2025-26 Big Ten Women's Basketball Conference Slate Unveiled
Institutions will play an 18-game conference schedule

ROSEMONT, ILL. – The Big Ten Conference announced Thursday a full breakdown of its 162 women's basketball conference matchups for all 18 members for the 2025-26 season, as revealed live on the Big Ten Network.

Each Big Ten institution will play an 18-game schedule for the seventh time in eight seasons, playing one school both home and away, while facing 16 teams once. Of the single-play opponents, institutions will face eight at home and eight on the road.

The conference season tips off on Saturday, Dec. 6, with three games, while the remaining 12 teams open conference action on Sunday, Dec. 7. The league slate pauses for the holidays and resumes on Sunday, Dec. 28 with a four-game lineup. The conference schedule is set to conclude on Sunday, March 1 with 12 teams in action. Attention will turn to Gainbridge Fieldhouse in Indianapolis for the 33rd Big Ten Women's Basketball Tournament, scheduled for March 4-8.

USC will enter the 2025-26 campaign as the defending Big Ten Champion after going 16-1 in conference play last season. UCLA hoisted its first Big Ten Tournament trophy after defeating the Trojans, 72-67, in the championship game.

The complete 2025-26 Big Ten women's basketball conference schedule can be found below. Tipoff times and television designations will be announced at a later date.
