebraska on Nov. 29. He recorded career highs in tackles (14) and tackles-for-loss (4.5-22) against the Huskers.

Epenesa is a quarterfinalist for the Lott IMPACT Trophy. He was named to four preseason All-America first teams, listed on six preseason watch lists, and is preseason Big Ten Defensive Player of the Year by CollegeFootballNews.com.

Iowa's scoring defense (13.2) is the second lowest total of the Ferentz era (13.0 in 2008), and the lowest by any Hawkeye team since 1981 (13.1). Iowa is performing at that level one year after losing seven defensive starters from 2018. Five of those players are currently with NFL teams, including DB Jake Gervase, DE Parker Hesse, DB Amani Hooker, DE Anthony Nelson, and DT Matt Nelson. Anthony Nelson and Hooker left Iowa following their junior seasons. Iowa defensive coordinator Phil Parker was a nominee for the Broyles Award, which honors college football's top assistant coach.

The Hawkeyes allow just 16.3 first downs per game, 10th fewest in the country and third in the Big Ten.

Iowa has allowed 18 touchdowns in 12 games, tied for fifth fewest in the country (Clemson 16, Georgia 18, San Diego State 18). Iowa is one of three schools in the country to allow just five rushing touchdowns or fewer (Georgia 1, Oregon 4).

Iowa's defense allowed just five first downs against Rutgers in Week 2. That ties for the fewest allowed in the Kirk Ferentz era (Syracuse, 2007). Rutgers' 125 yards of total offense ranks as the fifth lowest total in the Ferentz era.

In its Week 7 win against Purdue, Iowa allowed 33 yards rushing, its lowest total against a Big Ten opponent since 2013.

In Iowa's Week 10 win against No. 10 Minnesota, the Hawkeyes recorded six sacks, matching their highest single-game total since 2013 vs. Northwestern.

HAWKEYE HISTORY

Iowa has played 1,258 games since beginning football in 1889. Iowa's overall record is 659-560-39 (.539). That includes a 411-222-16 (.646) record in home games, a 248-338-23 (.426) record in games away from Iowa City, a 335-381-25 (.469) mark in Big Ten games and a 295-187-15 (.609) record in Kinnick Stadium. game in Kinnick Stadium, a 46-0 win over Monmouth. Nov. 16 marked the 130th anniversary of Iowa football, a 23-19 win over Minnesota. The Hawkeyes played their first football game on Nov. 16, 1889, against Grinnell.

RETURN TO SENDER

Junior WR Ihmir Smith-Marsette was named on the Paul Hornung Award preseason watch list, an honor bestowed to the most versatile player in college football.

Smith-Marsette averages 28.6 yards on 42 career kickoff returns, the best in school history and the second best in Big Ten history. The Big Ten record of average kickoff return yardage is 28.8, set by Stan Brown of Purdue (1968-70). Smith-Marsette has 1,202 kickoff return yards, sixth all-time in program history. He had a 95-yard kickoff return for a touchdown against Nebraska, tying for the ninth longest in school history. It was the first kickoff returned for a touchdown by the Hawkeyes since Jordan Cotton returned a kickoff 92 yards for a touchdown against Penn State in 2012.

Smith-Marsette leads the team in receiving yards (676) and all-purpose yards (1,130), and ranks second on the team in receptions (42). He has a team-high seven touchdowns; four receiving, two rushing, and one kickoff return. He set a career high with 121 receiving yards in Week 11, his second career 100-yard receiving game (Rutgers, 113).

Smith-Marsette has 1,224 career receiving yards, 32nd all-time in program history. He has 2,631 all-purpose yards. Only 20 players in school history have 2,500 or more.

In 2018, Smith-Marsette led the Big Ten and ranked No. 2 in the country, averaging 29.5 yards on 24 kickoff returns. He was named Rodgers-Dwight Return Specialist of the Year in the Big Ten Conference. He had 23 receptions for 361 yards and three touchdowns. His 15.7 yards per catch led the Hawkeyes (minimum 20 receptions).

RUNNING BACK BY COMMITTEE

Iowa running backs Tyler Goodson (590), Mekhi Sargent (543), and Toren Young (414) have combined for 1,547 rushing yards. All three running backs have started at least one game.

Goodson started the final three games of the regular season and leads the team in rushing yards. He could become the first true freshman in program history to lead the team in single-season rushing yards. The last redshirt freshman to lead the team in rushing yards was Ladell Betts in 1998 (679). Goodson also has 21 receptions for 146 yards. His 137 combined touches lead the team.

In Week 12 against Nebraska, Goodson rushed 13 times for a career-high 116 yards and a touchdown. It was his first career 100-yard game. His 55-yard touchdown rush in the first quarter was the longest of his career and the longest rushing touchdown by Iowa this season, and the longest by a Hawkeye since Akrum Wadley in 2016 (75 yards vs. Nebraska).

Goodson became the first true freshman to start at running back under Ferentz since 2012 (Greg Garmon) in Iowa's 23-19 win against #8 Minnesota in Week 10. Goodson rushed for 94 yards against the Gophers, raising his season total to 436, second on the team. He made his second straight start Week 11 against Illinois.

RB Mekhi Sargent started Weeks 1-8 and leads the team in carries (117) and ranks second in rushing yards (543). He was named on the Doak Walker Award Preseason Watch List.

RB Toren Young, Iowa's Week 9 starter, ranks third on the team in carries (77) and rushing yards (414). He averages a team-best 5.4 yards per attempt.

Young has 1,244 career yards on 258 attempts, 33rd all-time. Sargent has 1,288 yards on 276 attempts, 32nd on Iowa's all-time list.

Seven different Hawkeyes have combined to rush for 14 touchdowns. Eight of those touchdowns have come from inside the 2-yard line, nine from inside the 4-yard line. Goodson (2, 10, 2, 55) and Sargent (2, 4, 14, 2) lead the team with four rushing touchdowns. Five more Hawkeyes have at least one rushing touchdown: Young (2), QB Nate Stanley (1), FB Brady Ross (1), WR Ihmir Smith-Marsette (14, 45), QB Spencer Petras (1).

Young (131) rushed for a career high against Middle Tennessee. The Hawkeyes rushed for 351 yards in the game, the fourth highest total in the Ferentz era.

GRAND THEFT SECONDARY

The Hawkeyes have intercepted a pass in six straight games. DB Michael Ojemudia leads the team and is tied for second in the Big Ten with three interceptions. The Hawkeyes have 11 interceptions this season, and 52 interceptions since 2017, more than any other team over the last three years.

Entering this season, Iowa has at least one interception return for a touchdown in each of the last 11 seasons, and 16 of the last 18 seasons.

DUNCAN GETTING HIS KICKS

Junior K Keith Duncan was named the Bakken-Anderson Kicker of the Year in the Big Ten Conference and a finalist for the Lou Groza Award. Duncan leads the country with 29 field goals made. The 29 made field goals are a school and Big Ten Conference single-season record, and tie for sixth all-time in the NCAA. The NCAA record for single-season field goals made is 31. His 34 attempts on the season and his six field goal attempts at Purdue are both school records.

Duncan is 29-of-34 on field goal attempts and 25-of-25 on PAT attempts. He leads the team and is ranks third in the Big Ten in scoring with 112 points. Duncan has connected on 14-of-18 kicks of at least 40 yards, and is 12-of-13 on the road. He kicked four field goals at Iowa State, against Purdue, and against Illinois.

Duncan connected on a 48-yard field goal with one second remaining at Nebraska to break a 24-24 tie and give Iowa a 27-24 win. It was Duncan's second of two field goals made in the game (49, 48).

Duncan kicked three field goals at Wisconsin to break Iowa's then-single-season school record. Rob Houghtlin (1987), Nate Kaeding (2002), and Kyle Schlicher (2004) shared the previous school record with 21 made field goals. His 84.4 field goal percentage is the best ever among Iowa kickers with at least 30 field goal attempts.

Duncan is seeing his first action since 2016, when he made 9-11 field goal attempts and 38-39 PAT attempts (one was blocked). That year he kicked a 33-yard field goal as time expired to lift Iowa over #2 Michigan, 14-13.

Three times this year was named Big Ten Special Teams Player of the Week. He earned the honor after kicking the game-winning field goal at Nebraska. He was recognized following a four field goal performance against Illinois on Nov. 23. His first weekly honor of the season came Sept. 16 following his performance at Iowa State. Duncan connected on a career-best four field goals at Iowa State. His final kick from 39 yards provided the margin of victory with 4:51 remaining in the fourth quarter.

He has four career Big Ten weekly honors. He was previously recognized in 2016, earning the weekly honor following Iowa's 14-13 win over Michigan. Duncan contributed two field goals in that win, including the game-winner from 33 yards on the final play of the game.

YOUNG, SARGENT SURPASS 1,000 CAREER RUSHING YARDS

Junior running backs Toren Young and Mekhi Sargent each surpassed 1,000 career rushing yards in Iowa's win over Middle Tennessee on Sept. 28.

Sargent entered the game with 953 rushing yards and moved past 1,000 for his career on a 12-yard run late in the first period. He ended the contest with 91 rushing yards. His career totals include 1,288 yards on 276 attempts. He was the 48th Iowa running back to surpass 1,000 career yards and currently ranks 32nd on the all-time list.

Young entered Week 4 with 950 career yards and surpassed 1,000 on a 15-yard run early in the second quarter, becoming the 49th Iowa running back to surpass the century total. He led the Hawkeyes with a career-high

FERENTZ MOVES UP BIG TEN CHARTS

Head coach Kirk Ferentz has 97 Big Ten wins as Iowa's head coach, the fourth most of any coach in Big Ten Conference history.

Ferentz's 161 wins in all games coached as a member of the Big Ten Conference rank fifth in league history. He is one of five coaches in Big Ten Conference history to win at least 150 games as a member of the Big Ten Conference. The top five includes Woody Hayes (202), Amos Alonza Stagg (199), Bo Schembechler (194), Joe Paterno (162), and Ferentz (161).

Ferentz (160-103) became Iowa's all-time winningest coach on Sept. 1, 2018. The Hawkeyes defeated Northern Illinois, 33-7. It was Ferentz's 144th win as Iowa's head coach, one more than his predecessor, Hayden Fry (143-89-6). Fry coached Iowa for 20 years (1979-98). Ferentz is in his 21st season in 2019.

Both Ferentz (160, 96) and Fry (143, 96) rank in the top five in overall wins and Big Ten wins. Only Iowa and Michigan have two coaches ranked in the top 10 of both win categories (Bo Schembechler 194, 143; and Lloyd Carr 122, 81).

Iowa is the only school in the country to have just two head football coaches since 1979.

FERENTZ TOPS IN LONGEVITY

Kirk Ferentz is in his 21st season as Iowa's head football coach. He is the longest tenured active head coach in college football. Ferentz was named Iowa head coach on Dec. 2, 1998. Gary Patterson of TCU is No. 2 in coaching tenure. Patterson's first year with the Horned Frogs was 2001. Among Big Ten coaches, only Pat Fitzgerald (2006) and Mark Dantonio (2007) have been at their current schools for 10 seasons or more. Iowa is the only school to have just two head football coaches since 1979.

Defensive coordinator Phil Parker and strength and conditioning coach Chris Doyle are also in their 21st seasons on Iowa's staff. Quarterbacks coach Ken O'Keefe was on Ferentz's original coaching staff before he left for the NFL following the 2011 season. He returned to Iowa in 2017 to coach Iowa's quarterbacks.

Ferentz is the only Division I coach to coach three sons. Brian Ferentz, a former Hawkeye letterman and captain (2003-05), enters his eighth season on Iowa's coaching staff. James Ferentz was a three-year starter on the Hawkeye offensive line and a team captain before graduating in 2013. Steven was an offensive lineman and letterwinner in 2015 and 2016.

REINVENTING THE STADIUM WAVE

The University of Iowa football program received the prestigious 2017 Disney Sports Spirit Award after launching a heart-warming tradition at its home games last season that touched the lives of scores of young patients at the University's Stead Family Children's Hospital.

In a tradition that started at the 2017 season opener, fans inside Kinnick Stadium and patients and families inside the UI Stead Family Children's Hospital exchange waves at the end of the first quarter of each home game.

The UI Stead Family Children's Hospital opened in 2017. It is connected to the south end of the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics and overlooks Kinnick Stadium from the southeast grandstands. During Iowa football home games, patients and their families can watch the game from the top floor (Level 12), one of the highest vantage points in Iowa City.

IOWA LEADERSHIP GROUP

The University of Iowa football program includes 19 student-athletes – 18 seniors and one junior. The Leadership Group assists in formulating team policies and is involved in team decision-making throughout the year. Players were selected by team vote.

The group consists of seniors Drew Cook, Wes Dvorak, Amani Jones, Cedrick Lattimore, John Milani, Michael Ojemudia, Landan Paulsen, Levi Paulsen, Colten Rastetter, Brady Reiff, Brady Ross, Ryan Schmidt, Nate Stanley, Jackson Subbert, Nate Vejvoda, Kristian Welch, Nate Wieting, and Devonte Young, and junior Toren Young.

Iowa has three players whose brothers played at Iowa: LB Nick Niemann (Ben in 2014-17), FB Johnny Plewa (Macon in 2013-15), and DL Brady Reiff (Riley in 2008-11).

LS Austin Spiewak is the grandson of Gary Grouwinkel, who played for Iowa in the 1957 and 1959 Rose Bowl games.

LB Dillon Doyle is the son of head strength and conditioning coach Chris Doyle.

SEEING DOUBLE

Senior offensive linemen Landan and Levi Paulsen started Weeks 1-4, becoming the first set of twin brothers to start for the Hawkeyes since SS Kent Ellis and CB Kevin Ellis in 1980. The last brothers to start in the same game for the Hawkeyes were James and LeShun Daniels. James was Iowa's starting center in the 2016 season opener against Miami (Ohio), and LeShun was Iowa's starting running back.

The Paulsens are the sixth set of twins to play football at the University of Iowa. The offensive linemen from Woodbury High School in Northwest Iowa join the company of Leo and Lloyd Jensvold (1929-30), Harold and Herbert Shoener (1946-47), Kent and Kevin Ellis (1977-80), Aaron and Evan Kooiker (1992), and Shane and Shaun Prater (2008).

IOWA PROGRAM NOTES

- Only nine schools have won more games than the Hawkeyes (46) since 2015. They include Clemson (67), Alabama (65), Ohio State (60), Oklahoma (57), Georgia (53), Wisconsin (52), Penn State (50), LSU (48), and Michigan (47). Iowa's 46 wins matches its best five-year record in school history (1983-87).
- The Hawkeyes have earned bowl eligibility in 18 of the last 19 seasons. Iowa is 8-8 in bowl games since 2001. Only Ohio State (9) and Wisconsin (8) have more bowl wins among Big Ten teams since 2001. The Hawkeyes are 16-15-1 in 32 bowl games. Iowa has won five January bowl games under Ferentz.
- Iowa is the only school to have two head football coaches since 1979. Hayden Fry took over prior to the 1979 season and coached through the 1998 season, posting a record of 143-89-6. Current coach Kirk Ferentz (156-102) replaced Fry and is in his 21st season in 2019. Ferentz also served as Iowa's offensive line coach from 1981-89 under Fry.
- Iowa played in the Big Ten title game for the first time in program history on Dec. 5, 2015. Iowa earned Big Ten Conference championships in 2002 and 2004 and placed second in 2009. Iowa (8-0, 2002; 8-0, 2015) is one of three Big Ten teams to post a perfect mark in conference play since 1998 (BCS era), joining Michigan State (1) and Ohio State (5).
- Iowa has ranked in the top 10 in the final Associated Press and CNN/USA Today coaches polls five times since 2002, including a ranking of seventh in both polls at the conclusion of the 2009 season. Iowa ranked eighth in 2002, 2003 and 2004. The Hawkeyes finished 2015 ranked ninth in the AP poll and 10th in the USA Today Coaches Poll. In the Big Ten, only Ohio State has more top 10 finishes since 2002.
- Since 1936 when the first AP poll was released, Iowa has appeared in the poll 333 times, the fifth highest total in the Big Ten (Ohio State, Michigan, Wisconsin, and MSU). Iowa has been the top-ranked team in the country 11 times.
- Iowa set a school record with 12 wins in 2015. The Hawkeyes won 11 games in 2002 (11-2), and 2009 (11-2). In 2009, Iowa started 9-0 and won 10 regular season games for just the fourth time in school history.
- Iowa won 10 or more games in three consecutive years (2002-04) for the first time in school history.
- Kirk Ferentz has been named Big Ten Coach of the Year four times (2002, 2004, 2009, 2015) and was named National Coach of the Year in 2002 and 2015. Only Michigan's Bo Schembechler (6) has more conference coach of the year honors. Iowa's Hayden Fry and Penn State's Joe Paterno both won the award three times.
- Iowa has had 10 individual national award winners under head coach Kirk Ferentz. They include Brad Banks (2002 Davey O'Brien, Top Quarterback; 2002 Associated Press National Player of the Year); Dallas Clark (2002 Mackey, Top Tight End); Nate Kaeding (2002 Groza, Top Kicker); Robert Gallery (2003 Outland, Top Lineman); Shonn Greene (2008 Doak Walker, Top Running Back); Brandon Scherff (2014 Outland, Top Lineman), Desmond King (2015 Jim Thorpe), Josey Jewell (2017 Lott IMPACT), T.J. Hockenson (2018, Mackey, Top Tight End).
- Iowa's offensive line earned the Joe Moore Award in 2016, an honor bestowed upon the top offensive line unit in the country.
- Iowa's football record in the 2000 decade was 80-45 (.640), a record that ranks as the best decade in Iowa football history, based on total wins. Iowa posted a record of 77-40-4 (.652) during the 1980's and the Hawkeyes were 62-53-2 (.538) in the 1990's. Iowa is 69-46 (.596) since 2010.

USC TROJANS VS IOWA HAWKEYES

KIRK FERENTZ

Kirk Ferentz
Head Football Coach
21st Year at Iowa

Kirk Ferentz is completing his 21st year as head football coach at the University of Iowa, and his 30th season overall at the University. With Iowa's 33-7 win over Northern Illinois in the opening game of the 2018 season, Ferentz recorded win No. 144 as Iowa's head coach, surpassing Hayden Fry as the winningest football coach in program history. Fry was Iowa's head coach for 20 seasons (1979-98).

Ferentz is the longest tenured head football coach in the nation. Ferentz and Fry are the only head coaches to lead a Division I football program for 20 years, consecutively. With a 63-0 win at Illinois in 2018, Ferentz became just the fifth coach in Big Ten Conference history to win 150 games as a Big Ten head coach. Ferentz earned his 97th career Big Ten win at Nebraska in November, moving into fourth place in career wins within league play.

Ferentz holds a 161-104 record at Iowa, including 97-75 in conference games. His 23-year record as a college head coach is 173-125.

Under Ferentz' leadership the Iowa football program in 2019 will make its 17th bowl game appearance since 2001. That success has been achieved with strong commitments to the program, the University of Iowa, and the ideals that represent Hawkeye football – hard work, determination, player development and character, on and off the field.

The Hawkeyes have won 46 games over the past five seasons, matching the best five-year win total in school history (1983-87). Ferentz has guided the Hawkeyes to eight wins or more each of the past five seasons and 12 seasons overall since 2003. Iowa has appeared in 11 January bowl games under Ferentz.

On the field, Ferentz's approach can be described as smart, tough, and physical. Off the field, academics and character development are a focus. In 2018, the University of Iowa outperformed its peers nationally in the classroom for the eighth consecutive year, according to data released by the NCAA.

Iowa concluded the season with three straight wins over border rivals Minnesota, Illinois and Nebraska. Following a 24-22 loss at Wisconsin to open November, the Hawkeyes handed seventh-ranked Minnesota its first loss of the season to maintain possession of Floyd of Rosedale. A 27-24 win over the Cornhuskers in the final game of the season kept the Heroes Trophy in Iowa City. Iowa's three losses came by a combined 14 points to three teams who were ranked in the top 20 at the time. Iowa also maintained possession of the Cy-Hawk Trophy with a non-conference win at Iowa State in September.

Iowa won six of its first seven games in 2018 and closed the season with wins in the final three games, including the 27-22 Outback Bowl win over No. 18 Mississippi State. The four losses came by a total of 23 points and all were decided in the final minutes of play. Iowa's defense ranked second nationally in interceptions after leading the nation in 2017. Iowa's 51 interceptions over the past three seasons ranks first nationally.

Iowa's 8-5 record in 2017 included wins in three of four trophy games, with victories over Iowa State, Minnesota and Nebraska, plus the Pinstripe Bowl win to conclude the season. Iowa also began November with a 55-24 win over third-ranked Ohio State. Nine of Iowa's 12 regular season opponents were bowl eligible (posting an 8-1 record) as the Hawkeyes faced one of the strongest schedules in the nation.

Iowa closed the 2016 regular season with three straight wins, including two over ranked opponents. Iowa posted a 6-3 record in Big Ten play to tie for second place in the West Division and finished the season at 8-5 overall.

Highlights of the year included Iowa defeating second-ranked Michigan and 15th-ranked Nebraska in the final month of the season, as well as earning a January bowl invitation for the 10th time during the Ferentz era.

The Iowa football program enjoyed a historic season in 2015, posting a final 12-2 record. Ferentz led the 2015 Hawkeyes to a perfect regular season, setting a school record with 12 wins. The Hawkeyes won the Big Ten Conference West Division (8-0) before falling to Michigan State, 16-13, in a close championship game that was decided in the final minute of play. The Hawkeyes earned their sixth invitation to the Rose Bowl, which was Iowa's first appearance in Pasadena in 25 years.

Ferentz was recognized with both the Hayes-Schembechler and Dave McClain Big Ten Conference Coach of the Year awards in 2015. He was named Eddie Robinson (FWAA) and Woody Hayes national Coach of the Year

KIRK FERENTZ

(Columbus Touchdown Club), and received the Dodd Trophy, presented by the Bobby Dodd Coach of the Year Foundation. He was also named the American Football Coaches Association (AFCA) Region 3 Coach of the Year.

Coaching History

Ferentz' coaching career began as a student assistant (1977) at his alma mater, the University of Connecticut. The next two years (1978-79) were spent at Worcester Academy, where he also taught English literature. He then served as a graduate assistant offensive line coach at the University of Pittsburgh during the 1980 season. That Pittsburgh team (coached by Jackie Sherrill) finished with an 11-1 record and a number two national ranking.

Ferentz joined Hayden Fry's Iowa staff as the offensive line coach in 1981, which became Iowa's first winning seasons in 19 years. The season was highlighted by the Hawkeyes winning a conference title and earning a Rose Bowl berth – both of which had not occurred in 20 years.

He continued as Iowa's offensive line coach through the 1989 season and had great success coaching offensive lines that, to date, have anchored four of Iowa's highest scoring offenses. In addition, eight of Iowa's top 10 offensive teams, in terms of yards gained per game, have operated with Ferentz as the head coach or offensive line coach. And Iowa's top nine passing teams of all time have occurred with Ferentz as the head coach, or offensive line coach.

Ferentz was named head coach of the University of Maine Black Bears in 1990 and held that position for three years before being hired by Bill Belichick and the Cleveland Browns to coach the offensive line. He remained with the organization after it moved to Baltimore and became the Baltimore Ravens, serving as assistant head coach and offensive line coach. In all, he worked six years with the Cleveland Browns/Baltimore Ravens of the National Football League.

He rejoined the Hawkeyes as head coach in 1999 and is Iowa's longest tenured head football coach.

Personal History

Off the field, family is the top priority for Ferentz. Ferentz and his wife, Mary, have been married for 40 years. They have five children: Brian, Kelly, Joanne, James, and Steven. They also have four granddaughters (Presley, Blakely, Connolly and Jolie), and five grandsons (John, Forest, Nixon, Lincoln, and Beckett). All five of their children graduated from City High School in Iowa City and earned degrees from the University of Iowa; and each of the boys had the incredible experience of playing football at the University of Iowa with their father as head coach.

Kirk and Mary are very enthusiastic supporters of the University of Iowa Stead Family Children's Hospital. They serve as advocates for the Children's Hospital, hosting and speaking at events across the state to raise awareness and support for the hospital. Kirk and Mary established the "Ferentz Family Pediatric Research and Education Endowment Fund" in 2007. In honor of their granddaughter, Mary and Kirk donated more than $1 million in 2017 to establish the Savvy Elizabeth Ferentz Neonatology Research Fund. In addition, the Iowa Women's Football Academy has donated more than $2.5 million to the UI Stead Family Children's Hospital, which opened across the street from Kinnick Stadium in December, 2016.

Ferentz has also been involved in supporting a number of community and university-related initiatives, including serving as the honorary chair of the University of Iowa's United Way campaign. Kirk and Mary have also contributed generously to the University of Iowa, including donations to the University's College of Liberal Arts. Another significant gift was a $500,000 commitment to support the Iowa Football Legacy Campaign, which included two key projects benefitting the Hawkeye football program; the indoor practice facility; and the Stew and LeNore Hansen Football Performance Center.

Ferentz was born August 1, 1955, in Royal Oak, Michigan. He attended Upper St. Clair High School in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and graduated from the University of Connecticut in 1978 with a bachelor's degree in English Education. He was a football captain and an academic all-Yankee Conference linebacker at Connecticut.

Ferentz received the Distinguished Alumnus Award from the Neag School of Education at the University of Connecticut in May, 2009. He was inducted into the Upper St. Clair High School Hall of Fame in September, 2002, and the Western Chapter of the Pennsylvania Sports Hall of Fame in May, 2003.

IOWA NOTES

Kirk Ferentz has 97 Big Ten Conference wins, passing Hayden Fry (96) for fourth all-time in conference history.

Kirk Ferentz has 161 wins as a member of the Big Ten Conference, fifth all-time and one win from tying Joe Paterno (162) for fourth all-time.

K Keith Duncan connected on a 48-yard field goal with one second remaining to break a 24-24 tie and give Iowa a 27-24 win. It was Duncan's second of two field goals made today (49, 48). He has 29 made field goals this season, a single-season school record, a Big Ten record, and tied for the sixth most in NCAA single-season history.

K Keith Duncan's game-winning field goal was the third fourth-quarter winning field goal of his career. He kicked a 33-yard field goal as time expired to defeat Michigan in 2016, and made a 39-yard field goal with 4:51 left in the fourth quarter to defeat Iowa State, 18-17, in 2019.

DE A.J. Epenesa set career highs in tackles (14) and tackles-for-loss (4.5-22 yards). He added two sacks (12 yards).

FS Jack Koerner (11) and LB Kristian Welch (10) had double-digit tackle games. Koerner recorded his first career interception (20 yard return) to thwart Nebraska's final drive of the first half. Welch has 33 tackles in his last three games.

QB Nate Stanley passed for 99 yards today, raising his career total to 8,089. He is the third player in program history to pass for 8,000 or more yards (Chuck Long 10,461; Drew Tate 8,292).

WR Ihmir Smith-Marsette's 45-yard touchdown rush in the first quarter was a career-long. The rush put Smith-Marsette over 2,500 career all-purpose yards. He is the 20th player in program history to reach that total. Smith-Marsette has 2,631 all-purpose yards, 20th all-time.

WR Ihmir Smith-Marsette's 95-yard kickoff return for a touchdown ties for the ninth longest in school history. It is the first kickoff returned for a touchdown by the Hawkeyes since Jordan Cotton returned a kickoff 92 yards for a touchdown against Penn State in 2012.

RB Tyler Goodson rushed 13 times for a career-high 116 yards and a touchdown. It is his first career 100-yard game. His 55-yard touchdown rush in the first quarter was the longest of his career and the longest rushing touchdown by Iowa this season, and the longest by a Hawkeye since Akrum Wadley in 2016 (75 yards vs. Nebraska).

RB Tyler Goodson is Iowa's leading rusher this season (590 yards). No true freshman has ever led the team in single-season rushing yards. The last redshirt freshman to lead Iowa in single-season rushing yards was Ladell Betts in 1998 (679 yards).

It was the school's first bowl appearance. Iowa assumed an early lead on game MVP Kenny Ploen's 49-yard run. Ploen also completed 9-of-10 passes. Collins Hagler scored two TDs and totaled a game-best 85 rushing yards. Iowa played Oregon State during the regular season and had also won that encounter, 14-13. The Rose Bowl win was the Big Ten's 10th win in 11 games against its west coast opponents. Over 15,000 Hawkeye fans attended the game.

GAME RECAP

Iowa's attempt to become the winningest team in Hawkeye history came up just short at the hands of Ty Detmer and Brigham Young. The 1990 Heisman Trophy winner passed for 350 yards in rallying the Cougars back from a 13-0 halftime deficit. Iowa built its lead on two touchdown runs by Mike Saunders. Saunders joined Iowa's exclusive 1,000-yard in a season club. He had 103 yards on 19 carries in the Holiday Bowl to give him 1,022 for the season and 1,476 career rushing yards. Iowa QB Matt Rodgers completed 19 of 28 passes for 221 yards. Jon Filloon caught a career-high seven passes for 107 yards in his final game as a Hawkeye. All-American defensive end Leroy Smith was injured in the first half and never returned to the Iowa lineup. BYU had a chance to win the game with under 30 seconds to play. The Cougars had a first down on the Iowa 18-yard line with the score tied. However, Detmer's final pass was intercepted by Carlos James at the goal line. Teddy Jo Faley led Iowa's defenders with 14 tackles, including 13 solo stops. The Hawkeyes finished the season ranked 10th in both the AP and CNN/USA Today polls with a 10-1-1 record.

GAME RECAP

In its first trip back to San Antonio since losing to California 37-3 in the inaugural 1993 Alamo Bowl, Iowa's defense put on a clinic in stopping the run - one runner in particular. Iowa's group of run-stoppers, headed by sophomore linebackers Matt Hughes and Vernon Rollins, held Doak Walker Award winner and 2,000-yard rusher Byron Hanspard to 64 yards rushing on 18 attempts. In the process the Hawkeyes shut down Texas Tech for a dominating 27-0 win. Hanspard's longest run of the evening was 17 yards, as Iowa controlled the line of scrimmage and limited the Red Raiders to 60 yards total rushing. The victory was Iowa's second shutout of the season (the Hawkeyes also blanked Wisconsin 31-0). And while Hanspard was held in check throughout, Iowa senior Sedrick Shaw was unstoppable as he rushed for 113 yards on 20 carries and one touchdown. Shaw's second touchdown run was impressive, as he broke three tackles enroute to the end zone. Matt Sherman led a consistent Iowa offense with 126 yards passing - 105 to wide receiver Tim Dwight. The Hawkeye ground attack churned for 217 yards. Hughes finished with eight tackles, while Rollins added five. Sophomore Jared DeVries finished with two sacks and five tackles, three for a loss. Shaw and DeVries were named offensive and defensive MVP's, respectively.

GAME RECAP

An incredible defensive effort by Arizona State picked apart Iowa's ninth-ranked offense and earned the Sun Devils a 17-7 win in the Norwest Sun Bowl. The Sun Devil offense overshadowed Iowa, as ASU rushed for 268 yards and compiled 377 yards total offense. RB Tavian Banks sparked the offense unit on Iowa's second possession, breaking loose for a 26-yard run to the ASU 30. Unfortunately, for Iowa, ASU held the nation's fourth-best rusher to only 52 yards in the game. In the second quarter ASU set a seven-play, 55-yard scoring drive into motion, and never looked back. The Sun Devils recovered an Iowa fumble late in the first half and added a field goal for a 10-0 halftime advantage.

Iowa was able to score on a six-play, 87-yard scoring drive, under the direction of quarterback Randy Reiners, late in the fourth quarter. LBs Raj Clark and Matt Hughes led the Iowa defense, each recording 12 tackles, while CB Ed Gibson added 11. Jared DeVries contributed nine tackles, two tackles for loss and one sack. Iowa punter Jason Baker was named Sun Bowl Special Teams MVP after averaging 48.9 yards per punt, including a Sun Bowl-record 76-yarder.

GAME RECAP

Iowa used record setting performances on both offense and defense to earn a 27-24 win over 12th-ranked Missouri in the 2010 Insight Bowl. The win was the third straight bowl victory for the Hawkeyes and the fourth of the season (in eight games) against a nationally-ranked opponent.

Freshman RB Marcus Coker was the key player for the Iowa offense, rushing 33 times for 219 yards and two touchdowns. Both the rushing attempts and yards established Iowa bowl records.

Sophomore DB Micah Hyde scored the winning points with 5:32 remaining in the game on a 72-yard interception return for a touchdown. That set an Iowa bowl record and ranks as the eighth longest return in school history.

Coker gave the Hawkeyes an early 7-0 advantage with a one-yard scoring run to complete the opening drive. Missouri responded with a field goal on its first drive, but Coker added a 62-yard scoring run early in the second period to give Iowa a 14-3 advantage.

The Hawkeyes added a 34-yard Mike Meyer field goal later in the period before Missouri scored on a 10-yard run to cut Iowa's halftime advantage to 17-10.

Iowa's only offensive points of the second half came midway through the third period when Meyer added a 21-yard field goal for a 20-10 advantage, capping a 93-yard scoring drive. The Tigers cut the lead to 20-17 later in the third quarter and took their first advantage at 24-20 with under a minute left in the period.

Hyde's interception return, the fourth for the Hawkeyes in 13 games, was the only scoring in the final quarter. Stanzi complemented Coker's rushing effort by completing 11-21 passes for 200 yards.

The Iowa defense was led by Greenwood, who collected 11 tackles to go with a second quarter interception. DB Shaun Prater added nine tackles and LB James Morris had seven.

GAME RECAP

No. 14 LSU scored 14-first-half points and ultimately held on to defeat Iowa, 21-14, at the 2014 Outback Bowl in Tampa.

The Tigers drove 77 yards on the first possession of the game to grab a 7-0 advantage.

In the second quarter, LSU capitalized on a Kevonte Martin-Manley fumbled punt at the 39-yard line, scoring seven plays later on a 14-yard rush to take a 14-0 halftime lead.

John Lowdermilk provided a spark in the third quarter, intercepting QB Anthony Jennings and returning his first career theft 71 yards to the 1-yard line. The 71-yard interception return is the 12th-longest in school history. Three plays later RB Mark Weisman scored on a 2-yard rush to cut the deficit to 14-7.

Midway through the fourth quarter, Iowa marched inside the LSU red zone, but a fourth down interception at the LSU 8-yard line thwarted a game-tying scoring drive.

LSU scored its third touchdown on a Jeremy Hill 37-yard rush, his second score of the game, with 1:50 left to play.

Iowa's Jordon Cotton returned the ensuing kickoff a career-long 96 yards to the LSU 4-yard line. The 96-yard kickoff return is the eighth-longest return in school history and longest non-touchdown kickoff return in Iowa annals. Two plays later, QB C.J. Beathard connected with Martin-Manley in the end zone for a 4-yard touchdown for the final score.

QB Jake Rudock completed 9-of-22 passes for 102 yards before leaving in the third period due to injury. Beathard completed 4-of-7 passes for 55 yards and a score.

Weisman rushed 18 times for 37 yards, while TE C.J. Fiedorowicz caught a game-high four passes for 46 yards.

Cotton's 42.7 kickoff return average on three attempts broke the Outback Bowl record for kickoff return average.

LB James Morris recorded eight tackles and reached 400 career tackles in his career -- becoming only the sixth Hawkeye to accomplish that feat.

GAME RECAP

Iowa forced three turnovers and RB Akrum Wadley amassed a career-high 283 all-purpose yards in a 27-20 Iowa victory in the New Era Pinstripe Bowl at Yankee Stadium. The win snapped Iowa's five-game bowl losing streak.

Wadley, who was named Pinstripe Bowl MVP, totaled an Iowa bowl record 171 yards on five kickoff returns. He also totaled 88 rushing yards and 24 yards receiving.

The game was played in frigid temperatures, 23 degrees at kickoff with wind chills in the lower teens, and is the coldest Pinstripe Bowl on record. The Hawkeyes totaled 200 yards of offense, its lowest total in a bowl game win in program history.

Jake Gervase intercepted his third pass of the season on the third play from scrimmage, which resulted in a Miguel Recinos 24-yard field goal for the game's first score.

Boston College RB A.J. Dillon, who rushed a game-high 32 times for 157 yards, scored his only touchdown on a 4-yard run with five seconds left in the first period.

Iowa answered on its next possession with a TE Noah Fant 8-yard scoring reception from QB Nate Stanley. The TD pass was the 26th for Stanley, tying Brad Banks (2002) for second most in a single season in program annals. The score was set up by Wadley's 72-yard kickoff return, a career best.

The Eagles closed the half scoring 10 straight points -- a 39-yard pass play and a 30-yard field goal -- to take a 17-10 advantage into halftime.

Wadley scored his 35th career touchdown, which tied Sedrick Shaw for second most in program history, on a 5-yard rush midway through the third quarter to even the score.

Both teams traded field goals in the fourth quarter before the Iowa defense collected two turnovers in the final five minutes. With the game tied (20-20), DE Anthony Nelson sacked QB Darius Wade and forced a fumble that DE Parker Hesse recovered in Boston College territory. Three plays later, FB Drake Kulick scored his first career rushing touchdown on a 1-yard plunge into the end zone for the eventual game-winning score.

All-American CB Josh Jackson helped seal the win by collecting his eighth interception of the season, tying a school single-season record, on Boston College's next possession. DB Amani Hooker led Iowa's defense with 12 tackles, including two touchdown-saving stops. He was named to the Associated Press All-Bowl teams for his efforts.

WR Matt VandeBerg played in his 54th career game, more than any other player in school history. VandeBerg ended his career having at least one reception in 32 consecutive games played.

2019 OUTBACK BOWL

Iowa 27, #18 Mississippi State 22

GAME RECAP

Iowa posted an impressive 27-22 win over No. 18 Mississippi State at the 2019 Outback Bowl, its second straight bowl victory. The win was Iowa's first over a nationally-ranked opponent this season and first over a ranked bowl opponent since 2010.

Iowa was able to rally from a 6-0 deficit in the first quarter to upend the Bulldogs, due in large part to scoring 17 points off three turnovers and not committing a penalty.

WR Nick Easley was voted the game's MVP, catching eight passes for a career-high 104 yards and two touchdowns -- the first multi-touchdown game of his career.

The Bulldogs got on the board first, kicking a pair of first-quarter field goals. Iowa answered with 17 unanswered points in the second quarter. Miguel Recinos kicked the first (44) of his two field goals, followed by touchdown passes from QB Nate Stanley to Easley (75 yards) and WR Iahmir Smith-Marsette (15 yards). The 75-yard play is an Iowa bowl record for longest completion and longest touchdown reception.

The Bulldogs recaptured the lead early in the third quarter, capitalizing on two Hawkeye turnovers. Mississippi State scored two touchdowns in 18 seconds.

Easley's second TD catch (8 yards) later in the third quarter gave the Hawkeyes a 24-19 advantage, a lead they did not relinquish. Mississippi State and Iowa traded field goals in the fourth quarter.

Iowa's defense stood tall on the Bulldogs' final possession, forcing Mississippi State to turn the ball over on downs at Iowa's 32-yard line.

Stanley completed his first eight pass attempts, finishing the contest with 214 yards passing and three TD's on 21-of-31 attempts.

TETJ. Hockenson caught three passes for 43 yards. Smith-Marsette matched his career best with four receptions and set an Outback Bowl record with 150 kickoff return yards.

DT Chauncey Golston and FS Jake Gervase collected Iowa's two interceptions, raising its season total to 20, second most in the country. Golston also recovered a fumble in the second quarter, which set the table for Iowa's second score.

DB Matt Hankins led all tacklers with nine, while CB Michael Ojemudia matched his career high with eight stops. DE A.J. Epenesa had a forced fumble on a sack, raising his season total a team-best 10.5, the highest single-season total by a Hawkeye since Adrian Clayborn (11.5 sacks in 2009).

Title: The Next J.J. Watt? Iowa Edge A.J. Epenesa Lets His Dominance Speak for Itself

Author: Adam Kramer

Date: September 12, 2019

IOWA CITY — He doesn't talk like one of the best football players in America. In fact, A.J. Epenesa seems almost embarrassed to be doing this interview at all. Not because his first official start at Iowa came just a few weeks ago. But because Epenesa can do without it all. The attention. The interest. The NFL mock drafts projecting him in the top 10 next spring (OK, he admits. He is slightly curious). And yes, this interview.

He looks the part, though. That isn't up for debate as Epenesa eases his 6'6", 280-pound body—the kind of body built for taking down quarterbacks—into an office chair near his team's cafeteria. He says he models his game after J.J. Watt's, and it takes only a few seconds to understand why.

Epenesa is wearing a gray Iowa shirt, black shorts and brown sandals, with a beard that is just kempt enough. The tattoo that blankets his right arm—a magnificently detailed tribute to his Samoan heritage that, to date, has taken 15 hours to create, with more hours still left to go—dips below his sleeve and past his elbow.

Despite having reservations about publicity and the press, his answers are thoughtful. He is smooth and open—more so than most can't-miss football prospects. Yes, he has done everything possible to avoid the spotlight, but it's not because he dislikes meeting people. It's because throughout his life, he's never wanted it to be about him.

It's largely why he followed in his father's footsteps and committed to Iowa, a program that hadn't landed a 5-star football recruit in more than a decade. And after he arrived, it's why he embraced his reserve role. He grew into his role as a situational pass-rusher as a freshman. As a sophomore, he led the Big Ten in sacks.

He won't be able to avoid being the focal point of attention for long. Not when NFL scouts and execs have his name right beside that of potential No. 1 overall pick Chase Young among the top edge-rushers available in this year's draft.

"Young is more athletic by a hair and gets more hype," an NFL scout tells Bleacher Report. "But I bet Epenesa is the better pro. There's some J.J. Watt to his game"

No matter how hard he tries, Epenesa won't escape what's coming. Acclaim. Celebrity status. And mounting NFL interest.

Like his son, the father would prefer not to speak. He's grown tired of the calls and requests for interviews, and he knows they're not going to stop.

"No disrespect to you and your line of work," Eppy Epenesa, A.J.'s father, responds via text message. "But almost every day, someone wants info on him or wants to write a story on him. I just want him to enjoy college and learn as much as he can from those great folks in Iowa."

After a few more exchanged messages, Eppy calls out of the blue between shifts at his job. He is a supervisor for Southwest Airlines at St. Louis Airport, near their hometown of Glen Carbon, Illinois—a small town named for its coal-mining origins. It's a little past 5:30 p.m., and he's still on the clock for four more hours.

These days, Eppy spends his life largely either at work or in his car. Having four children who are passionate about sports means busy nights and weekends. His oldest, Samantha, played volleyball at Purdue. And A.J.'s younger brothers, Eric and Iosefatu, are athletes, too.

To make it to Iowa in time for games on Saturdays, Eppy is often on the road long before the sun rises.

Before Eppy walked on the football team at his son's current school, he began his life in American Samoa, a string of islands in the South Pacific. He left his home in Pago Pago to play football halfway across the world at Iowa Wesleyan, where he met his wife, Stephanie, who was on the volleyball team there. After two years at Wesleyan, Eppy walked on at Iowa. He eventually earned a scholarship, playing defensive end in 1996 and '97 under the guidance of iconic coach Hayden Fry, who nicknamed him "Repeat."

"It was the people of Iowa," says Eppy, whose given name is Epenesa, like his surname. "It reminded me of where I'm from. It's all about the people."

Eppy never pressured A.J. to play football, but his son took to it, blossoming at Edwardsville High School after overcoming a broken leg as a freshman. He was a first-team all-state selection and received All-America honors three times while helping to lead his team to a 40-6 record.

Epenesa also received All-America honors in track. He set the Illinois record in the discus as a junior and won the state title as a senior. And in basketball, he scored more than 1,000 points during his high school career and averaged a double-double as a senior.

When his former basketball teammate, Mark Smith, was recruited by some of the elite basketball programs and coaches in America, Epenesa naturally caught their eye.

"There were a lot of coaches that came to visit," Epenesa says. "They would say things like, 'I wish you weren't committed for football, because we'd want to take you for basketball.'"

In football, the sport he grew up destined to play, interest was widespread. Epenesa was ranked the No. 1 strong-side defensive end nationally in his class by 247Sports. He had offers from most of the major programs around the country, including Alabama and Ohio State.

For a while, he fell in love with Notre Dame. Then Oklahoma. But Iowa and Iowa City always had the allure—the allure of playing close to his home and for the program that ultimately changed his family's life.

"I told A.J. the same thing we told my daughter," Eppy says. "I didn't want him to go to Iowa because we went to Iowa. Go to Iowa because you love Iowa the way we love Iowa."

The best players in America don't regularly funnel to Iowa City. According to 247Sports, the last 5-star player to commit to Iowa before Epenesa came in 2005. Climate, in-state talent and Iowa's standing in the college football hierarchy all play a role. These historical obstacles were of no concern to Epenesa as he weighed his options.

"Every time I was here, I just really felt comfortable," Epenesa says. "I loved being around Iowa City. I felt like it was a place that was familiar to me. It felt like home, and I'm a big homebody. I love my family. And that feeling was what really drove me."

When he decided to commit, he didn't plan a hat ceremony or announce it on social media. His father didn't think that would be appropriate. "We wanted to do this right," Eppy says. "We wanted to do this old-school." So the entire family made the four-and-a-half-hour trek to Iowa City to tell the coaching staff in person. His oldest sister drove from Purdue and even sported an Iowa shirt for the occasion.

With Iowa head coach Kirk Ferentz, who took over for Fry in 1999, in attendance, the father was the first one to speak, beginning an emotional announcement before handing it over to the son.

"I think A.J. has something to tell you," he said.

For Ferentz, the moments are still so vivid. As he cycles through more than 40 years of coaching, reciting some of the truly spectacular players he has worked with, it's as if they just left.

Over his right shoulder, outside the window in his office, the finishing touches are being made to the north end zone at Kinnick Stadium a month before the season begins. Ferentz, now 64, is the longest-tenured coach in college football.

In that time, he has recruited and developed a number of extraordinary players. Like quarterback Brad Banks, who led the Hawkeyes to the Orange Bowl and finished as the runner-up in the Heisman race in 2002. And linebacker Chad Greenway, who became a fixture of the Minnesota Vikings defense for 10 years and made the Pro Bowl twice. And safety Bob Sanders, who was the NFL Defensive Player of the Year in 2007 for the Colts. Not to mention his most recent departures, tight ends T.J. Hockenson and Noah Fant, both of whom were selected in the first round of the 2019 draft.

But many of these players were not considered extraordinary as freshmen. Unlike Epenesa, the majority of Ferentz's NFL success stories were with players who weren't wildly coveted out of high school.

Those players flourished after they arrived, which has fueled Iowa's success over the past two decades. Epenesa's recruitment and eventual arrival was far different.

"He could have gone anywhere in the country," Ferentz says. "Everybody in the world was knocking his door down.

"There was a particular Big Ten school that hired a recruiting guy who was Samoan or Polynesian. Just coincidentally hired him, and he was on the hotline down to Edwardsville.

"There's no way we get A.J. if it weren't for his mom and dad and the strong ties to the program."

Upon arrival, it was clear early that Epenesa was different than most true freshmen. But as is often the case at Iowa, Epenesa was not given an abundance of reps right away. He still flashed promise, finishing with 4.5 sacks during his first season.

As a sophomore, Epenesa once again didn't start. His role increased, however, and he led the Big Ten in sacks with 10.5 despite coming off the bench. He also finished with 16.5 tackles for loss.

At Iowa, his career path has become a running joke of sorts. A young player blessed with NFL potential is trying to crack the starting lineup. Ferentz has heard it plenty over the past few seasons, although he takes the criticism with a smile.

"He's probably the most talked-about player ever in the history of Iowa football who hasn't started a game," Ferentz says. "Everybody has him as the fourth pick of the draft and all that, and I think he's almost embarrassed by it in some ways. I just want to make sure he doesn't feel like he has to be something that's been created, the legend of A.J. Epenesa."

To Ferentz, this is all part of a process—one that routinely grooms Iowa players into NFL draft picks. But many highly regarded players would not look favorably on this approach. Often these situations can become uncomfortable and lead to drama, discomfort or, increasingly, a transfer.

"You have a highly recruited guy who's extremely talented. But he's also humble and cares about other people," says former Iowa defensive line coach Reese Morgan, who retired over the offseason. "A lot of times, those guys have egos. That is absolutely not the case here." Epenesa didn't come to Iowa to leave. That was never part of the plan. Sure, there were moments when he wanted to see the field more over the past two seasons, but he found success through gradual growth.

"I always had the mindset of my time will come," Epenesa says. "Everyone who wants to be good at football wants to play, but I tried to stay patient. Now it's my time to let loose."

Epenesa's first showing of real, deep emotion comes 37 minutes in. After gliding through discussion of his deep, unconditional love for his family, and of everything that has led him to this point in his life, he finally stumbles when asked about the art of bull-rushing.

His body shifts. His eyes flicker and widen. His hand gestures become far more pronounced. While every defensive lineman has his trademark move to apply pressure, Epenesa is almost giddy as he explains just how much he enjoys lifting an offensive lineman from his feet and into the air.

"It's the most satisfying feeling when 320 pounds feels weightless," Epenesa says. "If you can successfully put a bull rush on the table on the first rep, that's it. It's like, 'Dude, you're in for it. You're going to let me do that right now? You're going to have some problems today.'"

Power is without question Epenesa's greatest asset. But at 280 pounds, he also generates enough speed and burst to make himself a menace chasing quarterbacks.

"I'm confident that I could successfully pass-rush against anybody," Epenesa says. "But I know there are also a lot of things I could work on."

The part that has NFL personnel most curious is the unknown. Because the exposure of Epenesa has been more natural and gradual than it is for many draft prospects, there are still questions as to what he will look like fully developed—not just as a starting defensive lineman, but as a star who will regularly battle double-teams and be schemed against differently every week.

"The thing I'm most excited about is that his best football is clearly in front of him," Ferentz says. "He's played good football for us and made really good plays, but he's still a really young guy who's just learning and developing. And he's got a great attitude about it. It's everything you want in the player."

On Saturday, in his second game as a starter, his full catalog of ability was on display against Rutgers. He sacked the opposing quarterback by almost leaping over him. The next series, he hit the quarterback's arm and forced an interception.

While Epenesa officially logged only one sack in the team's suffocating 30-0 victory, his impact on the game was far greater—a punishing, unrelenting force that disrupted the opposition's rhythm from the beginning.

Over the coming weeks and months, Epenesa will be the centerpiece of Iowa's defense. It will begin Saturday when the Hawkeyes travel to Iowa State in perhaps the most significant game of Week 3. From there, they'll head to Michigan and later Wisconsin—games that promise to be rife with scouts and NFL eyes.

If Epenesa continues to perform, his likelihood of being an early draft selection will only increase. His profile will continue to blossom. His celebrity status will grow.

And yes, the spotlight will only intensify, whether he or his father want it to or not.

Title: Iowa Football Notebook: Smith-Marsette Delivers Big Plays

Date: 12/2/2019

Author: Scott Dochterman

LINCOLN, Neb. - - Iowa cornerback Matt Hankins' bewildered look was worth a thousand YouTube clicks.

He gave a typical response about how Hawkeyes junior defensive end A.J. Epenesa impacts games. Then Hankins learned about Epenesa's stats against Nebraska on Friday — 14 tackles, two sacks, 4.5 tackles for loss.

Hankins stopped, arched his head and widened his eyes.

"Epenesa had 14 tackles? I didn't even know that," Hankins said. "My boy be balling out there." By halftime of the Hawkeyes' 27-24 win, Epenesa had produced solid full-game statistics with four tackles, including two for loss. In the second half, Epenesa became the most impactful player on the field.

On the first drive of the third quarter, the Hawkeyes (9-3, 6-3 Big Ten) were whistled for running into the kicker on fourth-and-5, giving the Huskers a first down. On the first play after the penalty, Epenesa blasted Nebraska running back Dedrick Mills for a 4-yard loss. Two plays later, Epenesa sacked quarterback Adrian Martinez for a 9-yard loss to force another punt. Epenesa recorded five more tackles in Nebraska's next two possessions to total seven for the third quarter alone.

"Every time he got a sack or a tackle for loss, I was just going crazy," tackle Tristan Wirfs said. "I was screaming, 'Let's go 9-4,' just screaming at the top of my lungs because that's my buddy. I'm seeing him do what he does best, do what we all know that he can do. It's pretty, pretty awesome."

Epenesa, who is 6-foot-6 and 280 pounds, entered the year as a consensus preseason All-American. As a sophomore in 2018, Epenesa led the Big Ten with 10.5 sacks as a rotational defensive end. His early-season statistics didn't measure to his true impact; through Iowa's first four games, Epenesa had one sack.

Questions lingered about his lack of production and whether his shift into a starting role limited his effectiveness. Epenesa faced double-teams on nearly every traditional passing situation and also regularly dealt with a chip block. It frustrated him, but Epenesa played within the defense and his presence elevated other defenders.

“Numbers, they don’t really matter when it comes to the kind of attention I was receiving,” Epenesa said. “It’s about want-to and getting to the ball. If you really want to make plays, then it’s hard to keep you away from the ball whenever you’re really trying to get to the ball.”

“We put him in a situation the first two years where we tried to utilize his strengths,” defensive line coach Kelvin Bell said. “He had a strength at rushing the passer, and there were other guys who were better at playing total defense. So, we had the luxury of using him that way.”

Epenesa produced sacks in consecutive losses to Michigan and Penn State, but it wasn’t until November that his production matched his impact. At Wisconsin, Epenesa raced off the edge in the first quarter and stripped quarterback Jack Coan inside the Badgers’ 20. The following week against Minnesota, he picked up 2.5 sacks. In the regular-season finale against Nebraska, Epenesa produced the best performance of his career.

“In a nutshell, A.J. Epenesa, what a phenomenal effort by him,” coach Kirk Ferentz said. “The whole defense played well, but he was certainly a catalyst for us out there. Good players, as they gain more experience, they play faster, play harder and play more efficiently. To me, that’s been part of the learning curve.”

Epenesa continued to make plays in the fourth quarter against the Huskers. On Nebraska’s penultimate drive, Epenesa combined to stop Mills for a 1-yard gain on first down, then sacked Martinez on third down. Epenesa added another tackle on a 1-yard gain in the Huskers’ final possession.

“The linebackers put me in some good calls, in some good situations,” Epenesa said. “That’s also just motor and want-to, to get to the ball. I just wanted to get the ball, and I was able to beat blocks and get off and do some things I haven’t done as well early on the season, and just continue to make plays. That’s what people expect — my coaches and my teammates, that’s what they expect from me and that’s what I expect for myself.”

Epenesa, who has 24 career sacks, is considered an upper-half first-round NFL draft pick should he bypass his senior year. He said last week he will evaluate his future following the regular season. If Epenesa leaves, his final regular-season game was borderline legendary.

“That’s crazy,” cornerback Michael Ojemudia said. “We know what he’s capable of, and it’s a blessing. He may not be here for long, but just having him by your side, he’s a good guy. A lot of guys that high profile probably are like snobby or whatever. But he’s such a good guy. So it’s a pleasure playing beside him.”

“What were his stats, like two or three sacks?” defensive tackle Brady Reiff said. “I don’t even know how many tackles, like 10, 20, 30. He is a great player, and you can’t say enough about him.”

Title: Ojemudia has a passion for football and auto design, and he's chasing a future that will include both

Author: Scott Dochterman

Date: 7/16/2019

IOWA CITY, Iowa – Michael Ojemudia clearly has defined himself on the football field. No other fifth-year player at Iowa has more career starts than Ojemudia's 10. At cornerback, Ojemudia posted interceptions in consecutive games last year – three overall – and recorded nine pass breakups. Even with several talented underclassmen, two of which who replaced him when he was injured last fall, Ojemudia has solidified his position this spring.

"Right now, I'd say O.J. and Matt (Hankins) got that locked down," safety Geno Stone said. Ojemudia, who stands 6-foot-1 and weighs 200 pounds, wants to play professional football following his college graduation in December. Unlike some of his peers, Ojemudia has plans once he puts his helmet on the shelf.

A Detroit native, Ojemudia has grown up around the auto industry. His father, Dennis Ojemudia, immigrated to the United States from Nigeria in 1980 to attend college. Dennis graduated with an undergraduate degree in electrical engineering and later received his Ph.D. In 1991, he started working for Ford Motor Company, where he continues to work.

His father's profession has rubbed off on Michael Ojemudia. When he graduated from Harrison High School in Farmington Hills, Mich., the football player knew what he wanted to do with his life once football was over.

"His last year in the high school I looked at his grades, especially in science, they were mostly all A's," Dennis said. "I asked him, 'It's time to sit down and wonder where do you want to go to school?' He said, 'I don't have to think about it. I've decided what I want to do.' 'OK, what is that?' He said engineering. I said, 'What area?' He said, 'Dad, you're doing electrical. What about me doing mechanical?'"

Ojemudia played with Hot Wheels as a child. As a teen, he wanted to design vehicles, like his father. That's still his goal today.

"On bring your kid to work day, I used to go over there (Ford)," Ojemudia said. "They used to do the crash tests and stuff like that. So that's what basically got me eager for that industry at an early age. Just my dad bringing me there.

"That's basically my biggest inspiration for becoming an engineer. (My dad is) an engineer at Ford. So that's where I got my passion for engineering."

The testing is what really excited Michael, his father recalls.

“Sometimes I used to have Saturday work and he was like, ‘Dad, can I tag along?’” Dennis Ojemudia said. “I said ‘OK, come along.’”

Ojemudia, a two-star football prospect, let it be known to anyone who offered him a scholarship that that was his career path. He had no interest in switching to a general-studies major to lighten his academic load. His focus was on his future as much as it was football.

“It was really important to him in the recruiting process,” Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz said. “You could tell that was in the home. Dad is an engineer. The real trick is, can you do it?”

Dennis Ojemudia played soccer as a youth but not at the college level. It took him five-plus years to earn his degree while he worked part-time jobs. He was concerned about whether his son could keep up with football and his education.

“It’s been tough but he keeps saying, ‘Dad, I will hang in. I’m going to see it through,’” Dennis Ojemudia said. “I said, ‘OK. Don’t change.’”

Keeping up in the classroom hasn’t been easy, but Ojemudia has never wavered.

“He’s had his ups and downs academically because that’s no easy track for sure,” Ferentz said. “But he’s stuck it out. He’s done a really nice job.”

On a warm night last month, Ojemudia joined his Iowa football teammates to participate in an annual networking event at the football complex. Ferentz brought in 33 former players to discuss their current careers with current members. With so much of their focus on football, many of the older players become anxious when examining their future.

Ojemudia met with former Iowa center Mike Elgin to discuss post-graduate opportunities. Elgin also majored in mechanical engineering and works as an engineer with John Deere in Dubuque, Iowa.

“He’s a good connection for me if I want to get into that industry,” Ojemudia said.

Ferentz walked out of the event with Elgin, who was a seventh-round draft pick by the New England Patriots in 2007. Now, Elgin coaches high school football along with his work as an engineer. It’s encounters like these that make the annual experience rewarding for Ferentz.

Two players from different eras with little in common except for the TigerHawk and their career path.

“Mike wasn’t recruited very heavily out of high school, but he was recruited extremely heavily (as an engineer),” Ferentz said. “He could have gone anywhere in the world to work as an engineer.”

“The neat thing about being an engineer here or probably anywhere is it’s like 99.8 (percent), the job placement, within like two weeks when you come out.”

That’s what entices Ojemudia about the engineering field. Once his football career ends, whether that’s next summer or 2033, he likely won’t struggle to find work. Also, it’s in a profession of which he’s passionate.

It’s probable Ojemudia will move back to Michigan once his playing career concludes. While his father designs infotainment and touch screens, Ojemudia eyes external design.

“Basically, just bumpers, the looks,” Ojemudia said. “Just making the car look good, but also efficient. So that’s kind of where my focus is at.”

As for his favorite design, well, it’s not a vehicle made in Detroit.

“My dad probably wouldn’t like to hear it, but it’s Audi,” Ojemudia said of the German automaker. “I just like how they move; how fast and sleek it looks.”

Perhaps Ojemudia someday will design a chassis that resembles an Audi. Until then, Ojemudia will continue to drive his Ford Escape, the only vehicle he has owned. Until he graduates from Iowa in December and gets a full-time job, that’s what he’ll keep.

Then there’s football. Ojemudia will represent Iowa as one of three invitees to Big Ten Media Days this week. As prepared as he is for his future, the next six months are about his present.

“I feel like for me, my journey, I just have been making little strides every year,” Ojemudia said. “I’m a developmental player, so I feel like the best year is going to be ahead of me.”

Title: With a new 'grown-man look,' Smith-Marsette has refined grasp on maturity

Author: Chad Leistikow

Date: 8/28/2019

"I just talked to coach Ferentz about maturity," Smith-Marsette said Tuesday, recalling that breakthrough conversation. "We're running a race, and it's time to grow up. That just hit me hard.

"I came into summer workouts with a different mindset, different attitude, eating right. I just changed my whole thinking around. I knew Brandon (Smith) and me were the older guys in the (wide receiver) room. So it was just time to take that step forward and stop with the shenanigans."

That's a fitting word. It's not as if Smith-Marsette was close to becoming a program casualty — or was an on-field liability of any sort. But his leadership and daily approach needed significant tightening.

There was the phone chastising during the 2018 spring, followed by Kelton Copeland's ominous words in April. Ferentz's comments at Big Ten media days regarding Smith-Marsette's early offseason weren't promising, either. The Hawkeyes didn't want their junior receiver to completely shed his spirited demeanor, just fine-tune the edges needed to meet Iowa's standards for its upperclassmen. Since that pivotal meeting, signs of Smith-Marsette's maturity can be found throughout Hawkeye dialogue.

Offensive coordinator Brian Ferentz didn't hold back the praise when meeting with the media last week, calling Smith-Marsette "as impressive a guy as we have on our roster right now." Iowa's football leader had a similar assessment Tuesday. "It's a matter of really directing his energies and focusing his energies a little bit better, and that's part of maturation," Kirk Ferentz said, "Every player goes through it. "... Ihmir's done a good job, and I couldn't be more complimentary of what he did during the summer. He was in tremendous condition — the best condition we've seen him in — and same thing over the last three-plus weeks. He's really done a good job out there." It's solid timing, considering Smith-Marsette's workload is expanding. In addition to roles as Iowa's top "Z" receiver and arguably the conference's most electric kick returner, the New Jersey native will field punts in 2019. The agility and explosiveness Smith-Marsette showed in winning Big Ten return specialist of the year last year should carry over to his new side job. Those who relish punt returning are a different breed. Some of football's most dynamic athletes don't enjoy that all-alone feeling, as a wobbly boot starts to sink with an entire special teams unit charging at you. Blocking remains just as important — but those first few seconds after the catch is often a solo task. Breaking through that first wave requires lots of moving and grooving. Smith-Marsette loves it. "I'm fearless," he said. "I'll do anything. I'll catch those crazy types of punts, those wicked balls and stuff like that. My fearlessness takes over. "I look at Devin Hester's (punt returns) a lot. He just did whatever he wanted when he got the ball. Just trying to take that and implement it into my game is something I want to do." Kyle Groeneweg's graduation left a punt-returning hole — but special teams coach LeVar Woods wouldn't have selected Smith-Marsette if there wasn't trust and reliability. Iowa learned last season how costly punt-return errors can be. Consider that another sign of Smith-Marsette's growth. "I want to be the best player I can be," Smith-Marsette said. "Day in and day out, I want to be one of the best players ever. That's just my mindset. Just looking back on it and reflecting, it was time to step it up." His quarterback sees the shift as well. "I don't think there's ever been a lack of physical effort from Ihmir. The biggest thing is him growing as a leader for the other guys," senior Nate Stanley said. "He's obviously a very impactful player, and no matter what his attitude is, it's going to be infectious to the team — whether it's good or bad. And he's done a great job at being a very positive leader for this team and the younger guys. "It's awesome, because that's when you have a really special team. When, not only are you playing your best football, but your teammates play their best as well." Nate Stanley has seen plenty of leadership growth in Ihmir Smith-Marsette. Dargan Southard, msouthard@gannett.com As with his hair, it took some time for Smith-Marsette to relinquish those juvenile tendencies. But he's all in now. His refined look mirrors his refurbished approach. "Every kid's got to grow up," Smith-Marsette said. "Time to lead."

Title: Stanley Passed the Test in an Emotional Kinnick Send-Off

Author: Darren Miller

Date: 11/23/19

IOWA CITY, Iowa -- It's impossible for University of Iowa senior quarterback Nate Stanley to take a trip down memory lane without becoming emotional.

Senior Days do that to players, especially following Senior Day wins.

Emotion isn't something you see a lot of out of Stanley, the 6-foot-4, 234-pound stoic perfectionist who his head coach Kirk Ferentz has jokingly repeated that he needs to loosen up a bit. On Saturday, after a 19-10 win over Illinois, and after playing his final game in Kinnick Stadium, Stanley didn't hold his emotions in check.

"When you invest so much time and effort...and reflect on this, these are some of the best memories I have ever had," said Stanley, tears filling his eyes. "It is something I will be chasing with future teams or future relationships. The bond we have is extremely special; we don't have much time left together, but we're going to make the most of it. When you look at the bigger picture and you look at it from hindsight, it is hard to keep your emotions in check."

Let it out, Nate, you've earned it.

With two games left in his college career, Stanley has already led the Hawkeyes to 25 wins, thrown for 7,990 yards, and completed 66 touchdowns.

In Stanley's final game at home, he was 18 of 35 through the air for 308 yards. It is his first 300-yard game this season and the first since he scorched Indiana for 320 yards and six touchdowns last October.

That is recent history. What does he remember about his first game in 2016?

"Don't fumble the snap," Stanley said.

He didn't. It was the season-opener against Miami (Ohio); Stanley was a true freshman and C.J. Beathard's protégé. Stanley entered the game with the Hawkeyes ahead, 38-21, with 5:06 remaining. On first-and-goal from Miami's 5-yard line, he rolled out on a naked bootleg with Miami's Brad Koenig closing hard.

"I had to throw it away," Stanley said of his first college pass attempt. "I ended up getting hit pretty good on the play, too."

He did orchestrate a scoring drive -- albeit only 18 yards -- and Iowa won the game, 45-21.

In game two, Stanley completed his first pass -- for 2 yards to Noah Fant -- during a 42-3 win over Iowa State.

"The thing that sticks out to me is my drop on that play," Stanley said. "It was supposed to be a three-set drop, but I kind of just backed out. I blanked on all the fundamentals of what we were supposed to do, but it was the first completion I had in college and that is one of the memories I will never forget."

Things got more interesting in his third game -- also at Kinnick Stadium. The stakes were higher when Beathard went to the sideline with an injury and Stanley entered a tie game in the third quarter against North Dakota State. Everyone in the stadium, and everyone on the Bison sideline, thought a handoff to Akrum Wadley or LeShun Daniels, Jr., was in the works.

"When I heard the play call we were going to run, I was like ohh, OK, let's just go do it," Stanley said. "It happened so fast, I didn't have time to be nervous or anxious, so I went out there and just played. That's when you play the best, when you go out and play and not worry about messing up."

Stanley completed a 37-yard pass to tight end George Kittle. Two plays later he completed a screen to Kittle for eight more yards. Beathard returned to finish the scoring drive, but it was at that moment when Hawkeye fans knew they had a keeper in the young quarterback with a powerful right arm from Menomonie, Wisconsin.

"He's a high-integrity guy with mental and physical toughness," Ferentz said. "All the things you hope to find in a football player, he has them."

On the opposing sideline Saturday was Illinois head coach Lovie Smith, who has seen his share of great quarterbacks while spending two decades coaching in the NFL. As a starting quarterback, Stanley finished his career 3-0 against the Illini, with wins of 45-16, 63-0, and 19-10. In those games, Stanley combined to throw for 733 yards and six touchdowns.

"Nate is a good football player: big, strong in the pocket," Smith said.

Then Smith paused and reflected on perhaps the play of the game. In the third quarter, Iowa faced second-and-9 from its 45 and Smith dialed up the perfect blitz.

"There is nothing you can do, sometimes they just have a better call," Stanley said.

But there was something Stanley could do. He somehow escaped the clutches of Illini linebacker Dele Harding, rolled to his left and threw a 40-yard completion to Ihmir Smith-Marsette. Iowa eventually kicked a field goal for a 16-7 lead.

"We had a great blitz on him," Smith continued. "It was a big play for him to be able to break that tackle. It's one thing to break a tackle, but then to throw a perfect pass -- good football player."

It was one of eight passes Stanley completed for 20-or-more yards.

"Every team has different scramble rules, but if you can win deep, you want the most yards you can get," Stanley said. "Ihmir felt he had his guy beat, so he took off, put his hand up, and was able to finish."

And the Hawkeyes were able to finish a season with a victory at home.

There is more. Not known as the most fleet of foot, Stanley set a career-high Saturday with 22 rushing yards on four attempts.

"We may even move him to running back this week," Ferentz joked. "He's our leading per-carry back today."

According to Smith, whenever a team plays Iowa, "it's about stopping the run, run, run."

On this day, Iowa's Senior Day, nothing could stop Stanley through the air.

"The last four years have been a great experience for me," Stanley said. "I made a lot of friends and had a lot of great experiences."

None of those experiences were more emotional for him than Saturday.

Let it out, Nate, you've earned it.

Title: In last-minute drive, Stanley, Hawkeyes thrive

Date: 11/29/2019

Author: Steve Batterson

LINCOLN, Neb. - - When it was "go" time, Nate Stanley was ready.

And, he wasn't alone when Nebraska punted the ball back into Iowa's hands with 32 seconds remaining in a game deadlocked at 24-24 Friday at Memorial Stadium.

The Hawkeyes' senior quarterback knew what he had to do.

"We were going for it, we were going to go win the game," Stanley said. "That's kind of been the attitude of these coaches and the team I think all this year, being a little more aggressive. We were going to try to go for the win."

The Hawkeyes accomplished that, marching 44 yards on six plays in 31 seconds to position Keith Duncan to hit his 48-yard game-winning field goal that not only gave Iowa a 27-24 victory, but also completed a 9-3 regular season.

It couldn't be easy, nothing seemingly has been for an Iowa team which has seen seven of its games decided by a touchdown or less this season.

"No matter what happens, you keep fighting," receiver Ihmir Smith-Marsette said.

Iowa had little choice.

Moving the ball against a Nebraska team fighting for its own postseason life was a struggle in the second and third quarters, when accumulating yards and first downs became a problem for Iowa.

The Hawkeyes mustered just 18 yards of the offense in the middle two quarters of the game, and after the Cornhuskers had tied the score, Stanley found himself in the medical tent after he got rolled up on at the end of a play.

He returned and Iowa fought on, only to deal with more obstacles on its game-winning drive.

A video review overturned a call on the field, determining that Nico Ragaini had not completed a catch before he rolled to the turf and negating a 38-yard gain on the first play of the drive.

"One of the things (quarterbacks coach Ken) O'Keefe always talks about is that we need to be ready to expect obstacles, just deal with it and move on," Stanley said. "Just keep working."

A second-down incompleteness left Iowa in a third-and-10 situation from its own 26, but Smith-Marsette wrapped his hands around a ball for a 22-yard gain to keep the drive alive.

Smith-Marsette weathered a hit on the play, and another review wiped away an initial call on the field of targeting on the play that would have moved Iowa to the Nebraska 37-yard.

No problem, the Hawkeyes showed same look on the next snap, Stanley chose a different option on the play and hit tight end Sam LaPorta over the middle for a 22-yard gain that left the Hawkeyes at Nebraska 29-yard line with just enough time for a spike and Duncan's game-winning field goal.

"We showed the same look. They were lined up a little bit to that side and left things open for Sam," Stanley said. "He did a good job. It was the same play call, just a different direction with the ball, and he was ready. That's what it takes."

That was exactly what defensive end A.J. Epenesa was hoping to see after recording the last of his game-high 14 tackles, an effort that included five tackles for a loss and two sacks, on the drive that gave Iowa one final offensive possession.

"It's on us as a defense, on our shoulders, to get the stop we need," Epenesa said. "It comes down to whether we let them score and win, or we stop them and win the game. That's our mentality. If we stop them, we are going to win. We have all the faith in our offense to do that, and they delivered."

Title: Tough, tested, together: Inside what makes Iowa's three-man kicking unit so successful

Author: Scott Dochterman

Date: October 22, 2019

IOWA CITY, Iowa – Keith Duncan fancies himself a golfer, and the Iowa kicker approaches his trade as a golfer swings off the tee.

A holder for field goals and extra points operates like a kicker's caddy, only with more participation and responsibility. That's where Colten Rastetter comes in for the Hawkeyes. So when they combine to drill the football through the uprights, they're going to celebrate with a little more enthusiasm than after sinking a birdie putt.

Duncan and Rastetter have found their own quirky way to ritualize the moment. Duncan throws his hands in the air as if he's shooting a jumper. Then he and Rastetter meet for a quick game of Rock, Paper, Scissors.

Shoot!

Often there's a momentary letdown for both athletes, like against Purdue on Saturday.

"We actually tied again, unfortunately," Duncan said. "I was coming out strong with scissors. So I game planned, watched some film, and I hit him with rock starting out. We went, I think, paper like three times after that. He got me once."

Through seven games, nobody in the FBS has attempted more field goals or made more of them than Duncan, so both players' fists and fingers are getting a post-kick workout this fall. Duncan has 17 field goals in 19 attempts and ranks 10th nationally in total points with 67. He is No. 2 in Big Ten scoring behind Wisconsin touchdown machine Jonathan Taylor.

Duncan, Rastetter and long snapper Jackson Subbert are as earnest and open as football players can be. After drilling four field goals in a 26-20 win against Purdue, Duncan was told he was the national leader in field goals. He smiled at the podium and replied, "Honestly, I didn't know that."

"I'm going to go out there and try to execute every single rep that I'm given," Duncan said. "My job isn't really kind of to keep stats or anything like that. I'm just focused on making the kick."

Special teams performers have their own peculiar ways of handling stressful situations, which is why the players around them enjoy their eccentric observance. But with Iowa's trio, there are callouses hardened by disappointment. None of them were scholarship players, and they still aren't. After a solid true freshman year, Duncan lost his job and redshirted for a season. Rastetter served as Iowa's punter the last two seasons, and the staff recruited a grad transfer to take his spot. Subbert didn't even see game action until his fourth year with the program.

"I feel like we have a mentally tough room," Iowa special teams coach LeVar Woods said.

No doubt about it.

Duncan's highs and lows

Duncan hails from Weddington, N.C., and he grew up working with Charlotte-area kicking expert Dan Orner. He went to camps throughout the country and hoped for a walk-on invitation from Purdue, which instead went to longtime friend J.D. Dellinger of Charlotte, N.C.

Iowa was interested in Duncan, however, and he moved to Iowa City in 2016. Embroiled in a competition to replace Marshall Koehn, Duncan emerged the winner that season. He connected on 9 of 11 field-goal attempts and 38 of 39 extra-points. In one of the biggest moments in Kinnick Stadium history, Duncan shocked No. 2-ranked Michigan 14-13 with a 33-yard field goal on the game's final play. To everyone outside the program, it appeared Duncan would become a four-year kicker at Iowa. Those prospects changed the next spring, however.

Duncan held the Iowa kicking job throughout his first year but didn't own it. The competition remained fierce that offseason and teammate Miguel Recinos outperformed Duncan in every environment. Nobody was named the kicker officially until the season opener, and it went to Recinos.

That fall, Duncan redshirted. He didn't see any action as a third-year player in 2018. His Iowa career floundered until last spring when he entered a full-fledged competition with fellow junior Caleb Shudak. It gave Duncan the chance to compete for the kicking job again. Reigniting his mental desire was as important as his physical approach to kicking.

"He almost kind of surrendered a couple years ago and not in a negative way," Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz said. "When he wasn't playing, he kind of leveled off there for a little bit."

Shudak and Duncan battled all spring, summer and in training camp. It wasn't until the season opener against Miami (Ohio) when the decision was reached. Shudak would kick off while Duncan would handle field goals and extra points. They would continue to compete in practice, but that was the starting point.

Duncan did his job that evening with five extra points and a 21-yard field goal in a 38-14 win.

"I feel very comfortable," Duncan said afterward. "Opportunity is a really big word here. Next man in is another key concept that we use. I'm so taking my opportunity."

"As far as (Duncan's) re-emergence, I think it's more that last year, it was Miguel had the job," Woods said, "and those guys every day still came in and competed and worked hard, and kind of put themselves in a good position for this current season."

Duncan's most important kicks this year came at Iowa State. Not only was it an intense rivalry game amid a wild atmosphere, but Duncan dealt with multiple weather elements. The game started in mid-afternoon sunshine and ended under the lights. It was delayed nearly three hours because of lightning and thunderstorms. The ground was damp at first, then thick with mud and water at other junctures.

“The field was very sloppy,” Duncan said. “The rain was awful. I think the field goal going into halftime was on the left hash. And right where I was going to kick the ball, there was a huge mud spot. And I was debating should we take a delay of game to scoot the ball back five yards to get in the spot where I preferred. But we ended up just kind of scooting over to the right a little bit and adjusting our protection based on that. So I shortened my approach.”

Duncan kicked four field goals to help beat the Cyclones 18-17. He knocked down one in every quarter, ranging in distance from 25 yards in the opening period to 42 in the third. He was successful from both hashmarks and the middle. He kicked into a swirling wind and on top of a changing surface.

But a successful kick never is just about the kicker. Many pre-snap discussions take place, especially when weather impacts an attempt. From the snap to the hold to the kick, every aspect is essential. The holder, perhaps, has the most difficult job of all.

Colten remains strong

Unlike Duncan, Colten Rastetter has a last name that precedes him everywhere he goes. In Iowa, Bruce Rastetter is the founder and CEO of Summit Agricultural Group, which has holdings and operations throughout the Americas. Bruce Rastetter served on the state of Board of Regents from 2011 through 2017 and as its president the final four years.

Politically, few people wield more influence in Iowa than Bruce Rastetter. He’s known as the Republican kingmaker with presidential candidates lobbying for his backing every four or eight years. He donated $5 million to help build the Iowa football operations building, which opened fully in early 2015.

Colten Rastetter is Bruce’s nephew. When Colten’s football career concludes this fall, he wants to get into farming. Not because of his uncle, but Colten enjoyed working on a family friend’s farm in northeast Iowa. He will need to rely on his experience, in part because the University of Iowa doesn’t have an agricultural program.

“I grew up milking dairy cows,” Colten said. “I like the agricultural aspect, but I want to be in back in the business side of things.”

The younger Rastetter walked on at Iowa in 2015 and redshirted. He learned how to hold for kicks, first with Koehn, then for Duncan, Recinos and Shudak. By 2017, Rastetter was the holder and punter and became a spotlight performer in Iowa’s array of fake special teams performances.

At Michigan State, Rastetter completed a 15-yard pass to defensive end A.J. Epenesa on a fake field goal. Five weeks later against Ohio State, Rastetter lobbed an 18-yard pass to long snapper Tyler Kluver that led to a touchdown. Rastetter also had a misguided rushing attempt during that game from a punt formation, running for seven yards and falling short of a first down deep in Iowa territory.

Last fall at Penn State, Rastetter finally pushed the Hawkeyes into the end zone with a 10-yard touchdown pass to defensive tackle Sam Brincks, which he calls his favorite play.

“When we ran it, I was like, ‘No way it’s going to work,’” Rastetter said. “I threw it up, and I didn’t see him catch it. I’m like, ‘Oh, he dropped it,’ and all the sudden, he stands up with it. I’m like, ‘Oh, crap. He caught it. Woo hoo!’ And then the next one would probably be Kluver — The Polecat — against Ohio State. That was a fun one, too.”

Those moments remain memorable, but Rastetter didn’t produce the same type of results in his full-time position of punter. He averaged 37.8 yards a punt in 2017 and 38.9 in 2018. The Hawkeyes needed more from that position and recruited graduate transfer Michael Sleep-Dalton from Arizona State.

Even for someone with a mentally tough makeup like Rastetter, moves like this can shake confidence. So he scheduled a meeting with UI sports psychologist Carmen Tebbe-Priebe.

“We kind of like assessed the situation like, ‘Hey, what can we do to help you benefit the team?’” Rastetter said. “Like the past couple years, I punted and now it’s just being a holder. I’m looking at it like ‘Hey, this is a big, big deal on a team. It’s going to help the team and is a big role.’”

Although Sleep-Dalton previously held on kick attempts at Arizona State, Woods had no intention of removing Rastetter from that spot.

“I have all the trust in the world in Colten as a holder,” Woods said. “I think both kickers, both Caleb and Keith, will tell you the same thing; that he does a really good job, and it makes them comfortable. Gives them the perfect spot to tilt the laces the way they want it, and Colten has been very good at that. That’s been his role this year and he’s done very, very well with it.”

In a snap

Perhaps even more invisible than the holder is the long snapper, unless he does something noticeable. Subbert was among the more highly sought-after long snappers while attending nearby Williamsburg (Iowa) High School. That didn’t translate into a scholarship, but Subbert joined the team as a preferred walk-on in 2015.

Subbert spent three years behind Kluver before taking over last fall. Like Rastetter, Subbert had his own taste of fake field-goal glory at Minnesota on a play nicknamed “Herky.” Six blockers shifted to Subbert’s right, and tight end T.J. Hockenson lined up nearest to Subbert about seven yards away. At the snap, Subbert fired the ball to Hockenson diagonally, but he had to ensure it was all one motion. Hockenson, now a tight end with the Detroit Lions, sprinted for the right pylon and scored on a 4-yard run.

“T.J. is such a great athlete, and we had such great linemen out there blocking in front of him,” Subbert said. “I had a pretty good feeling, like just give it to him and he’s going to make you look good.”

The unorthodox snap was perfect, which didn't go unnoticed. As for the rest of his snaps, Subbert remains almost in the shadows beyond those who know him best. For long snappers, that's beneficial.

"Jackson has come light years from last year as a snapper," Woods said. "Last year was his first time getting in games and (he) really started building as the season went on. I think he's improved drastically in both the punt game and field goal game."

Working together

The speed, efficiency and perfection to executing a kick is extraordinary. Iowa's operation time is 1.38 seconds from snap to kick. Subbert tries to snap the ball where the laces land at Rastetter's right hand at high noon on a clock.

It doesn't always work that way.

"This is kind of my fault most of the time, but I like to make his job a little bit harder sometimes if I don't snap him real great laces, and he has to turn it one way or the other," Subbert said.

"You have to get the ball placed and spun and then still have the right tilt. There's a lot to happen in about under 1.5 seconds. Sometimes I like to test him and make him turn out a little more than he should. But he still does a great job with it."

"Colten is awesome," Duncan said. "I don't have to worry about what the ball is going to look like. I have the ability to just go kick, and not worry about whether the laces are going to be to the right to the left or all over the place. That's kind of incredible if you think about it."

Rastetter has held for three different kickers, and each established his own routine. Recinos always asked for feedback regarding wind and placement. Any pre-kick conversation between Duncan and Rastetter is quick and direct, like a caddy with a golfer.

"I like to have the mindset that my swing is going to be like a Nike Swoosh," Duncan said. "So I go more out, and then I come up so I can come on the fat part of the ball and get the sweet spot. That's kind of how I think of it. I'm a big golfer. I play golf a lot, and it's very similar. An inch can make a huge difference in golf, and it also can in kicking."

All reassessments among the trio wait until they reach the sideline. If it's a miss, they re-evaluate and move forward. On the field, it's all business.

"He knows where he's going to aim at," Rastetter said. "If I start talking to him, I think that takes away from his mental approach. I stay away and be like, 'Hey, man, we got this and bang it through.' Then we're down to our little Rock, Paper, Scissors. And we're out."

Title: Lou Groza, Meet Keith Duncan

Date: 11/29/2019

Author: Darren Miller

LINCOLN, Neb. -- It was a dull, mind-numbing second half for University of Iowa kicker Keith Duncan. After scoring six points in the first half, his post-halftime workload presented no extra point opportunities and no field goal attempts.

For the first 29 minutes and 54 seconds anyway.

Then came the final six seconds of the Hy-Vee Heroes Game on Friday in Memorial Stadium. It would be hard for the Hawkeyes to top the ending to their 2018 win over the Cornhuskers, featuring a 41-yard game-winner by Miguel Recinos on an overcast, drizzly November afternoon in Kinnick Stadium.

But, as Iowa head coach Kirk Ferentz said, "the weather gets a little interesting in November." In the case of the Hy-Vee Heroes Game, so do the endings.

Iowa (9-3 overall, 6-3 Big Ten) built a 24-10 lead and overcame a field position disadvantage most of the second half while Nebraska (5-7, 3-6) tied the score. It looked like overtime was imminent when 32 seconds remained and the Hawkeyes were on their own 26-yard line. You've heard of a two-minute offense, but Iowa went into half-minute mode with a senior quarterback on the field and a Lou Groza Award finalist keeping a keen eye on field position.

Quarterback Nate Stanley connected with wide receiver Ihmir Smith-Marsette for 22 yards on third-and-10. He then found tight end Sam LaPorta down the middle for 22 more yards. Stanley spiked the ball at Nebraska's 30 to stop the clock at 0:06. Duncan trotted onto the field and prepared for a 48-yard, potentially game-winning, field goal (his career long is 49 yards, that he matched in the first half).

Lou "the Toe" Groza, meet Keith "the Cool" Duncan.

Nebraska head coach Scott Frost called timeout. Then he called his third and final timeout, moments before the trio of Iowa long-snapper Jackson Subbert, holder Colten Rastetter, and Duncan were successful on a soon-to-be waved-off field goal.

"I'm so glad (Frost) called the timeouts, it allowed me to get my mind set on what I needed to focus on," Duncan said.

Rastetter has adjusted to differences between Recinos and Duncan. Recinos didn't mind a little pre-kick conversation; not so for Duncan.

"I didn't talk to him the whole time," Rastetter said. "Keith stays to himself and I stayed to myself, keeping my hands in my hand warmer. I knew the ball would be slippery, I knew it was going to be windy, so I stayed to myself and the rest is history."

It's a good thing Rastetter kept his distance. Duncan was in no mood for a friendly game of rock, paper, and scissors....or any kind of dialogue.

"That's me time," Duncan said. "I told Colton if he says something to me, I'm going to bop him on the head and tell him to get out of here. That's my time to be in my zone, relax, and then it's another kick to execute."

Was it really as simple as "another kick to execute?" Sure, the Hawkeyes are well-schooled doing situation drills. On Thursdays of game week, they walk through a kick session and, of course, there is practice in camp and during the season. But nothing can simulate a game-winner on a misty day with wind swirling in a stadium filled with 90,000 fans.

Title: Wirfs utilizes wrestling background in football career

Author: Anna Kayser

Date: October 18, 2019

At the top of the 2017 heavyweight WaMaC Conference wrestling podium stood Aaron Costello, a wrestler who would go on to win the Class 3A state title and redshirt at Iowa later that year. Beside him, one peg lower but nevertheless towering over him, stood another Iowa commit, one that would claim his own state title that year in Class 2A. To get there, though, was a success story in itself.

As Tristan Wirfs walked out in front of the Mount Vernon crowd as part of the 2016 homecoming court, his bio of many sports accolades was read over the loudspeaker.

"Three years of wrestling," the PA announcer said.

After months of hearing rumors around town and never giving up hope, Aaron Truitt, Mount Vernon's assistant wrestling coach and longtime teacher, coach, and mentor to Wirfs, went to confront him.

"Hey Tristan, they messed up your bio," he recalled saying.

Wirfs laughed it off, but Truitt was serious. He made him a deal: finish out football season, and after it was over, they would sit down to talk about Wirfs' future on the mat.

Wirfs was hesitant to wrestle from his freshman year. Mount Vernon needed a heavyweight, and Wirfs, being a big guy, was the ideal candidate. But he didn't want to be shoved into the role.

So, Truitt and the rest of the coaching staff made him a deal, their first of his career. He would wrestle varsity in dual meets, and in weekend tournaments, he would have his pick between the JV and varsity squads.

It didn't take long for Wirfs to stick with the big guys, but that freshman year proved to be a tough one. He went 10-27 at the varsity level.

"You can't judge the experience off of your freshman season," Truitt recalled telling Wirfs. "You have to wait until February 2017 when you're a senior, the final chapter is written."

In his junior year, he was one spot from standing on the podium at state, and that could have been it. Instead, Wirfs came on a visit to Iowa and talked to Landan and Levi Paulsen, two more of Iowa's many offensive linemen that had wrestling success in high school.

"I've grown up knowing them through wrestling, so it's really exciting seeing that whole offense and defense just evolve, and that wrestling's kind of at the core of some of the talents that they have," Costello said.

After visiting Iowa, Wirfs made his decision.

He wrote Truitt a letter and sent it before Mount Vernon's annual fall chili cook-off that year.

"He basically said, 'Hey, you told me three years ago when I was a freshman that February 2017 is when I'll write the final chapter of my wrestling career. I'm going to see it through,'" Truitt recalled.

The importance of what he could accomplish wasn't lost on Wirfs.

“And I think I said, ‘I want my name up on the wall’ in the wrestling room,” Wirfs said. “That’s where our state champs are; they’re painted on the wall. So, it [was] kind of just me telling them I’m holding up my end of the bargain.”

The first step was done. Wirfs then had to lose the weight he had put on for football and would eventually need the next fall at Iowa.

At the end of football season, he weighed 325 pounds, 40 pounds over the heavyweight limit. He made the cut in four-to-five weeks, but his commitment to wrestling showed the most after the U.S. Army All-American Bowl Game, which Wirfs was selected to play in.

After taking a few days off for school and recovery, Wirfs got back into the wrestling room and Truitt asked how much time he would need to get back down to weight.

“Who do we wrestle tomorrow? Do they have heavyweights?” Truitt recalled Wirfs asking.

“Yeah,” Truitt said back.

“Well, I’ll make it tomorrow then,” Wirfs replied.

From spending the night at his head coach’s house the first time he was cutting weight to help fight the temptation of getting up in the middle of the night to eat, to being all-in committed to helping the wrestling program succeed no matter what the personal cost, Wirfs’ work ethic has transferred from the wrestling mat to the football field with ease.

On Aug. 31, Iowa’s first football game of the season, offensive tackle Alaric Jackson went down with an injury. Wirfs moved from right tackle to the left side of the offensive line, something that he didn’t do much of in practice.

It worked out for the Hawkeyes, however, and they downed Miami (Ohio) 38-14 while the makeshift offensive line helped the running game to 213 yards and left Nate Stanley unprotected for a sack only once.

“[Wirfs] did a good job sliding in and then Levi [Paulsen] slid out to the tackle position and didn’t seem to be affected, either,” head coach Kirk Ferentz said. “That’s one benefit of having guys that have played. But not every player is capable of doing that, too. I’ll qualify it by saying that.”

Paired with Wirfs on the offensive line this year is center Tyler Linderbaum, who also stood on the same WaMaC conference podium as Wirfs and Costello after finishing third.

“It’s kind of a cool thing, just seeing three guys that you know coming into the Big Ten, living out their dreams of playing sports and all that,” Linderbaum said.

Linderbaum pinned Wirfs in his last meet before state, and that was the moment Wirfs’ mindset and the way he wrestled changed. After talking to Truitt and the other coaches, he started pushing the envelope in his matches and being more aggressive for a full seven minutes.

Wirfs beat his first two opponents in the state tournament in wide margins for heavyweight standards, but the night before the finals match, he came down with the flu.

“I woke up, and I took a lot of ibuprofen,” Wirfs said. “I was drinking like a bottle of honey because I had a sore throat. Then, I went out there and I think my adrenaline kicked in there before the match.”

Wirfs wrestled the opponent he lost to in his final match during his senior year, giving him a chance to show how far he had come.

“Even though it was a close match on the scoreboard, Tristan was in control pretty much the whole match and ended up getting a takedown with about a minute left, so I think 3-2 was the final score,” Truitt said. “It was an awesome ending, a storybook ending, and in my career, that’s definitely one of the highs.”

That wasn’t the last time Wirfs made a mark on Mount Vernon athletics. As a four-year letterwinner on the track team, he was the fourth Iowa male prep to win both the shot put and discus titles in back-to-back years and the first to win three-straight discus titles since the 1950s. His career-best throw of 66-3 1/4 in the shot put ranked sixth-best nationally and second-best all-time in the state of Iowa.

Being an all-around athlete has propelled Wirfs into his success on the football field thus far, helping him to a starting role in the final eight games of his freshman year and every game since.

“From track, it’s just explosiveness; you’ve got to be quick and explosive through the ranks,” Wirfs said. “And wrestling, people ask that a lot. I think the biggest thing is body control. It’s just being able to tell where you’re able to flip your hips and stuff like that, that kind of translates to football, so if you get in a weird position on a block to be able to stay on your feet.”

DI: What's the hardest part about playing offensive line?

Jackson: Just the calls pretty much. You're going against great guys every day pretty much.

DI: What's the best part?

Jackson: Just having fun with my teammates pretty much. Going out there playing with those guys.

DI: What's your favorite alternate uniform that you've worn?

Jackson: It would have to be Ohio State. We blew Ohio State out, we looked good, played good.

Title: Inside Linderbaum's transition, and how Iowa's new center has 'picked it up so fast'

Author: Dargan Southard

Date: 8/11/2019

As the mid-afternoon sun pelts the practice turf behind him, Tim Polasek recounts the feeling he got throughout this particular recruiting process. It doesn't arrive with every kid — only the elites — but Iowa's offensive line coach knew this one was real. Thing is, this wasn't even Polasek's guy. Reese Morgan naturally led the recruiting charge on Tyler Linderbaum, a Hawkeye-lifer defensive tackle prospect from the next town over. It was from the background that Polasek felt this attractive energy. "I always felt a sense of, 'I like being around this guy. Man, I wish all of the recruits were like this guy,'" Polasek recalled Friday at the Hawkeyes' media day. "I always sensed that — not necessarily that I would coach him — but hey, maybe I can impact this kid's life. 'I knew he was going to impact mine.'" Call it a prophetic pairing, if you will, or maybe a preordained one. Either way, Polasek and Linderbaum have found each other after a circuitous freshman season. The 255-pound sack-chasing Solon Spartan is now a robust center pushing three bills — and a vital cog on Iowa's starting offensive line. Up front is a blend of heralded tackles and unproven guards, with Linderbaum planted in the middle. He's quickly growing accustomed to his new home. "Having him over on our side is pretty fun," said right tackle Tristan Wirfs, the Mount Vernon product who's plenty familiar with Linderbaum, going back to their prep days. "Tyler's like a little pitbull — he just goes and goes. He's picked it up so fast, how our offense works and everything. Especially at center, too — that's probably the hardest position (on the offensive line) to come to." Bottom of Form first hurdle in jumping lines was combating disappointment. Although Linderbaum had minimal action as a true freshman — two appearances with no statistics — defensive tackle had always been his spot. It's from where he punished prep offensive lines as a Solon standout en route to U.S. Army All-American honors in 2017. It's where he spent all of 2018 working, slowly building toward loftier responsibilities. Depth-chart leaders Cedrick Lattimore and Brady Reiff would graduate after 2019. Opportunity to pounce existed in Linderbaum's upperclassmen years. Shortly after Iowa's win over Nebraska to end the regular season, everything shifted. "We got a break for two or three days, and I got called into coach (Kirk) Ferentz's office to talk to him the day we got back," Linderbaum said. "He said we're going to make the transition to center. And the next day, I took snaps at center with one of the quarterbacks. "It kind of bummed me out at first — just because I spent the whole year working with the defense, traveling and being around the older guys. There were a lot of different things running through my mind." It's only natural for a position change to result in self-questioning — am I'm being moved for a better fit at my new spot, or because I can't cut it at the old one? Negativity might've come first, but that initial attitude Polasek observed soon prevailed. Linderbaum knew he had to trust the man up top with solid credentials. Embracing the move became the lone option. "At the end of the day, I had to look at it as, 'This is what coach Ferentz wanted me to do. He's been around (Iowa) for 20 years, and I'm going to take this role and attack it,'" Linderbaum said. "Ever since that day he told me, I've just been working on snapping and working on the playbook." Bowl prep learning under outgoing center Keegan Render catapulted Linderbaum into a solid spring. From there, the progression has been steady toward the starting job. Ferentz hasn't deployed a starting freshman center since Rafael Eubanks in 2006, but all indications are Linderbaum will become the next. Polasek has thrown task after task at Linderbaum, who's conquered most of them with an eagerness to learn. The veteran offensive line coach is quick to refrain from calling the redshirt freshman a polished product, but Polasek's mental comp for Linderbaum exudes confidence. "I gave him some things to do on his own — he banged them out. The last guy who responded with a self project like that was Carson Wentz," said Polasek, who coached the Philadelphia Eagles quarterback during his time as North Dakota State's offensive coordinator. "I think that speaks to Tyler Linderbaum. Not comparing him to Carson, but character wise, holy smokes, he just went and knocked out assignments. This guy wants information. This is going to be fine." That wasn't the only high-profile professional athlete mentioned alongside Linderbaum during media day. For a player who stayed reserved throughout numerous high-school interviews, Linderbaum has gravitated toward assertiveness behind the scenes. It's needed even more now as the up-front voice. "He's pretty talkative in the room. I think he's like Kawhi Leonard almost," said Wirfs, referring to the NBA star known for his bland outward demeanor and competitive fire away from the cameras. "With us he's all jokes and everything, but when he gets out here (in front of the media), it's something else." Center isn't a position where coaches want any shuffling. A consistent, steady season would do wonders for 2019 and beyond. With less than three weeks until his first collegiate snap, the Linderbaum renovation project appears right on schedule.

"That's just who he is," Jackson said. "He's just a leader off natural basis." Polasek saw that early with Linderbaum, even from the other side. Now, everyone sees it too.

Title: Like their classmates, Paulsens live the dream

Author: Steve Batterson

Date: 11/21/19

IOWA CITY - - Back in elementary school, Landan and Levi Paulsen shared dreams and handed out water bottles to their high school heroes during Friday night games at Woodbury Central High School.

The twin sons of Dan and Michelle Paulsen grew to become high school heroes, taking water bottles from youngsters who this year led their high school football team in Merville, Iowa, to its first appearance in an Iowa state semifinal playoff game since 1980.

"Those little kids, they've grown and created their own legacy and memories, just like we were able to do by following our dreams," said Landan Paulsen, who now joins his brother in preparing for their final home games in an Iowa uniform.

"It goes by so fast and every little detail may not play out the way you envision, but all of the hours, all of the work, I wouldn't trade it for anything."

Landan and Levi Paulsen are like many of the 19 seniors who will be honored before 19th-ranked Iowa's 11 a.m. game Saturday' against Illinois.

They'll take the field at Kinnick Stadium one final time, greeted at midfield by their parents and posing for quick photos prior to getting back to the day's work and dealing with a Fighting Illini team that brings a four-game win streak into the match-up.

Landan Paulsen is expected to start left guard for the Hawkeyes, the 10th start of his career, while Levi Paulsen, a starter in six games over the past four seasons for Iowa, is listed as the Hawkeyes' back-up at right tackle and will continue to provide leadership that has led this year's team to a 7-3 start. They've shared careers similar, in many respects, to those of their classmates.

Only three seniors — quarterback Nate Stanley, linebacker Kristian Welch and cornerback Michael Ojemudia — have started more than 10 games on offense or defense during their college careers for the Hawkeyes.

This year's senior class consists of a number of players who've carved out their own niche, filling needed roles that have helped the Hawkeyes in their own way.

"There have been some ups, some downs, in the lineup, out of the lineup, but you know what, I wouldn't trade it for the world," Levi Paulsen said. "The experiences I've had, the chances to grow as a player and a person, it's been everything I've wanted it to be."

From the consistent long snaps of Jackson Subbert to the special teams contributions of Amani Jones and Devonte Young, members of the Hawkeye senior class have created their own legacy of success.

They have contributed to Iowa collecting 32 wins since the start of the 2016 season and will be playing for their 20th victory in 28 home games on Saturday.

With three games to play before their resume is complete, they've built a 19-15 record against Big Ten competition, are 13-5 in trophy games and 2-1 in bowl games.

Levi Paulsen has enjoyed every opportunity he has had to "get in there and knock heads," but he will take even more from his Hawkeye experience.

"To be there and help the younger guys, to support them when things aren't going so well and to help grow and understand what it takes to play at this level — to help them the way other guys helped us — that means so much to me," Levi Paulsen said. "It's not always about how many games you start or what your stats are. There's more to it."

That's what led Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz on a recruiting adventure to Merville, Iowa, population 1,618 and tucked along U.S. Highway 20 a little more than a dozen miles east of Sioux City.

"Quite a breakfast, as you might imagine," Ferentz said, adding that the Paulsen twins had more on their plate than just a hearty Midwestern breakfast as they were being recruited by the Hawkeyes.

Ferentz recalled this week a phone conversation he had with the Paulsens during the recruiting process.

"It was on a Thursday night around like 5:30, 6 o'clock and they were working the popcorn stand at I believe a volleyball game at their high school. The girls were playing volleyball, those guys are working the popcorn stand and telling me they had band practice the next morning at 6," Ferentz said.

"I was just chuckling. Those guys are beautiful, they do everything in that school. Then you go in the school and you see how people feel about them and how they're respected as young people, and then the home visit. It was just a totally delightful day, a lot of fun and a lot of good food. ... To me, small-town Iowa is about as good as it gets."

It proved to be the perfect place for Landan and Levi Paulsen to cultivate their dreams.

They had space to grow, becoming more than just football players.

"Where we have come from will always be a part of who we are," Landan Paulsen said. "It gave us the opportunity to be in the position we are in right now."

Both Paulsens expect Saturday to be filled with emotions.

Both guarantee that their mother will greet them on the field with tear-filled eyes.

Their father, they say, more likely will offer a slap on the back and bring a "go get 'em" approach to things.

"When it's over, there's still a game to play," Levi Paulsen said. "And knowing that it will be the last time that you get the chance to play at Kinnick, to be part of the swarm, you want to give it your best."

That best may take on a number of different looks.

From the chance to "knock heads" to an opportunity to rally and root on teammates from the sideline, there is a difference-making role to be filled.

"Game day in Iowa City, it's the best, everything that I hoped it would be," Landan Paulsen said. "I'm looking forward to being part of it, one last time."

Title: Ragaini gains Confidence on the Big Stage

Author: Darren Miller

Date: September, 2019

AMES, Iowa -- Nico Ragaini is used to playing football on Saturdays. That's when games were scheduled at Avon Old Farms Prep in Connecticut.

What he wasn't used to was playing in front of 60,000 people and in front of a national television audience.

After three games, Ragaini has adjusted well.

"I'm getting more confident and comfortable in front of so many people," said Ragaini, a University of Iowa redshirt freshman wide receiver. "Coming out of high school and in prep school, I played in front of like 100 people, then you come to a game like this, what is it? 60,000 or something crazy?"

Ragaini admitted that playing in front of 100 in prep school was an understatement, but still, it was nothing compared to the attendance figures of 69,250, 61,808, and 61,500 during Iowa's 3-0 start with wins over Miami (Ohio), Rutgers, and Iowa State.

A 6-foot, 192-pounder from East Haven, Connecticut, Ragaini was Iowa's top receiving target Sept. 14 as the Hawkeyes defeated Iowa State, 18-17, in the Iowa Corn Cy-Hawk Series.

Ragaini caught a season-high five passes for 43 yards with a long of 18. All of his receptions came in the first half.

"Nico is one of those guys who has really improved over the last year and a half," Iowa head coach Kirk Ferentz said. "(As coaches) we get to watch practice and see if they are growing and coming along, and Nico is playing well. I'm not surprised -- none of us are -- based on what we see on a daily basis."

For the season, Ragaini is tied for second on the team with nine receptions. He has returned five punts for an average of 8.4 yards per return; his most important to date was a 15-yard return at the end of the third quarter at Iowa State with the Cyclones leading, 14-9. Ragaini fielded a 34-yard punt from Joe Rivera at Iowa State's 40 and used a nice block from Geno Stone to take the ball to the 25. Seven plays later, quarterback Nate Stanley scored on a 1-yard sneak, putting the Hawkeyes ahead.

"Real big. It's a world of difference getting that field position," Ferentz said. "If you get that kind of field position, you're going to score points. To add an extra 15 yards on it made it pretty good for us."

Ragaini praised the other 10 on the return team, including Stone and Terry Roberts, who was hit hard near Iowa's sideline during the return.

"It was a nice, short kick, which I like," Ragaini said. "It wasn't up in the air for me to get killed. I caught it and everybody did a great job blocking -- I had a seam to the outside, Geno was in front of me and got a quick block, which makes me comfortable back there."

Becoming comfortable on a big stage is where Ragaini has seen his most growth. Even though he saw action in three games as a true freshman in 2018, Ragaini said he had butterflies in his stomach for the duration of Iowa's 38-14 win over Miami (Ohio) on Aug. 31. He felt calm on the road at Ames, and his statistics showed.

"Now I want to keep growing, getting more comfortable and confident," Ragaini said. "I want to keep moving forward and pushing forward as a team. We got these first three wins, we have the bye week now, and we have to get better this week and be ready for Middle Tennessee."

Iowa hosts Middle Tennessee State on Sept. 28 with kickoff set for 11 a.m. (CT). The game will be broadcast on ESPN2.

Kinnick Stadium holds 69,250, but large crowd size is not an issue for Ragaini.

Title: Iowa football's Goodson shining bright in ground attack

Author: Pete Ruden

Date: October 29, 2019

Iowa can only be partly happy with its run game right now.

The Hawkeyes are averaging 3.9 yards per carry, which ranks 10th in the Big Ten — one spot ahead of Rutgers.

But some of that can be attributed to the sacks Nate Stanley has suffered. Including sacks, Stanley has carried the ball 48 times for -18 yards.

Each of Iowa's three main running backs — Mekhi Sargent, Tyler Goodson, and Toren Young — average at least 4.5 yards per carry.

But it's been Goodson, the true freshman from Suwanee, Georgia, who has stuck out the most as the biggest surprise.

"The kid's hungry, and I mean that because he's willing to learn," Iowa running backs' coach Derrick Foster said. "I think Tyler responds to coaching... I think he accepts that accountability and takes ownership in that."

Goodson has racked up 316 yards and a touchdown on 64 carries. He also leads running backs with 19 receptions.

Against Northwestern on Oct. 26, Goodson recorded one carry for two yards in the first half, as the Hawkeyes carried a mostly dormant ground attack into the break.

Then, on Iowa's first drive of the third quarter, Goodson broke loose for 48 yards on eight carries to open the door for six points.

It's been a long time coming for Goodson to receive more reps on Saturdays, but it seems as if that time may be coming.

"It takes time for a young player to become comfortable, and as a coach, it's about that trust factor," Foster said. "Once you're able to break through that trust factor with the coaches — with coach [Kirk] Ferentz, with Brian [Ferentz], or the position coach — I think at any point in time, you're not afraid to put any player in any situation.

"I think he's earned that trust. He's earned the right to be on the football field, and I think everybody feels the same way."

Martin watch

In Oliver Martin's first game donning the Black and Gold in Kinnick Stadium, he caught a touchdown on his first reception.

Since that first game against Miami (Ohio) — he finished with two receptions for 14 yards — he's hauled in three passes for 14 yards.

Martin hasn't caught a pass since Iowa beat Middle Tennessee 48-3 on Sept. 28.

Wide receivers' coach Kelton Copeland acknowledged the opportunity for Martin to earn more playing time in the absence of Brandon Smith but noted the difficulty of learning what's expected after transferring from a different school.

"Everybody wants Oliver to play right now, and it's kind of unfair," Copeland said. "It takes a lot for any young man, whether it's coming out of high school or coming from another four-year institution. It takes a lot to learn what's being asked from them on a day-to-day basis. We hold these guys accountable to a very high standard."

Evans making impact on D-line

Iowa defensive line coach Kelvin Bell knew it would happen.

He said he told redshirt freshman defensive end Joe Evans — who joined the Hawkeye program as a linebacker in 2018 — that he would record a sack against Northwestern.

He was right.

Evans finished the game with two tackles and 1.5 sacks, as the Hawkeye defense shut out its second Big Ten opponent of the season.

After moving to the defensive line room in the spring, Evans has found a way to make an impact for Iowa's defense.

"We just kept getting him reps, letting him keep getting his feet wet," Bell said. "You're looking for a spark and a change in production. I felt comfortable just putting him in the game in that role. 'Hey, you go in, and you rush the quarterback.'"

Title: Smith Wanted It More

Author: Darren Miller

Date: October 12, 2019

IOWA CITY, Iowa -- One of Brandon Smith's favorite things to do in practice are one-on-one drills against defensive backs. Makes sense when you're 6-foot, 2-inches and weigh 218 pounds.

"It's about who wants the ball more," said Smith, a University of Iowa junior wide receiver from Lake Cormorant, Mississippi. "Who wants to make the play more?"

Smith turned in the highlight reel play of the game Saturday on quarterback Nate Stanley's 43rd and final pass attempt. On first-and-10 from Penn State's 33-yard line, Smith ran an up route with Penn State's John Reid defending. The ball was a bit inside, so Smith jumped at the 6 and got both hands on the ball near Reid's left shoulder. Smith secured the ball and rolled over Reid's back and into the end zone for a touchdown.

It was the seventh reception of the game for Smith, who finished with a game-high 86 receiving yards.

"When the ball is in the air, I want to be the guy that comes down with it," Smith said. "I will do everything I can to go get it."

He did his part on this play, flipping in the end zone for Iowa's first touchdown in eight quarters.

"I knew it was critical for us to get into the end zone," Smith said. "I was glad I was able to get a touchdown and give us a chance to win the game."

Despite the Stanley-to-Smith touchdown, No. 10 Penn State improved to 6-0 overall, 3-0 in the Big Ten with a 17-12 win over No. 17 Iowa (4-2, 1-2). The Hawkeyes' 286 passing yards are a season high and it comes against a defense that ranks second in the Big Ten in scoring defense (8.2 points per game) and third in total defense (259.7 yards per game).

Smith set career-highs in receptions and receiving yards in a game.

"We have to make some tough plays," Iowa head coach Kirk Ferentz said. "Brandon made a beautiful play at the end. Things like that are going to help the cause a little bit, too. A group effort."

Depth at receiver continued to show Saturday with Smith and freshman Nico Ragaini hauling in seven passes apiece, and junior Ihmir Smith-Marsette with five. After six games, all three share the team lead with 24 receptions. Smith has a team-high four receiving touchdowns.

"When our number is called, make the play and take advantage of matchups," Smith said.

Iowa remains home Oct. 19 for Homecoming against Purdue (2-4, 1-2). Kickoff is set for 11 a.m. (CT). The Boilermakers are 13th (out of 14) in the Big Ten in passing defense, allowing 278 yards a game. That could mean more Stanley-to-Smith highlights.

"Our mindset is to get the first down, the next first down, the next first down, and sooner or later a touchdown will come," Smith said.

Title: Football Freshman Spotlight: Sam LaPorta

Author: Darren Miller

Date: October 10, 2019

IOWA CITY, Iowa -- Catching passes was never an issue for Sam LaPorta. He had 68 receptions for 1,457 yards and 19 touchdowns as a senior at Highland (Illinois) High School.

Blocking was another story. It's not that he didn't like doing it, but in high school, he wasn't asked to do it a lot.

"I didn't have my hand on the ground as much in high school because my role on the team was to catch the ball more," said LaPorta, a University of Iowa freshman tight end. "Now my role is to stick my hand on the ground and do a lot of blocking, so that is fine with me."

Recruiting any high school athlete can be a projection or leap of faith. But Iowa head coach Kirk Ferentz wasn't worried about teaching a high school wide receiver (Iowa would call the position flex tight end) how to block.

"Blocking is more wanting to do it," Ferentz said. "Guys that have that willingness, it may take them time because it is new to them, but usually they get the hang of it."

LaPorta is getting the hang of it. The 6-foot, 4-inch, 242-pounder played in the first four games of the season for the No. 17/18 Hawkeyes, who will be in action in prime time Saturday against No. 9/10 Penn State.

On his recruiting visit to Iowa, LaPorta was hosted by John Mackey Award-winning tight end T.J. Hockenson, who became the eighth selection in the 2019 NFL Draft by the Detroit Lions.

"It was pretty cool to experience that," LaPorta said. "He is a good guy."

Twelve draft picks after Hockenson, another Iowa tight end, Noah Fant, went to the Denver Broncos.

"I loved the coaching staff here and the way they were developing tight ends," LaPorta said. "I know the program has been great over the last 20 years under coach Ferentz, and that sealed the deal for me."

While LaPorta was impressed by the way the Hawkeyes developed tight ends, Ferentz was impressed by LaPorta's versatility.

"The other big part of the evaluation is that Sam was a good basketball player," Ferentz said. "You watch guys play basketball and see how they compete and you get to see their athleticism and ball skills."

Like all freshmen, most of fall camp and the first third of the season have been spent learning. He is one of three freshman tight ends in a room that also includes seniors Drew Cook and Nate Wieting, and junior Shaun Beyer.

"You always want to get the best experience from guys, and if there are older guys to help you along the way, that is the best opportunity for you," LaPorta said. "Nate, Drew, and Shaun are doing a good job helping me."

LaPorta has been on a quicker learning curve because of the loss of Fant and Hockenson to the pros.

"He has done a good job since the start of August preseason practice," Ferentz said. "He is not there yet, but he is improving every week and we're giving him a lot of work in practice right now."

"We still have most of our schedule in front of us, so I think there will be plenty of opportunity for him to get work and reps. Every rep he gets in practice is building to get him more ready."

Penn State and Iowa kick off at 6:44 p.m. (CT) on Saturday. The game is televised by ABC with Sean McDonough and Todd Blackledge on the call.

Title: Super Effort by Iowa's Tyrone Tracy, Jr.

Author: Darren Miller

Date: October 27, 2019

EVANSTON, Ill. -- Even Superman would have difficulty getting out of this conundrum.

After catching the football on a 13-yard curl pattern, University of Iowa redshirt freshman wide receiver Tyrone Tracy, Jr., was surrounded by six Northwestern defenders, four with a legitimate opportunity to plant him into the Ryan Field turf. He was 37 yards from the end zone.

Instead of simply picking up a first down on third-and-10, the 5-foot-11, 200-pound Tracy spun out of a would-be tackle from Trae Williams and headed toward the Iowa sideline for more yardage. He noticed fellow receivers Nico Ragaini and Ihmir Smith-Marsette and used their blocks to sprint for his second career touchdown.

The first-quarter effort put the Hawkeyes on the board, 7-0, in a game they won, 20-0. As quick as Tracy found the end zone, he was equally quick in sharing praise.

"That route is basically a timing play," said Tracy, a native of Indianapolis. "When I stopped, the ball should be coming and it was. Everybody did their job -- when I stopped the ball was already there, so all I had to do was catch it, turn up field, make a couple people miss, the two blockers did their thing, and I scored."

Easier said than done.

Wide receivers caught eight of the 12 completions from quarterback Nate Stanley on Oct. 26 during the victory at Northwestern. That was welcomed production since leading receiver Brandon Smith (33 catches, 407 yards, four touchdowns) missed the game and will miss a couple more because of a lower leg injury. For Tracy, it was his third start of the season, his first at Smith's X position. Smith, by the way, is three inches taller and weighs 20 more pounds than Tracy.

"Tyrone took advantage of his opportunity to get more snaps and did a good job, made big plays, and did a lot of good things -- blocking on top of that," Iowa head coach Kirk Ferentz said. "In my mind, he learned how to play football. He has gotten better. The idea is for guys to keep pushing."

Tracy contributed a key block in the third quarter that kept a scoring drive alive. On fourth-and-8 from the Northwestern 30, Stanley found tight end Shaun Beyer at the Northwestern 29.

Beyer still needed seven yards to move the chains, so he headed toward the sideline with Wildcats in pursuit. Tracy clipped Northwestern cornerback Cam Ruiz, allowing Beyer to gain 11 yards. The Hawkeyes scored their second touchdown four plays later.

"I knew the ball wasn't going to me, my route was a decoy, but I saw Shaun Beyer get the ball and I knew he didn't have a first down," Tracy said. "I saw three people coming for him and one-on-three isn't a good situation, so I threw my body in there and he got the first down."

Tracy's final reception at Northwestern came in the fourth quarter off play action for 38 yards and set up a 28-yard field goal by Keith Duncan.

"It was a Z-in, post corner and Nate put it on the money again," Tracy said. "I tried to score, but I couldn't keep my feet in (bounds)."

Tracy played four games last season as a true freshman, making one catch for 22 yards from Peyton Mansell against Northern Iowa. This season, he has 17 catches for 306 yards and two touchdowns. Seven days after the fact, Tracy was still thinking about nearly scoring against Purdue (his 21-yard reception placed the ball at the Boilermaker 1). But he jokingly said it was a humanitarian effort to get true freshman running back Tyler Goodson his first collegiate touchdown.

"Last week I should have scored, but I let my man T-Good get his first touchdown, so that is always a good thing," Tracy said with a smile.

He went on to say the first-quarter touchdown at Northwestern calmed him for the rest of the game. Also having a calming effect was a conversation Tracy had with Smith during the week.

"Brandon Smith does a lot for our team and I know it is hard to fill his shoes," Tracy said. "He told me to do me: just do what I'm capable of, not try to be Superman, and I will have a good game."

"That's what I did; I went out there and was Tyrone Tracy."

On at least one play, Tracy looked as if he was wearing a red cape with a large letter S on his chest.

Title: 'Sweet Feet' showed out: How Tyrone Tracy lived up to his moniker when Iowa needed him most

Author: Scott Dochterman

Date: 10/28/2019

EVANSTON, Ill. - - Iowa redshirt freshman receiver Tyrone Tracy tried to give himself the moniker "Sweet Feet" during spring practice, and his older teammates rebelled.

"I tried to tell him, 'You can't give your own self a nickname,'" junior receiver Brandon Smith said.

A few weeks ago, Smith conceded the nickname after Tracy flashed with multiple big plays against Middle Tennessee. After Smith went down with a lower-leg injury against Purdue that required a medical procedure this week, Tracy had to elevate his game beyond a nifty label.

Tracy stepped in for Smith as Iowa's split end and produced Saturday like an elite receiver. He caught two passes for 88 yards and a touchdown in a 20-0 win for No. 19 Iowa (6-2, 3-2) at Northwestern. Tracy also provided multiple key blocks on critical possessions.

"A very good game for him," Iowa quarterback Nate Stanley said. "I don't think it's anything new from his game. I think he's just kind of a natural out there on the field. He's made plays for us all year."

Midway through the first quarter, Iowa faced third-and-10 from the 50-yard line. Tracy ran a 13-yard curl route and hauled in Stanley's strike. Initially, it appeared that Tracy would go down when Northwestern defensive back Trae Williams grabbed him around the waist at the 36-yard line. Three other Wildcats converged around Tracy, but the receiver spun off Williams and ran to his left. Other receivers Ihmir Smith-Marsette and Nico Ragaini then led Tracy down the field, and Smith-Marsette disrupted two potential tacklers as Tracy sprinted into the end zone.

"When I stopped, the ball was already right there," Tracy said. "So, all I had to do is catch it, turn upfield, make a couple people miss and two blockers did their thing and I scored."

Tracy's other catch led to the Hawkeyes' final scoring drive. From the Iowa 43, Tracy ran a deep post-corner route along the left sideline. Stanley unleashed the ball from the right hashmark and hit Tracy at the Wildcats' 22. The pass traveled about 50 yards in the air and led to a 38-yard completion.

"We knew that they were going to go to quarters (coverage)," Tracy said. "Nate put it on the money again, and I tried to score, but I wasn't going to keep my feet in."

Tracy playing sparingly in four games in 2018 with one catch for 22 yards and kept his redshirt. This season, he is considered Iowa's most versatile receiver and worked at all three positions, sometimes in every game. When Smith went down last week, Tracy shifted to the X position exclusively.

"That seemed like a lot on my plate but it's really not because coach (Kelton Copeland) has helped me out in every single way you can," Tracy said. "I come in and talk to him whenever I can, if I'm like having trouble remembering a play or something. So, I'll play like X, Z and Y. It's not very hard for me to go to Brandon Smith's position just because I've been playing it the whole season."

Tracy has a vivacious personality that endears himself to his teammates and coaches. He also has a tendency to drive them crazy. This summer, Copeland praised Tracy for his work ethic and inquisitive nature, but at times the young receiver was a handful for the third-year assistant coach.

“He’s a football junkie,” Copeland said. “He soaks it up. He’s texting me, calling me in the middle of the summer. I’m trying to be on vacation and he’s texting me, calling me. ‘Hey coach, can you come meet with me? I’ve got this down, can we move on to the next thing?’ That’s what you want. That’s what you love about a kid like Tyrone.”

Few players enjoyed a more dynamic high school career than Tracy. At Decatur Central (Ind.) High School, located just southwest of Indianapolis, Tracy was named the Indiana Gatorade Player of the Year in 2017. He rushed for 1,412 yards and 13 touchdowns at 11.5 yards per carry and also caught 54 passes for 1,132 yards and 16 scores.

Tracy set Decatur Central marks for career touchdowns (72), career receiving touchdowns (33), career receiving yards (2,643) and career rushing yards per attempt (8.7). He ran for 3,525 yards in four seasons.

“Tyrone was a good athlete in high school and a tremendous young person from a great family,” Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz said. “So that’s what attracted us to him. We didn’t know running back/receiver, although he did make a move as a running back. I remember (Iowa alum and longtime NFL assistant) Tom Moore was at practice last year during the bye week. We just caught eyes after he made this move, but the question was what’s he going to end up doing?”

At 6-foot-1 and 190 pounds, Tracy is a compact player capable of competing at multiple positions. In high school, he ran a laser-time 40-yard dash in 4.52 seconds, squatted 430 pounds and bench-pressed 270 pounds. Throughout summer training at Iowa, Tracy earned the right to ring the workout bell, which meant he met an objective.

Tracy used his physical toughness on another play midway through the third quarter. With Iowa facing fourth-and-8 from the Northwestern 30, Stanley rolled right and threw short to tight end Shaun Beyer. Tracy broke off his route, drifted back toward Beyer and blocked both cornerback Cam Ruiz and linebacker Paddy Fisher as they rallied around the tight end. Beyer gained 11 yards on the completion, and it led to the Hawkeyes’ second touchdown. Without the block, Beyer likely gets tackled two yards shy of a first down.

“I saw three people going to him; one-on-three, that’s never a good situation,” Tracy said. “I’m trying to make the team better in every single way I can so I went in there, threw my body in there and we got the first down.”

Iowa has tweaked its offensive personnel groupings a bit without Smith in the lineup. Unlike the three previous games, in which the Hawkeyes ran 19 total plays out of four-receiver sets, Iowa didn’t use a four-receiver set once against Northwestern. Smith averaged about 20 snaps a game more than Tracy before this week, but Tracy was more explosive. This week, Tracy played a career-high 65 snaps, according to Pro Football Focus.

In eight games, Tracy has 17 catches for 306 yards and two scores. His average of 18.0 yards per catch is the most for any Iowa receiver with at least eight receptions in the last five years.

“He’s been able to make people miss and get 5, 10, 15 extra yards on numerous occasions this year,” Stanley said. “All the work that he’s put in allowed him to be successful (Saturday).”

Title: Welch takes out his frustrations on Gophers

Author: Steve Batterson

Date: 11/16/2019

IOWA CITY - - The frustration ended Saturday for Kristian Welch.

The senior middle linebacker took the field for the first time in four games, returning from an injury to help the Iowa football team fight off Minnesota 23-19 at Kinnick Stadium.

"It's been frustrating, very frustrating, not getting the chance to be out there with my guys," said Welch, who has been dealing with a stinger and missed his final chance to play against his home state Wisconsin team a week earlier.

"It's been a very slow process getting back to the point where I could play physically. I just wanted to be out there and contribute what I could."

Welch led the Hawkeyes to one of their strongest defensive efforts of the year, becoming the first team to hold the seventh-ranked Golden Gophers to fewer than 28 points in a game this season.

He finished with a game-leading 11 tackles, recorded one of Iowa's six sacks, shared another tackle for a loss and broke up a pass.

"It just felt good to be back out there," Welch said. "I don't have many games left and I wanted to make the most of it."

Fresh face: When Tyler Goodson was on the field for the first snap Saturday, he became the fourth true freshman to start in a game this season for the Hawkeyes.

Goodson went on to lead all rushers with 94 yards on 13 carries, including a 26-yard carry on the Hawkeyes' game-opening touchdown drive.

"We just felt like he gave us our best chance to do things," Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz said. "I've said it all along. We like all three of our backs. Just thought it might be the best answer for today's game."

Goodson joins defensive back Dane Belton, linebacker Jack Campbell and tight end Sam LaPorta in starting games this season, the largest collection of true freshmen to start for Iowa during coach Kirk Ferentz's 21 seasons.

Ferentz-coached Hawkeye teams had started three true freshmen on two previous occasions — Matt Hankins, Ihmir Smith-Marsette and Tristan Wirfs in 2017 and Benny Sapp, Bob Sanders and Jonathan Babineaux in 2000.

Ojemudia sits: Senior cornerback Michael Ojemudia missed his first start of the season Saturday, watching in street clothes because of an injury suffered in the Wisconsin game.

Riley Moss made his first start of the season and the seventh of his career in place of Ojemudia and responded with two tackles and an interception which ended Minnesota's final drive.

The pick was his third in two games against the Golden Gophers.

"They seem to bring out the best in me," Moss said. "We knew they would be putting the ball up a lot late, so we just got ready to make some plays if the possibility was there."

Slow start: Minnesota linebacker Thomas Barber said the Golden Gophers struggled to carry the momentum from their win over Penn State a week ago over into the game with Iowa.

He said spotting the Hawkeyes a 13-0 lead didn't help.

"It's hard to come back like that in the Big Ten," Barber said. "Defensively, we started out too slow. You can't do that in the Big Ten. We got burned. All credit to them, they came out on fire. Their offense was moving the ball and they played a really good game."

Barber said by the time the Gophers found their defensive rhythm, it was too late.

"You can't wait until the second half to do that," he said.

Firing blanks: Iowa's defense accomplished something in the first quarter that had been done just once before this season.

The Hawkeyes held Minnesota without a point, something the Golden Gophers had not experienced since a scoreless opening quarter in their season-opening win over South Dakota State.

0-for-ever: Iowa's failed two-point conversion attempt in the first quarter following a bad snap on what was to be a PAT kick attempt extended a string of unsuccessful two-point tries for the Hawkeyes.

When going for two after a touchdown, Iowa has been unsuccessful in its last 11 attempts.

Reilly recognized: Represented by his three sons, Jim, Steve and Bob, former Hawkeye Mike Reilly was recognized as the honorary captain Saturday.

Reilly, an all-Big Ten offensive guard and linebacker as a senior at Iowa in 1963, died Oct. 18 at the age of 77. He played professionally for the Bears and Vikings and spent 17 years as a color analyst on WMT radio broadcasts of Hawkeye games.

Jim Reilly, an Iowa linebacker from 1985-88, spoke to the Iowa team on Friday and joined Hawkeye captains at midfield for the pregame coin toss Saturday.

Mike Reilly previously was recognized as an honorary captain at Iowa in 2003 for a game against Buffalo. He is the fifth person to be named an honorary captain more than once.

A different look: Iowa exchanged its traditional gold uniform pants for black pants with a yellow stripe as part of the Hawkeyes' annual blackout game.

Iowa also changed the look of its headgear to honor members of the military and veterans.

The Hawkeyes' black helmets featured a red, white and blue tigerhawk logo on the right temple to honor those who have and continue to serve. The left temple included no logo, honoring those who made the ultimate sacrifice.

Title: IOWA LB COLBERT HAS HUGE FAN IN FORMER IOWA ASSISTANT DON PATTERSON

Author: Pat Harty

Date: October 26, 2019

IOWA CITY, Iowa -- Djimon Colbert probably didn't know it at the time, but he met one of his biggest fans on Monday at the Iowa Football Complex.

The sophomore linebacker crossed paths with former Iowa assistant coach Don Patterson as they both were leaving the complex and they would go on to have a brief conversation.

Patterson has praised Colbert on the AllHawkeyes radio show and podcast throughout the season for his consistency and versatility, but they hadn't met until Monday.

"It's special in that I literally just met him yesterday," Colbert said at Iowa's weekly press conference on Tuesday. "I always see him around, but I had never really sat down and talked to him before.

"We were both leaving the building and it was kind of just like how are you, and we're just talking for a second and he was like I'm Don Patterson, and I've heard that name before. So he kind of told me who he was and that he has a podcast and stuff like that."

Patterson considers the 6-foot-1, 235-pound Colbert one of Iowa's most consistent players and best tacklers in space.

"If you can't bring it every weekend, in baseball if you go three for ten, that's okay, but in football, if you're tackling people it better be a hell of a lot better than that," Patterson said.

Colbert has 36 tackles, which ranks third on the team, heading into Saturday's game at Northwestern. The former high school defensive back from Shawnee Mission, Kan., also has one interception and three pass breakups.

"The thing I like about him is he's a pretty physical player, and he's a pretty consistent open-field tackler," Patterson said of Colbert. "And that's not always easy to do in the open field."

Colbert was recruited to play safety at Iowa, but switched to linebacker prior to the start of spring practice in 2018. He was redshirted as a true freshman in 2017.

Colbert's body was more suited for linebacker as he quickly started to gain weight and strength after joining the Iowa program.

He has made the position switch look easy, starting 10 games last season at weakside linebacker as a redshirt freshman and is now firmly entrenched as the starter at that position.

“I thought he built a good foundation last year,” said Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz. “He’s improving with every opportunity.”

Patterson has praised Colbert for his ability to defend the run and the pass. Colbert credits his success this season, partly to having played so much last season, and learning along the way.

He was better equipped to handle Purdue’s diverse passing attack this season compared to a year ago because he sort of knew what to expect.

“Watching the game from last year, they kind of got me on some out routes and stuff like that, which I knew that going into the game (this year) that they would probably do that to me, so I was kind of better prepared when put in those situations,” Colbert said. “I think going off my freshman year, it’s kind of that foundation that I have developed, and that my coaches helped me develop, and then this year is just trying to improve off of that.”

Based on Patterson’s assessment, Colbert has continued to steadily improve. Patterson does analytics for several college teams, including Iowa, and he sometimes attends Iowa’s practices.

He coached at Iowa throughout Hayden Fry’s 20-year reign as head coach from 1979 to 1998, and was a Hawkeye assistant coach alongside Kirk Ferentz for nine seasons from 1981-89 when Ferentz coached the offensive line.

Patterson also was the head coach for Western Illinois from 1999 to 2009 and an assistant at Buffalo and Connecticut before retiring after the 2015 season.

He has lived in the Iowa City area since retiring and still has a special bond with the Iowa program, and with Kirk Ferentz and the assistant coaches and players.

So it means a lot to Patterson when the current players take time to acknowledge his presence.

“It’s gratifying to me because when I’m standing there after practice and the kids are streaming by going off the field, the vast majority of them have a greeting, and they may not even know who the hell I am other than they think I’m a coach because they always say, ‘hey coach,’” Patterson said. “So I feel good about that. I’m glad those kids appreciate my support. I certainly feel like they do.”

The 68-year old Patterson is a bridge between the now and then of Hawkeye football.

He played a key role in helping to rebuild the program under Fry and takes great pride in knowing that Iowa has sustained a level of success for 40 years.

Patterson is allowed to attend Iowa's closed practices, given his credentials, and he enjoys the interaction he has with the players.

The conversations are always brief, but special to Patterson, including one he had with true freshman linebacker and Cedar Falls native Jack Campbell on Wednesday.

Campbell is now playing a significant role at middle linebacker with senior starter Kristian Welch out with an undisclosed injury. Campbell has rotated with redshirt freshman Dillon Doyle at middle linebacker in the last two games and Patterson wanted to congratulate him for his early success.

"Just yesterday, for the first time I talked to Jack Campbell, and I said, Jack, you don't know who I am, but I used to coach here with coach Fry years ago and I know a little bit about football and I just want to congratulate you, you're playing really well at the start of your career," Patterson said. "So I want you to feel good about your progress.

"And he said, 'coach that means so much to me.'"

Patterson then asked Campbell if he had heard of former Iowa tight end Mike Flagg, who played at Iowa from 1984-87, and is also from Cedar Falls.

"I said, have you heard of Mike Flagg before? And he said, yeah," Patterson said. "And I said, well, you should have. He's only the best player Cedar Falls ever had unless it's going to be you.

"And he laughed."

Coaches, after they retire, often say what they miss the most is the relationships with the players, the day-to-day interactions that build trust and respect.

Patterson certainly misses that part of the profession, but he also gets to relive it to a point with the current Iowa players.

Patterson feels connected to them because he is connected to them as a former Iowa coach and now as a loyal supporter. His words of encouragement mean a lot to the players because they are taught to respect the past.

And for Patterson, his interaction with the players is something he will cherish forever because it's the part of coaching that he misses the most.

Title: How words from an Iowa legend led to Geno Stone's game-changing play against Purdue

Author: Scott Dochterman

Date: 10/19/2019

IOWA CITY, Iowa - - With an appearance more physically imposing today than nearly 20 years ago, when he first took the field at Iowa, Bob Sanders returned as the team's honorary captain and delivered a message of leadership and brotherhood.

One player — the right player — took Sanders' speech to heart before and during Iowa's 26-20 win against Purdue. Starting Iowa safety Geno Stone grew up in the same state as Sanders. Stone is from New Castle, Pa., just 90 miles south from Sanders' hometown of Erie. Stone's uncle and high school coach faced Sanders in the Pennsylvania state playoffs in the late 1990s.

Since arriving at Iowa in 2017, Stone has noticed the imposing shadow the 5-foot-8 Sanders cast over the program. Sanders' Pro Bowl jersey hangs in the defensive backs' meeting room, and his picture is everywhere throughout the football operations building. They met briefly two years ago but gathered for a direct conversation Friday and a quick one Saturday. But what made the biggest impact on Stone's play Saturday came Friday night at Iowa's team hotel.

"I'm not going to lie, me and (Michael Ojemudia) sat last night and watched his highlights from 2006, 2007 season when he played in NFL," Stone said. "Like watching the highlights in the Super Bowl when he went in there, put his head down and forced a fumble. I'm like, 'I've got to do that Saturday.'

"That's why I really just tried to get a forced fumble. It's just crazy because I image my game off him, how I played today."

Stone forced a critical fumble early in the second quarter when he stripped Purdue receiver Amad Anderson Jr. at the Iowa 9-yard line and recovered the ball. That play kept the Boilermakers out of the end zone and proved crucial to the outcome.

On a rainy, cloudy day in a game few people will remember fondly on Tuesday, let alone at all in two weeks, it was Stone who helped cobble together the defense for No. 23 Iowa (5-2, 2-2 Big Ten). Along with his forced fumble and recovery, Stone added a hurry and five solo stops. While his turnover didn't contain the raw power of a Sanders hit, Stone's play was just as impactful.

With the Hawkeyes leading 6-0, Purdue drove from its 39 to the Iowa 18. Quarterback Jack Plummer found Anderson on a screen pass at the 18, and the receiver raced up the field until meeting Stone and freshman cash Dane Belton at about the 9. Iowa's defenders stood up Anderson and held him as Stone tugged at the ball. As Anderson went over backward, the ball rolled to the playing surface. Stone fell on it for the recovery and held it high as he raced toward the sideline. The play stood after a review.

“He was just trying to run me over,” Stone said. “So I held him up until everyone got there, and I was able to get my hands on the ball. And when I got it, I saw the ball on the ground, I picked it (up) and hurried up and got out of there as fast as I could.”

It was the type of play Sanders made repeatedly for Iowa when he was a three-time All-Big Ten safety. He did the same thing for Indianapolis when he led the Colts to a Super Bowl title in 2006 and was named the NFL Defensive Player of the Year in 2007.

Brotherhood is important on any football team, and that was the message Sanders relayed to Stone and his teammates during a speech Friday. Their bond is more important than football, Sanders said, as is their commitment to each other.

“I’m going to give it all I got for you,” Sanders told the team. “I’m going to sacrifice my body on every single play for you because I love you. You’re my brother. I love you.”

Sanders’ address spoke to Stone. Their one-on-one encounter Friday left Stone energized, like when an older brother encourages a younger sibling.

“He told me that he’s been watching all year,” Stone said, “and I’ve been playing really good. He told me he’s seen me take a step forward as a leader and everything. He said he remembers me being here as a young guy with eyes just wide open looking everywhere. Now, I’m a leader doing everything.

Former safety Bob Sanders was named an honorary captain for Iowa on Saturday against Purdue. (A. Messerschmidt / Getty Images)

“I gave him a lot of credit because he set the example of what it is to be an Iowa safety. I talked to him before the game, too, and he just told me to go out and ball. Just don’t take anything lightly. He told me every time you see the ball, go get it.”

It heartens coach Kirk Ferentz that one of his players appreciates Sanders. Nobody did more to establish the Iowa culture under Ferentz than Sanders, who was referred to as “The Hitman.” In practice, Sanders was forced to wear a red jersey because he went so hard, he accidentally would hurt his teammates.

“It’s interesting now because people aren’t always appreciative of tradition and history, that type of thing,” Ferentz said. “But I think our players have all been smart enough to figure out — and we talk about Bob frequently just what he was and how he did it, did things as a Hawkeye and the impact that he had. So I think everybody in our program has a pretty good knowledge of him.”

Sanders’ impact was immeasurable on his coaches, his teammates and the entire program. Defensive coordinator Phil Parker called him the greatest player he ever coached. Former Iowa teammates Chad Greenway and Sean Considine measured themselves against Sanders in all aspects, not just on-field production. That helped both enjoy long NFL careers.

“If I’m on the field and you line up with Bob Sanders and you see him play with a level of intensity he played with, I had never seen that before,” said Greenway, a two-time Pro Bowl linebacker during his 11 seasons with the Minnesota Vikings. “A lot of Iowans had never seen that before. To me, if you pick one guy who changed the culture of this place, I think the coaches would probably agree, it was probably Bob Sanders.”

Considine, who arrived at Iowa with Sanders, said his “sole mission was to beat Bob Sanders in everything we did. And that is what probably single-handedly took me from, you know, 4.75 running back out of Byron, Ill., to an eight-year NFL veteran football player.”

“That guy just had a different gear, a different motor, and you just had to look in his eye,” Considine said. “When he decided to go, it was 100 percent go, I mean to the point where they had to pull him out of practice because he’s hurting people.”

Last fall, Sanders was inducted into the UI Athletics Hall of Fame. He finished his Iowa career with 348 tackles, 30 pass breakups, 16 tackles for loss and seven interceptions. In his final game at Kinnick Stadium against Minnesota, Sanders registered 16 tackles, three forced fumbles and a sack. Shortly before the 2004 NFL Draft, Ferentz told reporters when he inserted Sanders in the starting lineup, “It was like being in a street fight and having your big brother show up.”

Sanders was just as instrumental for the Indianapolis Colts. During the 2006 season, he missed the final 12 regular-season games, and the Colts gave up an NFL-worst 5.3 yards per carry and 2,765 rushing yards — the most by 441 yards. Sanders returned to the Colts’ lineup for the playoffs, and Indianapolis held every opponent to fewer than 112 rush yards per game and 4.1 yards per carry. Sanders had a 38-yard interception return in the Super Bowl against Chicago, which turned into a 29-17 Colts victory. Injuries derailed a promising NFL career after only 50 games.

Sanders’ accolades and bone-jarring hits impressed Stone and his fellow defensive backs. More than anything, Sanders’ imprint on every aspect of Iowa football is what stuck with the junior safety. Sanders’ message just reinforced the qualities Stone already has and displayed Saturday.

“Everyone says he’s one of the guys that every time he’s on the field, he made the team better,” Stone said. “That’s what I’m trying to do on defense is every time I’m on the field, just to try to make an impact and try to do as best as I can.”

Nobody has matched Sanders’ influence as an Iowa defender, and perhaps no one ever will. But Stone is Iowa’s most valuable defensive player this year. Iowa defensive end A.J. Epenesa said, “Geno sets the tempo at practice and in games.” If Stone’s brushes alongside Hawkeye perfection lead to excellence, then Sanders’ legacy is in good hands with his Pennsylvania protégé.

Title: How walk-on Jack Koerner ended up starting at free safety for the Iowa Hawkeyes

Author: Mark Emmert

Date: October 10, 2019

IOWA CITY, Ia. -- Jack Koerner was a starting safety at Iowa high school football power West Des Moines Dowling Catholic, so smart and skilled that he captained the defense on a state championship team.

He didn't draw a lot of college interest, but South Dakota certainly liked what it saw, becoming one of three FCS schools to offer a scholarship. Koerner was set on becoming a Coyote.

Shortly before National Signing Day in January 2017, he dropped a bombshell on his parents, Gary and Gail. Koerner was thinking about passing up a free education in order to walk on to the Iowa football team.

The Koerners scheduled a family dinner at Firebirds in West Des Moines to talk it over. Seated opposite his son, Gary asked Jack a pointed question.

"Why are we not going to South Dakota? Because we were locked and loaded. We had a whole closet full of South Dakota stuff," Gary Koerner recalled. "And he said, 'Mom, Dad, I don't want to wonder for the rest of my life whether I could have done it with the Hawkeyes.' And so, 'Check please,' basically.

"When your kid says he doesn't ever want to regret it, that kind of hits you as a parent. So we just want him to be happy. That was a good enough reason for us."

Two years later, it's easy to say things have worked out just fine for Jack Koerner and the Hawkeyes. He doesn't yet have that scholarship he once turned down. But the redshirt sophomore is about to make his fifth start at free safety when No. 18 Iowa (4-1, 1-1 Big Ten Conference) hosts No. 9 Penn State (5-0, 2-0) at 6:44 p.m. Saturday in a game nationally televised on ABC.

How did Koerner get here so quickly?

He put his mind to it.

"All through my career, I've tried to do things right and just be attentive in the meetings, even when I'm not on the film," Jack Koerner said this week. "The more you understand the defense, the easier it is (for coaches) to progress you.

“That’s something that should be the biggest strength for any guy. The more you know and the faster you know it, the faster you can play. That makes up for a lot of physical things. Obviously, having the physical ability makes it even better.”

Koerner is 6-foot, 204 pounds. He was fast enough to be a star center fielder on the Dowling baseball team, and he has packed on enough muscle to be a forceful tackler. He has 20 tackles, tied for third on the Hawkeyes. He has broken up three passes, including one heady play in the waning moments of Iowa’s 18-17 win at Iowa State last month.

Tom Wilson coached Koerner at Dowling and was surprised that bigger colleges weren’t after him. Wilson said Koerner was always a serious, cerebral player, and also more athletic than he sometimes got credit for. Koerner played some at wide receiver when the Maroons needed a big play. He also returned kickoffs and punts.

“I think he’s probably a little bit underrated as an athlete. You might have bigger kids. You might have faster kids,” Wilson said. “But he’s always been very explosive. I remember watching him dunk a basketball as a junior. How many kids his size can do that at that age?”

Former Iowa assistant coach Reese Morgan was one who took notice. He started visiting Koerner and came away impressed, so much so that he extended a preferred walk-on offer.

Gary and Gail Koerner met while students at Iowa. They used to bring Jack to Kinnick Stadium, where he loved tossing around a football at pregame tailgates.

So the appeal of wearing the black and gold was strong for Koerner. Too strong, as it turned out. South Dakota couldn’t compete with that.

Koerner redshirted as a freshman, then played on special teams last season, recording two tackles.

That was the plan again this season, although Koerner was hopeful he could work his way onto the depth chart. He started to assert himself in spring camp. By the summer, Iowa defensive coordinator Phil Parker was dropping his name in media interviews.

Back home, Gary Koerner took notice. Jack doesn’t talk much about his football success. His parents had no idea that things were going so well.

“When I heard Phil Parker bring up his name unprompted, I was like, ‘Whoa, something might be happening here,’” Gary Koerner said. “You go there as a walk-on and you’re trying to climb the ladder, right? You’re trying to get invited to camp. And then you’re trying to be able to dress for the game. And you’re trying to get on the travel squad. Then you get on special teams.

We always knew he was going in the right direction. But the idea of him starting this year, that was a surprise.”

Koerner entered the season second on the depth chart to sophomore Kaevon Merriweather. But the day before Iowa’s second game, at home against Rutgers, Merriweather hurt his foot. Koerner’s time had arrived.

Not that he was eager to share that news. Gary Koerner said his wife had a 10-minute phone conversation with her son that Friday evening. Just before she hung up, Jack mentioned he might be starting.

And he has been ever since.

Koerner said he doesn’t think that he’s earned the job for good, even though all signs are that he has. Merriweather was healthy for last Saturday’s loss at Michigan, but didn’t play a snap on defense

“We both know that both of us are capable of going out there and doing it. We both trust each other and, in practice, we’re constantly working with each other, helping each other out,” Koerner said of Merriweather. “We know that the competition makes us both better. It can’t hurt having us both play well.”

Koerner said the next step for him isn’t complicated: “Just to keep playing good football and make everyone around me better.”

Wilson has been keeping close watch on his former star player. He sees a different athlete than the one he coached.

“I obviously watch the Hawkeye secondary more now than I ever did and really isolate on Jack,” Wilson said.

“I think he’s playing physical. You can tell that he’s communicating a lot back there. I think he probably seems like he’s a little more vocal than he was for us. He plays like a very confident player right now.”

Gary Koerner is struck by the confidence he sees in his son as well. The lifelong Hawkeye fan can’t believe how this is all unfolding. The days of stocking up on South Dakota gear seem like a lifetime ago.

“I honestly don’t know where it is,” Gary Koerner said of the Coyote garb. “I think it’s in the storage area.”

Title: The Difference A Year Makes for No. 33

Author: Darren Miller

Date: October 19, 2019

IOWA CITY, Iowa -- On a day when the most famous University of Iowa No. 33 was in attendance, the current No. 33 quickly came up with a game-changing play.

All-America safety Bob Sanders, who provided big hits and big plays for the Hawkeyes from 2000-03, was on the sideline as honorary captain. Also observing from the sideline was sophomore Riley Moss (No. 33), a 6-foot, 1-inch, 191-pound cornerback from Ankeny, Iowa, who has spent most of the season nursing a hip injury.

On Purdue's opening drive of the second half, and after freshman wide receiver David Bell had amassed nine catches for 114 yards, University of Iowa defensive coordinator Phil Parker yelled for No. 33 -- Moss, not Sanders -- to be ready.

"The next play he told me to get in there," Moss said. "I was excited and ready to be out there."

On third-and-8 from Iowa's 40-yard line, Purdue quarterback Jack Plummer dropped back and looked in Bell's direction. Iowa's secondary was in Cover 2, Moss intercepted the pass at the 21, and returned it seven yards.

"I was sitting on the bench because I was only (playing) in nickel, so I had to stay mentally prepared the entire game," Moss said. "You don't know if you are going to go in or not, but I got that chance. It was awesome getting that pick because I got to celebrate with my teammates on the sideline."

Iowa led 9-7 at the time and Purdue had moved 35 yards on its first seven plays of the second half. If the Moss interception wasn't the biggest play of the game for Iowa, it was certainly one of them. The Hawkeyes used the momentum from the turnover to assemble a 9-play, 72-yard scoring drive to go up by two possessions, 16-7.

No. 22/23 Iowa (5-2 overall, 2-2 Big Ten) went on to snap a two-game losing skid (and two in a row against the Boilermakers) with a 26-20 victory inside a sold-out Kinnick Stadium.

"There are a lot of good things today and that was one of the best things I saw," Iowa head coach Kirk Ferentz said of the interception by Moss. "Riley ended up having the hot hand and did a good job."

The play was also symbolic of the growth Moss has made since the meeting with Purdue last November in West Lafayette, Indiana. On that afternoon, Purdue fifth-year senior quarterback David Blough picked on Moss -- among others -- to the tune of 333 yards and four touchdowns.

Then a freshman, Moss compiled three tackles with a breakup, but it wasn't a highlight reel kind of day.

"You are on an island sometimes and it can be high stakes out there (at cornerback), but you have to brush it off and have thick skin," Moss said. "If you let it get to you, it will probably happen again."

Bell finished with 13 catches for 197 yards and a long of 54, but after Moss entered the game, Bell went 23 minutes without a reception.

"We gave up a lot of points to these guys last year (38), but that's the value of experience," Ferentz said. "It's a tribute to the way Riley has worked since last year."

Moss finished with two tackles, one for loss, and a pass breakup. The breakup was credited when he nearly had a second interception, but possession was gained out-of-bounds.

"You have to be ready and act like they are going to throw your way every time, otherwise they will catch you off guard and it could be a touchdown," Moss said. "You have to stick with the game plan and stick with what you're taught and it should work out."

Title: MATT HANKINS REALLY SHOWED ME SOMETHING ON SATURDAY AGAINST PURDUE

Author: Pat Harty

Date: October 20, 2019

IOWA CITY, Iowa - - Iowa cornerback Riley Moss had just intercepted a pass in the third quarter against Purdue and was heading towards his bench when he was greeted by some of his teammates, including Matt Hankins.

In fact, Hankins was the first player to congratulate Moss for making a play that was crucial in Iowa's 26-20 victory over the Boilermakers on Saturday at Kinnick Stadium.

Hankins was also the player that Moss had replaced in the lineup just a few plays earlier at cornerback because Hankins had been struggling. But instead of sulking or being upset, Hankins put the team first and his unselfishness didn't go unnoticed.

I noticed it right away from the press box, but so did the head Hawk, who was standing just a few feet from Hankins as he congratulated Moss.

"There are a lot of good things today and that was one of the best things I saw," said Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz. "I noticed that just like you did. He's the first guy out there to congratulate him. I think it's just representative of the kind of guys we have on our football team. They're great young people, they care about each other.

"And Riley ended up having the hot hand, did a really good job there. Matt's a good football player and I'm just glad both of them are back with us and we'll be a better football team with both those guys playing."

Hankins also attended the post-game press conference, which couldn't have been easy under the circumstances, but he made no excuses and spoke highly of Moss.

"That's my boy, so I was happy for him, of course," Hankins said of Moss. "I always want to celebrate with my boys when we do good.

"And we got the (win), so that's good, too. So I'm really excited for him."

Hankins started his fourth game of the season on Saturday, and the only reason he hadn't started all seven games was due to a hamstring injury.

The junior from Lewisville, Tex., seemed firmly entrenched as the starter at left cornerback, but then Hankins struggled to contain Purdue freshman receiver David Bell on Saturday and was eventually benched in favor of Moss.

Bell shredded Iowa for 13 catches for 197 yards and one touchdown, with many of his catches coming against Hankins.

Some players might have sulked or made excuses or resented their replacement having success, but not Hankins.

He embraced the team-first mentality and that kind of unselfishness is huge in building and sustaining the right chemistry.

“Playing defensive back you’ve got to have confidence,” Hankins said. “There are going to be plays where you get beat. You can’t let that linger on you. So you’ve got to flip the page as I like to say. Just flip the page and get back out there and do what you’ve got to do.”

“In my case, I got taken out. So as every athlete, you’re going to be disappointed when you get taken out of the game. But I’m still here to cheer my teammates on, my brothers. I’m disappointed, but I’m glad we got the win and I’m just going to work harder next week and build motivation.”

Moss was able to redeem himself on Saturday after having struggled during a 38-36 loss at Purdue last season.

Purdue had driven into Iowa territory and was trailing 13-7 when Moss intercepted a pass thrown by Purdue quarterback Jack Plummer at the Iowa 21-yard line. Moss returned the interception to the Iowa 28, and his play ultimately led to one of Keith Duncan’s four field goals in the game.

“I knew they were going to come after me, but just stuck with the game plan,” Moss said. “I knew I was ready. So I just did what I was told to do and it worked out.”

It also worked out because Hankins put the team before his own ego.

It had to be a crushing blow for Hankins to be benched in the heat of the moment, but he handled it with class and dignity.

That is a tribute not only to Hankins, but also to how he was raised.

“That’s just how I was raised, and that’s really how the whole team is really,” Hankins said. “If you get taken out, you don’t want to let your head down and show everybody that you’re sad or you’re mad then that will rub off on somebody else.”

“We always want to have positive energy on the field, off the field, always team camaraderie.”

It is one thing to say the right things during easy times, but a person often shows his or her true character during times of adversity.

And for a college football player, there are few things worse than getting benched.

The challenge for Hankins, as he pointed out, is to use what happened on Saturday as fuel and motivation for the rest of the season.

Iowa still has five games left in the regular season, so there is plenty of time for Hankins to either keep his starting position or win it back.

Just because he was benched on Saturday against Purdue doesn't mean the move is permanent.

Iowa defensive coordinator Phil Parker has shown a willingness to make personnel changes during a game, and Hankins has been on both sides of Parker's benchings.

Hankins and Moss will continue to compete and push each other in practice and that should help to create a healthy environment for getting better.

Hankins started at cornerback in all eight of the games that he played in last season. He also made his first career start against Nebraska as a true freshman in 2017.

Hankins earned the start against Nebraska as a true freshman after having performed well during a loss to Purdue in the previous week. Parker inserted Hankins in the third quarter against Purdue two years ago and Hankins seized the opportunity, much like Moss did against Purdue on Saturday.

There were so many little things that contributed to Iowa's victory on Saturday, from key blocks to timely catches to drive-stopping tackles.

But the way in which Hankins handled being benched is what I'll probably remember the most about this game because it was first class all the way.

It was a tribute to Hankins and to the Iowa culture under Kirk Ferentz.

Title: Dane Belton's emergence allows Iowa football to bring back cash

Author: John Steppe

Date: October 26, 2019

EVANSTON, Ill. - - About a month ago, Iowa head coach Kirk Ferentz didn't necessarily have the personnel to run the cash defense that the Hawkeyes mastered last season.

But the emergence of true freshman safety Dane Belton allowed Ferentz to use the cash defense almost exclusively along with nickel and dime defenses in Iowa's 20-0 shutout of Northwestern on Saturday.

"We're more comfortable with Dane Belton, six weeks ago versus right now," Ferentz said. "He's accelerating right now, and we're developing a real trust and comfort level with him."

The scheme centers around a 4-2-5, which takes one linebacker out in favor of a third safety. Belton has been that third safety for the Hawkeyes.

It's the second game in a row that Belton has seen significant snaps. Against Purdue, he had a career-high six tackles. Saturday against Northwestern, he had five total tackles.

"He is an athletic guy. He's not as big as (Amani) Hooker was," senior and fellow defensive back Michael Ojemudia said. "But he can definitely tackle, and I think the biggest part about him is he's a smart player, so I think he fits really well for that spot."

Ojemudia described having Belton in as "a plus for everybody else on the defense."

"He has a really good poise about him," Ojemudia said. "A lot of people wouldn't even know he's a true freshman the way he's playing out there. ... With every game, he gets more confidence."

The cash defense essentially shut down the Wildcats' already-questionable passing game. Northwestern junior quarterback Aidan Smith threw for 138 yards on 18-for-32 passing and had an interception.

It was the defense's second shutout of 2019, which defensive lineman Chauncey Golston said was the team's mindset since getting off the bus.

There was enough confidence in the defense that Ferentz could make more conservative playcalls. On a fourth-and-short situation, Ferentz took a delay of game penalty and sent the punt team out instead of trying to convert.

"You certainly can't take your foot off the gas, but (the defensive success) certainly does alter your strategy," Ferentz said.

Ferentz hasn't always been able to employ the cash position considering the high injury toll to the secondary. Matt Hankins, Keavon Merriweather, Riley Moss and Julius Brents have all been hurt at some point this season.

While Merriweather is still out, Iowa can show more of the cash defense it started to implement after the 28-17 loss to Wisconsin last season.

Ferentz said the team's implementation of the cash position relies heavily on the opponent. Teams like Northwestern and Purdue are not as well equipped to play against the extra safety as other conference foes.

"Every game you go with certain game plans," Ferentz said.

Looking ahead, the cash might not be too feasible against No. 13 Wisconsin. The Badgers enter Saturday second in the Big Ten with 235 rushing yards per game.

Title: Iowa Defensive Back Devonte Young Gets Rewarded on the Field for Staying the Course

Author: Pat Harty

Date: 9/15/19

AMES, Iowa - - When Devonte Young made a verbal commitment to the Iowa football team, he really meant it. At a time when an alarming number of college athletes bail at the first sign of disappointment, especially in football and men's basketball, Young is a refreshing exception.

The senior from Waldorf, Md., never has started for the Hawkeyes, and he even switched positions from receiver to defensive back last season in hopes of expanding his role beyond just special teams. But it was Young's role on special teams that finally helped to secure Iowa's 18-17 victory over Iowa State on Saturday in a game that was interrupted by two weather delays that lasted for nearly three hours in Ames.

Young recovered a fumbled punt with 1 minute, 29 seconds left in the fourth quarter, and that is when he and his teammates and coaches and Hawkeye fans finally could breathe a sigh of relief. And then about 30 minutes later, Young was being interviewed by the media, along with about a dozen of his teammates, all of whom were starters in Saturday's game, including junior receiver and kick returner Ihmir Smith-Marsette.

"You've always got to have those people who are committed to the program," Smith-Marsette said. "They'll go out there and they'll risk anything for it. So just having those types of people on the team is tremendous. "He's my lead blocker on kickoff returns. He's just somebody that I can depend on to give me a block and spring me free. It's always good to have someone like that on the team who actually contributes to big games and big plays. It's just somebody we love to have."

Young's loyalty is a tribute to him, and to the Iowa program. He is obviously determined to finish what he started, and to honor his commitment to Iowa, while his experience at Iowa has given him reason to feel so strongly about staying the course. A lack of playing time and distance from home are often reasons why college athletes transfer. Young hasn't started a game in college, and his hometown is approximately 936 miles from Iowa City, and yet, his allegiance to Iowa has remained strong.

"The reason why I stayed is because there is no better place than Iowa," Young said. "So it's not like I wanted to transfer or anything. None of that stuff was even in my mind, honestly. I was just thinking I committed here, I'm on this team and this is what I want to do. I'm giving this my all for four years, so this is what I wanted to do. "It's just a family environment. We help each other through the ups and downs, the young guys, the old guys, coaches, we all communicate with each other and we all get it done."

That statement speaks volumes about the culture at Iowa under head coach Kirk Ferentz. The fact that Young is content with being mostly a special teams player at a school far from his home, when he could've transferred for more playing time says a lot about the Iowa program, the University of Iowa and Young himself. Everyone can't be a star, or even a starter, but everyone can buy into the team first mentality and still play a key role, as is the case with Young.

Football has brought Young together with teammates from all over the country, and there is so much more to being a student-athlete than just playing the sport itself. Recruits are often told to pick a school where they would feel the most comfortable and inspired if they couldn't play sports anymore. Young has been fortunate to avoid injury, but it now seems apparent that he picked Iowa for more than just what he hoped to accomplish on the field.

Young picked Iowa because of the people associated with the program, and because he felt it was the best place for him to grow, on and off the field. And though he hasn't played significant role on the field, Young has certainly been a key performer and leader on special teams, and has grown off the field into a soft-spoken young man who understands the value of staying the course and who appreciates being a part of something that is bigger than him. Those are qualities that should carry Young a long way in life. "I think they can because you always go through ups and downs in your career and you never know what can happen in life," Young said. "In the future, somebody could lose their job, but that doesn't mean they're just done for the rest of their life. You've got to go out and find another job and stuff like that.

"So I look at it as like switching from offense to defense and finding my role on special teams, you just have to find where you fit." The problem is that some college athletes aren't willing to work through the ups and downs or accept the results and consequences. So they transfer, and it's easier to do now with the NCAA transfer portal giving college athletes more flexibility and freedom to switch schools. And no school, including Iowa, is immune from it.

Iowa has had eight players from the 2017 recruiting class leave the program, and seven from Young's 2016 recruiting class, including two because of injuries. But on the other hand, just because somebody transfers doesn't mean they're disloyal or unwilling to fight through adversity because every case is different and because a student-athlete has to act in his or her best interest.

College is an important time in a person's life, and a time when important decisions have to be made that could have life-changing consequences. Young, like every player on the Iowa team, was a celebrated athlete in high school. He made first-team all-state as a defensive back and was named his conference's player of the year as a senior. You don't achieve those things without being talented and without having an ego. Young had dreams of being a star when he arrived at Iowa because everybody does. It's just part of the process. But he also has put the team over his ego and learned that there is value and reward with staying the course and honoring a commitment. A football team is like one, big emotional family and few things are stronger than the bond between teammates.

“He’s one of my closest friends and he’s really a hard worker,” senior cornerback Michael Ojemudia said of Young. “You could see his transition from wide receiver to (defensive back), there’s been a lot of stuff that he does for this team that goes unnoticed. “But today, just his hard work, you can see that it paid off because he’s really a big effort guys for us.”

Young is an effort guy, and so much more. He could’ve easily transferred from Iowa when it became apparent that starting on either offense or defense would be beyond his reach. He also could’ve moved home, or closer to home to be near the comfort and care of his family and friends. But Young made a decision to be a Hawkeye, and with that decision came a commitment that has withstood disappointment, frustration and the loneliness from being so far from home.

So it makes you feel good to see him get rewarded on the field for being loyal and unselfish.

Title: Chauncey Golston has the solution to Iowa football's problems

Author: Mike Hlas

Date: October 13, 2019

IOWA CITY -- Almost everyone makes compromises in their careers.

With me, it's wanting to remind people not to take this sports stuff too seriously, then realizing if they didn't deeply care I'd have to work in a tire store. And I don't know anything about tires, including how to change one.

However, the thought of how meaningful this all really is was driven home to me Saturday while I was driving. Via satellite radio, I was listening to the West Virginia broadcast of Iowa State's football game there. Along came a plug for Julia's Pepperoni Rolls, the Official Pepperoni Roll of the Mountaineers.

Were I a University of Iowa athletics department employee, I would have pulled over on the shoulder of I-380, phoned my bosses, and said we need to meet first thing Monday morning to discuss securing an official pepperoni roll. There are, somehow, still dollars being left on the table.

Just because we announced our official pizza (sold at a convenience store chain headquartered in Wisconsin) earlier this season doesn't mean we can't cross another new frontier with pepperoni rolls.

As many words as we spend here on the games and the matchups and the personnel and the coaches and the strategy and the stats, maybe this thing is just one big pepperoni roll.

Now, Iowa's two straight losses with a total of 15 points scored demands outrage. Were I paying the kind of money a program like Hawkeye football asks for donations/season tickets, on top of the other associated costs and time demands of attending a game, I'd have the modest expectation of seeing an offense that entertains.

On ESPN's SportsCenter late Saturday night, Brandon Smith's sensational 33-yard touchdown catch made the show's Top 10 plays of the day segment, and was the highest-ranked play from major-college football.

So there was that, and it was great. The rest of it was pretty dry toast.

I'm not the first to point this out, but of the 21 Big Ten games since Brian Ferentz became the Hawkeyes' offensive coordinator, the offensive unit hasn't scored 20 points in 12 of them.

In fairness, Iowa was held under 20 points in five conference games and the Outback Bowl in 2016, the year before Ferentz was the OC.

Twenty points in college football, by the way, isn't some barrier surrounded by a moat filled with alligators and snakes.

But what does outrage get you? If you were an Iowa defensive player, would you look at the national statistics, see your team is fifth nationally in scoring defense and seventh in total defense, and insist the offensive players carry you to practice on their shoulders?

It's better to listen to Iowa defensive end Chauncey Golston, who had a terrific game in the Hawkeyes' 17-12 loss to Penn State Saturday night.

"We have to start holding teams to zero points," Golston said. "We need more shutouts."
