Explanation: Our treasurer, a volunteer director, filed this year, as we determined that we no longer needed audited statements for any funder, the audit/filing fees from the CPA firm were a huge percentage of our budget. The CPA did file our extension. As we prepared the filing, we realized that the CPA had counted meals, coats, bookbags and other items as in-kind donations, and, after some research, it became clear that we were simply distributing those goods for other non-profit organizations, and never had possession of the items. This research, and the process of determining how that affected our books, has been a challenge that put us over our deadline in November.

990 Schedule O, Supplemental Information

Return Reference	Explanation
Form 990-EZ, Part I, Line 20	Past return included in-kind food, book bag and other goods retained. These goods could be considered in-kind gifts, and our accountant opted to report them as such. However, they were not legally in the possession of the Historic East Linden Project, as they came from other non-profits and were in our custody briefly before distribution to consumers, and we opted not to report them this year. The estimated value of those goods was carried unnecessarily over into the new year.
