

Percy Order 6 2:32

Percy:

The main ones, I think I've mentioned like you know, watching a person, phone calls and then how they, to try and discredit the person. They did their utmost to discredit, to ruin a person's reputation. And that is they really tried to work hard to discredit me. My test testimony was not correct or that, and that to me is I knew that corporations did this you know, shoot the messenger sort of thing. And they would come into my community, to give you an example:

And you know, when, when they had their meetings or they get farmers and took them fishing, or took them to football games or to curling games, they'd invite farmers. They would say things to these farmers that you know, which would be against me. And that he really see, used our even though they admitted in court that I had never bought their seed. They would try and discredit me and say, Oh yeah, but he really did this. It isn't really what the court said, we know different. And so those sort of tactics, and so what initially was the hardest thing to get over. You got to have to remember. I was a member of parliament or the member of the provincial legislature. And I was on many, many agricultural committees. And I was known as a person to really work for farmers' rights, rules, laws, and regulations that would benefit farmers.

So when Monsanto laid that charge, against me, that lawsuit against me. Many of the farmers come to me that supported me in the, in political campaigns and work. They came to me and he said, Percy, you must have done something wrong. Monsanto it's a big company. They wouldn't come after a farmer, we are their customers. And so that was one of the hardest things to get around. But after a year or two, a lot of these farmers found out how Monsan, how Monsanto would come after them when they started getting investigated or checked on their acres and to see whether they were growing GMO, canola or soybeans without a license. So, but it took a year or two. And that was an awful time in our life is to how would they try to destroy a person's reputation?
