

SciFest Science Challenge Name the Element

- I have a density of 13.6 g/cm^3
- I am named after a Greek god
- Hatters had to stop using me because I caused them to develop 'MAD Hatters' Disease'
- I can be found in thermometers, barometers, fluorescent lamps and batteries
- The smallest planet in the solar system has the same name as me
- My chemical symbol is Hg from the Latin name 'Hydrargyrum', which comes from the Greek word "hydrargyros" ("hydor" for water and "argyros" for silver)

Answer _____

Name: _____ Stand Number: _____

.....

SciFest Science Challenge Name the Element

- I have a density of 13.6 g/cm^3
- I am named after a Greek god
- Hatters had to stop using me because I caused them to develop 'MAD Hatters' Disease'
- I can be found in thermometers, barometers, fluorescent lamps and batteries
- The smallest planet in the solar system has the same name as me
- My chemical symbol is Hg from the Latin name 'Hydrargyrum', which comes from the Greek word "hydrargyros" ("hydor" for water and "argyros" for silver)

Answer _____

Name: _____ Stand Number: _____

.....

SciFest Science Challenge Name the Element

- I have a density of 13.6 g/cm^3
- I am named after a Greek god
- Hatters had to stop using me because I caused them to develop 'MAD Hatters' Disease'
- I can be found in thermometers, barometers, fluorescent lamps and batteries
- The smallest planet in the solar system has the same name as me
- My chemical symbol is Hg from the Latin name Hydrargyrum, which comes from the Greek word "hydrargyros" ("hydor" for water and "argyros" for silver)

Answer _____

Name: _____ Stand Number: _____