In ten seasons under head coach Dan Fisher, Pitt volleyball has risen to unprecedented success, garnering three consecutive ACC Championship titles (2017, 2018, 2019), the program's first three NCAA Elite Eight appearances (2020, 2021, 2022) and the university's first NCAA Division I Women's Final Four appearances (2021, 2022).

In short: Fisher knows how to win.

Combining the last four seasons (2018-22), Pitt has won more matches than any other NCAA Division I women's volleyball program with 109 victories.

In January 2021, Fisher signed a contract extension that ensures his leadership of the Panthers through at least the 2027 season, as announced by Director of Athletics Heather Lyke.

On the horizon for the Pitt volleyball program is the Victory Heights initiative, a series of state-of-the-art athletics projects that will provide Pitt student-athletes with national-caliber competition, training and sports performance and medicine facilities. Announced in 2020, the plan includes a new 3,500-seat arena for the volleyball, gymnastics and wrestling programs. The volleyball team will also have its own in-house practice facility.

"For us to have our own practice facility and a competition facility, is an absolute game-changer for volleyball," Fisher said at the unveiling. "The training environment is going to be better, having everything in the same spot...this means that we're going from a good experience to a great experience."

A two-time ACC and American Volleyball Coaches Association (AVCA) East Region Coach Region of the Year (2017, 2018), Fisher has elevated the Panthers to new heights. He has guided the team to the NCAA Tournament more than any coach in program history (2016-21). He was instrumental in Pitt's bid to host NCAA Volleyball Tournament matches at Petersen Events Center (2018, 2019, 2021), and led the Panthers to their highest postseason seed in program history at No. 3 in 2021. Most recently, Fisher guided Pitt to its longest NCAA Tournament run in program history, reaching Final Four for the first time after defeating No. 6 seed Purdue in the Regional Final.

Just eight months earlier, the Panthers secured one of the biggest wins in program history after upsetting No. 3 seed Minnesota in the 2020 NCAA Regional Semifinal, played in April 2021 in Omaha, Neb.

An accomplished coach at every level of the game, Fisher's coaching résumé includes an NAIA National Championship at Concordia (2012) with two national title match appearances (2011, 2012). Additionally, he earned a gold medal with Team USA at the 2015 Pan Am Games. Over the last 20 years his involvement with USA Volleyball has been extensive, ranging from his time as a player (2000, 2001), to an assistant coach (2006, 2007, 2012) to a head coach (2015, 2016, 2019, 2020, 2021).
