IN A COUPLE OF SENTENCES, PLEASE TELL US YOUR REASONS FOR WISHING TO BECOME A SPERM DONOR:

For me, this is a profound act of connection, a chance to offer something meaningful to a family longing to bring a new life into the world. The idea that I can be a small part of such a powerful, love-driven journey fills me with a deep sense of purpose and gratitude.

I believe that giving, especially when it comes from the heart, is one of the most beautiful things we can do as human beings. Being able to help someone start or grow a family, to bring joy and hope into their lives, is something that resonates with my values and who I am.

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

I believe in living an active life, and I thrive in environments that push me to grow, both physically and mentally. I feel a deep connection with nature, and I try to experience this connection as much as I can, whether it's through outdoor sports or simply spending time camping, surrounded by greenery. These moments give me the sense of balance and peace I crave.

The idea of constantly improving, in every aspect of my life, fascinates me. Whether it's improving my physical performance, expanding my mind, or deepening my spirituality, I'm always in the process of learning and evolving. I read a lot of personal development books, and I'm deeply interested in training, nutrition, and the growth of consciousness. I enjoy reflecting on all aspects of life, and I love to analyze and critique any sport, understanding it from different angles.

And, of course, I can't ignore my roots — football has always been a passion of mine. It's more than just a sport; it's a way of life.

WHAT'S YOUR LIFE GOAL?

My life goal revolves around communication, personal development, training, nutrition, and health. Why? Because I would love to give international conferences and lectures on large stages, integrating all of these aspects. I dream of working alongside people who are true role models for me, delivering talks that elevate global consciousness. My focus is on explaining why habits shouldn't just be called "healthy habits." They are simply habits because they are the choices we make to reaffirm our health in life.

You don't choose health to feel good. You choose it because you already feel whole, and through your actions, you reaffirm that health. Health is a constant reaffirmation of who you already are. It's not about doing one thing and saying another; it's about aligning your actions with the truth of who you are, a being that chooses health through conscious decisions.

For me, health means having habits that respect my physiology and allow my body to function at its best. But it's also about recognizing that human beings come into this life to grow and create. Therefore, personal development will always align with that idea — it's about evolving as a person in all aspects.

HOW WAS YOUR CHILDHOOD AND WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE MEMORY?

I come from a middle-class family, and I truly appreciate that I never lacked anything. But above all, what I'm most grateful for is having three siblings, making me the youngest of the four. I grew up in a house with a large yard, surrounded by animals. My parents came from a small town with few inhabitants and a lot of countryside, so even though we lived in an arid area, our house was very green. There were many plants, several dogs, and a big garden. I had a huge space to play and enjoy my childhood.

I always leaned on my siblings. We played all the time, and being the youngest, I learned a lot from them. It was a constant learning environment for me, a place of coexistence, though sometimes difficult, with many fights. But at the end of the day, we all knew we loved each other. The typical sibling upbringing.

On the other hand, my happiest memory is when we went camping with my dad, mom, and my three siblings. We made a bonfire, played with sticks, and swam in the river, all in an isolated and cold place. But at that moment, it didn't matter because the fun of being kids made everything else insignificant. I have vivid memories of running through the woods, hiding, playing, and climbing trees. Honestly, even today, I would love to go camping with my family again to relive those beautiful memories.
