Intaka IslandTM

The natural heart of the city

INTAKA ISLAND ENVIRONMENTAL EDUCATION CENTRE VENUE HIRE INFORMATION: ACTIVITY CENTRE

What is Intaka Island?

Intaka Island is a hidden gem of Cape Town that has come about through a novel collaboration between property development and nature conservation. In 1996 the development of Century City faced the combined challenge of conserving the wetland ecosystems of the area as well as maintaining the clean and safe waterways that were incorporated into the precinct design.

The solution was inspired by nature, with an 8ha ephemeral pan being declared a conservation area and an adjacent 8ha area re-designed and a wetland constructed to perform the natural role of a wetland: water purification. Today the island is home to 213 indigenous plants species and 120 different bird species. Even more so, the island is a tranquil getaway from the city bustle, with a diverse back ground of visitors ranging from bird watchers, photographers, school groups and the Century City business man or woman wanting to escape during their lunch break.

What is the Environmental Education Centre (Eco – Centre)?

The Intaka Island Eco Centre is a multifunctional space that plays host to a variety of groups. The centre ranges from being a visitor information and reception area, to a thriving classroom for a variety of training workshops and events. Its appeal lies in the central location, but mostly in the elegant charm of the thatch roofed building overlooking the water and wetland.

The construction of the Eco Centre is a wonderful story of collaboration in the Century City community through various contributions from skills, finance, resources and time to establish this Green Building as an elegant, but suitable, welcome to the natural heart of Century City – Intaka Island.

The venue can accommodate the following numbers of people:

- 80 seated theatre/cinema style (no tables)
- 45 seated classroom style (3 per table)
- 24 seated boardroom style (3 per table)
- 30 seated cluster formation
- 120 standing

WHAT TYPE OF EVENTS CAN THE ECO CENTRE BE USED FOR?

Taking into consideration the objective of education at the Eco Centre and the sensitive natural setting it is to be expected that the venue be used in such a manner so that it complements its surrounding environment.

These events include:

- Environmental education
- Training and workshops
- Presentation and meeting venue for environmental clubs and groups
- Creative hub for intellectual presentations, talks, launches and expo's
- Corporate and community social responsibility events
- Small scale events e.g. cheese and wine, corporate breakfasts and sunset functions and cocktail parties
- Creative classes e.g. pottery, mosaic, art and painting classes
- Mind and body classes e.g. yoga, pilates and mediation classes

We regret no loud music or religious events and all bookings subject to approval by the birds... and sometimes management. See Terms and conditions.
