"Leonard Hamilton does an unbelievable job. He doesn't get enough credit for the way he recruits to his style, their style of play throughout the course of his career. It's very unique. It's obviously been highly successful. I just have a ton of respect for him. Over the years, obviously, I've been in league 15. He's been with me the whole time, more like I've been with him. And so we've been in a lot of different settings together, and he's a consulate professional and gentlemen."

Noting All-America Candidate Jamir Watkins
Jamir Watkins – “I have switched my number this season from No. 2 to No. 1 for my final collegiate season. I wore both No. 0 and No. 1 in high school at Trenton Catholic, No. 0 during my career at VCU, and No. 2 during my first season at Florida State. I think it's a great looking number. I will also become the first player in my family to earn a college degree and I want to show the younger members of my family that they, too, can earn a college degree.”

Quoting Leonard Hamilton

"It's bittersweet to see our coach retire. He's shaped so many players not only on the court but off as well. Always making sure we turned out to be better men than basketball players.

Jarquez Smith
Florida State Basketball, 2013-17

"Very sad to see his time come to an end, but I have nothing but endless respect for Coach Ham -- an incredible coach and an even better person. I'm beyond grateful for the opportunity he gave me to become a Seminole and for everything he has done for me, both on and off the court. Truly blessed and forever grateful to have played for such a legendary coach."

Jaylan Gainey
Florida State Basketball, 2022-24

"Coach Ham cares about people far more than just on the basketball court. More than anything, he showed us how basketball can be used as an instrument to become successful in life. He relates basketball and life better than anyone I have ever met. When he speaks without even trying he inspires me to be a better person and a better coach. He taught me about the mental aspect of the game and how one team always has a psychological advantage going into a game. His stories, quotes, and analogies I will never forget, and I will use with my players for years to come. My favorite quote of his that sticks with me: 'The true test of a man's character is not how he acts and represents himself when things are going well, but instead when things aren't going your way & adversity hits. How you respond and act in those times of adversity truly show who you are as a man and what your real character is.'"

Justin Lindner
Florida State Basketball, 2016-21

"He is a gem to the basketball community. Real players coach that cared for his players, not only on, but off the court as well. I have nothing but gratitude for him, He gave me an experience I only dreamed of, and will always love him for that. He did what everyone wants to do in basketball and [that's to] leave the game better than you found it. Real leader real legend. It was an honor to play for him.

PJ Savoy
Florida State Basketball, 2016-19

"Not only was Coach Ham the best coach I ever had but also the best role model I've ever had. He taught me how to be a great man off of the court and emphasized that basketball isn't the only thing that matters in life. He taught us the ability to care for others and take care of your family. Such a huge blessing in my life, if it weren't for him, I don't know where I would be."

Quoting Leonard Hamilton

"Well, he's a great coach. He did it at Miami where they hadn't won, he's done it at Florida State where they hadn't won. These are not blue-blood basketball programs, he elevated them both. He's a Hall of Fame coach in my mind, a Hall of Fame person, for sure. I just think it's the end of a great era in Florida State basketball. Leonard Hamilton has respect of everybody in college basketball. Every player, every coach, every fan, every player that ever played for or against him. He's what a college basketball coach is. And he'll be missed."

Jim Boenheim
Hall Of Fame
Syracuse University

"The best to do it, helped and shaped so many great players, graduate assistants, etc. He taught me so much beyond basketball, will forever be grateful."

Trent Forrest
Florida State Basketball, 2016-20

"Leonard Hamilton has been great for Florida State and he's been great for the ACC. We're going to miss Leonard Hamilton."

Mark Packer
ACC Network

"Think about this, Leonard Hamilton not only coached Florida State to four consecutive NCAA Tournaments, and it would have been five had it not been 2020, but they advanced in four consecutive NCAA Tournaments. That had never been done in Tallahassee. What he did as a racial pioneer back when he was the first African-American assistant coach – not just in the SEC but doing it at Kentucky – he has brought such grace to the sport and has done some much beyond the court and competition. He will be missed."

David Teel
Virginia Daily Press

"Coach Ham is one of the greatest program builders when you look at what he did at Miami and Florida State. Easily the greatest coach in FSU history. The culture he built was unmatched."

David Nichols
Florida State Basketball, 2018-19

"Knowing so much from the outside of who Leonard Hamilton is and what he's done here at Florida State. It's a scenario where you find a place that fits you and you stay there and do something special at that place. That's what he's done here. I hope as the rest of this season goes on that he gets the recognition that he deserves. No matter what goes on this season, or last season, he's done some special things here. Winning is hard. Winning in college basketball is hard and times are changing. He's the OG."

Micah Shrewsberry
Notre Dame Basketball

"Leonard Hamilton has been great for Florida State and he's been great for the ACC. We're going to miss Leonard Hamilton."

Leonard Hamilton's Trailblazing Career Started With Kentucky Basketball, Should End In HOF

By C.L. Brown

Louisville Courier Journal

February 17, 2024

Leonard Hamilton wanted to be the best Dow Chemical salesman in the nation.

At least, that's what he told himself after abruptly resigning as an assistant men's basketball coach at Austin Peay when he learned he wouldn't be considered for the head coach position.

Then coach Joe B. Hall and Kentucky basketball came calling.

Hamilton spent just a few days at his new job before tendering a resignation he wasn't sure who to give it to because everyone was out to lunch when Hall called to offer him a job. Hamilton wrote a "To whom it may concern" letter, left it on someone's desk and immediately packed up his belongings to leave Charlotte, North Carolina, for Lexington.

Now, 51 years after becoming the first Black assistant coach in UK program history, Hamilton brings his Florida State squad to the KFC Yum! Center for a final time as head coach to take on Louisville on Saturday.

Hamilton announced earlier in February that he will resign at season's end. His legacy will live on, thanks to his influence on a generation of coaches, players and programs, which is why Hamilton belongs in the Naismith Memorial Hall of Fame

"I never, ever thought about anything other than doing the job that I was charged with," Hamilton said. "I don't worry about the past, and I don't worry about the future. I worry about that which I can control. And, if I do a good job on Sunday, I'm going to have a better Monday."

Hamilton's had a lot of better days.

Hamilton's win total is at 658 heading into Wednesday's game against rival Miami, which is also a program that reaped the benefits of having him lead it. The Hurricanes disbanded men's basketball from 1971-85. Hamilton took over in 1990, guided them to three NCAA Tournaments and won the Big East during the 1999-2000 season for their first conference title of any affiliation in program history.

"Some people can write books on just winning championships and starting on second and third base," said Missouri's Dennis Gates, who was an assistant under Hamilton from 2011-19.

"Leonard Hamilton can write a book on starting outside the ballpark, getting in a ballpark, getting in a dugout, painting the lines, making sure the grounds are right, and then getting in a batter's box to take a swing, to try to get on first base, second base, third base and then get to home. He's got that whole perspective. That's Hall of Fame worthy."

Hamilton has always taken on challenges of bad jobs and made them better.

He took Oklahoma State, his first job as a head coach, to its first postseason in six years when the Cowboys made the NIT in 1989.

Hamilton is the winningest coach in Florida State's history. He led the Seminoles to their first ACC Tournament Championship in 2012 and was awarded another in 2020 for winning the regular season when the league's tournament was canceled due to COVID-19.

Hamilton's never been to a Final Four, and his 2020 team was best suited to make a run. It finished ranked fourth in the AP Top 25 Poll and fifth in the Coaches Poll and had five future NBA players on its roster, including San Antonio guard Devin Vassell and Chicago Bulls forward Patrick Williams.

That was a team that Gates thought was built to make it to the Final Four and win a championship. He was so convinced that when he was offered the chance to coach Cleveland State in August 2019, he seriously considered not taking the job. Hamilton wasn't having it.

"He made my decision easy, where a lot of head coaches will put the golden handcuffs on somebody and give them a raise," Gates said. "He kicked me out of the nest and said, 'You'll be great,' and gave me the added assurance and confidence that I'd be great."

Hall knew Hamilton would be great.

The Wildcats were nearly knocked out of the 1973 NCAA Tournament by the Austin Peay team Hamilton helped recruit. His prize signee was James "Fly" Williams, whom Hamilton won over in part because he stayed in New York for several days recruiting him, sleeping in his car during the process. Williams scored 26 points in the Governors' upset bid, but UK won 106-100 in overtime in the NCAA Mideast regional semifinals.

Hall knew UK had to shed its reputation of being slow to integrate. Hamilton's presence helped erase any negative perception from the past.

"Bringing in Leonard Hamilton was maybe the best hire the basketball program as a whole has made even back since Adolph Rupp," said Jack "Goose" Givens, who starred on the Wildcats' 1978 national championship team. Givens arrived the same time Hamilton did in 1974.

There were a few Blacks in athletics. There were fewer on campus who were just students. Merion Haskins, who played forward at UK from 1973-77, said the players had a sense of pride having Hamilton as an assistant coach.

Hamilton knew what that was like as the player who integrated Tennessee-Martin's men's basketball team. So he began the work of bringing in players that Hall otherwise might have missed on getting. Hamilton did his best to help the players off the court, too, by arranging social outings like trips to the movies and dinners.

"He single-handedly resurrected and saved the program during a time where Black student athletes, it wasn't popular for them to go to Kentucky," Gates said. "He did something for an institution to help them diversify. And it's still standing."

Hamilton had work to do to win over hearts within Lexington's Black community, too, as many at the time were not moved to support the program.

Hamilton learned this firsthand while getting a haircut at a barbershop. Customers who did not know what he looked like spent the entire time he sat in the chair disparaging his name as the new UK assistant. Hamilton waited until his cut was finished to introduce himself and let them know he wasn't going anywhere.

Those are some of the battles behind the scenes Hamilton fought, but his father instilled in him to never make excuses for something he didn't accomplish. He cleared those obstacles without ever letting on they were there in the first place.

That's one of the reasons he's admired by so many of his former players.

"It's the silent giant that goes unheard of," Haskins said. "He was that solid person that's in the background. It's not necessarily always in the statistics who was making the most impact for these colleges and universities. Everybody looks at, 'Oh my God, he's All-American, and he played (for the) University (of) Kentucky.' That's great, fantastic. But guess what? There's someone who made him great."

LaVon Williams played guard at UK from 1976-80. The Colorado native would have ended up at Kansas or UCLA had it not been for Hamilton's arrival on staff. Williams said he didn't appreciate the pressure Hamilton must have felt as the first Black coach until later in life.

"As we get older and we go from generation to generation, now we understand what he sacrificed, the mental pressure he was under and just teaching us how to cope with things that a lot of people couldn't cope with," Williams said.

Hall didn't hire him to be a chaperone. He gave Hamilton the task of shaping UK's defense as a 26-year-old assistant. What Hamilton took from his 12 seasons under Hall helped formed his philosophy as a head coach.

"He gave me a lot of responsibility, and that let me know, as a head coach, in order to help your staff become more prepared, you got to include them to give them an opportunity to grow and gain the confidence that it takes to move on and become a head coach," Hamilton said.

The word "trailblazer" can get thrown around too freely, but Hamilton literally paved the way for so many, including Kansas Hall of Fame coach Bill Self. He hired Self at Oklahoma State and gave him a wealth of responsibility at the age of 23. During Hamilton's first weekly radio show after making his retirement announcement, Self called into it to say thanks.

Hamilton's coaching tree includes SMU's Andy Enfield and many more at all levels of basketball.

Hamilton's never been much of a self-promoter. At his news conference announcing his retirement, he was asked about the Hall of Fame, and he replied he's trying to get to heaven not the Hall. Well, there should be room for him in both.

Jamir Watkins: Florida State's Leader on and off the Court, Gears Up for Miami Matchup

By Jessi Wynn

Seminole.com

February 18, 2025

TALLAHASSEE -- Jamir Watkins is not only Florida State's leading scorer but also a key leader among his teammates. As a two-year veteran and All-American candidate, he has developed a deep understanding of Florida State's structure and embraced his role as a leader.

Watkins' dedication to his craft is evident in his shooting ability and relentless practice routine. His commitment to improving his shot has made him the No. 4 scorer in the ACC while blazing towards several scoring milestones.

Florida State's game against Miami is one of four Seminole Heritage games the Seminoles are scheduled to play this season. The Seminoles will wear their celebrated turquoise uniforms against the Hurricanes.

It should be a great night for Watkins who averages 20.7 points, 5.9 rebounds and 2.0 steals while shooting .414 from the 3-point line in seven career games while the Seminoles have worn the Seminole Heritage uniforms.

He enters Wednesday's game against Miami at the Donald L. Tucker Center just 14 points from the 1,500 mark for his collegiate career. He is also approaching 1,000 career points at Florida State. Watkins needs just 36 points to become the 50th player in Florida State history to score 1,000 or more career points.

"I am extremely blessed," said Watkins. "I trust in the practice and have faith in the process."

Watkins has scored in double figures in his last four games and is averaging 14.3 points per game since scoring 19 points at Boston College. He has scored in double figures in 23 of Florida State's 25 games this season.

Heading into Wednesday's game against the Hurricanes, he is enjoying his best season from beyond the arc. He has already set a personal best for 3-pointers made in a single season (44) and has matched his best single-season 3-point shooting percentage (.344). Watkins is averaging a career-best 1.8 made 3-pointers per game and has hit at least one 3-pointer in 15 straight games.

His leadership extends beyond his scoring.

Teammates look up to Watkins not only for his on-court excellence but also for his work ethic.

"Jamir is such a great example of a leader," said sophomore Taylor Bol Bowen. "Obviously, he's such a great player, but it didn't come easy to him. He puts in a lot of work."

With many new Seminoles this season, Watkins was already well-known for his skills before they arrived at Florida State. Now, as their teammate, he has built strong connections with each of them.

"I looked up to Jamir first coming here, like, when I first committed, because he was all about playing defense," said freshman AJ Swinton. "I've always kind of looked up to him like I would an older brother."

Watkins' impact is also evident in his playmaking ability, as he has earned 215 career assists.

"I try to lead by example," said Watkins. "I am trying to be more verbal, get out of my shell and comfort zone in different ways on and off the court."

"The practice before a game I make sure to go hard, but also make sure everyone else is getting better."

As he continues to grow during his final collegiate season, Watkins is a leader among his teammates.

Game 0 -- Florida State 87, St. Leo 64

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — The first look at the 2024-25 Seminoles Basketball team proved successful as newcomer Malique Ewin scored 19 points and star guard Jamir Watkins added 18 points to lead Florida State to an 87-64 victory over Saint Leo at the Donald L. Tucker Center. Each of Florida State's 16 players earned playing time, with 12 playing at least 10 minutes and 12 writing their names in the scoring column. The Seminoles established a dominance from the opening tip with Watkins scoring the first points of the season from outside the arc. Watkins led the Seminoles in the first half with 13 points, three assists, and one steal as the home team built a 43-31 halftime lead. Ewin showcased why he was the number one ranked player and center in the junior college rankings during the 2023-24 season. In leading the Seminoles with 19 points he was a perfect eight of eight from the field with a team-leading five rebounds, and several thunderous dunks most of which came as he ran rim to rim to lead the Seminoles' fastbreak.
