

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS / NOTAS SOBRE AUTORES (in order of appearance/en orden de aparición)

❑ Miguel Ceara Hatton

Miguel Ceara-Hatton is a Dominican Economist. He is professor and researcher at the Pontificia Universidad Católica Madre y Maestra and a specialist on issues of development, macroeconomics, international economics and the Caribbean. He has been the author, co-author and editor of numerous books and articles on economy and the Caribbean.

❑ Jørgen Sørli Yri

Jørgen Sørli Yri is Assistant professor in Spanish and PhD candidate at the Norwegian University of Science and Technology, Trondheim. His field of study and his PhD-research deals with Dominican-Haitian relations and Norwegian aid in Dominican Republic and Haiti.

❑ Mats Lundahl

is Professor Emeritus of Development Economics at the Stockholm School of Economics. He has published nine books on Caribbean issues: Peasants and Poverty: A Study of Haiti (1979), The Haitian Economy: Man, Land and Markets (1983), Politics or Markets: Essays on Haitian Underdevelopment (1992), Peasants and Religion: A Socioeconomic Study of Dios Olivario and the Palma Sola Movement (with Jan Lundius) (2000), A Discography of Bebo Valdés (2008), Bebo de Cuba: Bebo Valdés y su mundo (2008), English version, Bebo de Cuba: Bebo Valdes and His World (2015), Poverty in Haiti: Essays on Underdevelopment and Post Disaster Prospects (2011), Issa El Saieh: Maestro and Legend (with Louis Carl Saint Jean) (2012) and The Political Economy of Disaster: Destitution, Plunder and Earthquake in Haiti (2014).

❑ Leiv Marsteintredet

is associate professor in Latin American Area Studies at the University of Oslo as well as in Comparative Politics at the University of Bergen. He has lived in and for many years studied Dominican politics and political institutions. His most recent work deals with the backlash to human rights in the Dominican Republic. His other interests include backlashes to international human rights courts, presidential interruptions and presidential succession in Latin America.

❑ Bridget Wooding

is the Director of the think tank "Observatory Caribbean Migrants" based in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic. Her research interests focus on human development, migrations, gender, labour and statelessness. She is the author of several books and articles on these topics, published in English, French and Spanish.

❑ Ingvild Skeie

was a volunteer with the Dominican civil society organisation Servicio Social de las Iglesias Dominicanas in 1999, and later worked on several short term assignments related to dialogue between Dominican and Haitian actors. She conducted field work for and wrote her master thesis in 2005-2006 on Dominican teachers' role in Dominican-Haitian relations. She has since then worked as programme coordination for Haiti and Dominican Republic in the Norwegian non-governmental organisation Norwegian Church Aid (NCA) in the period 2007-2012 and currently holds the position of special advisor on peace and security in NCA, focusing on Haiti and Dominican Republic among other countries.

❑ Kimberly Wynne

is a doctoral candidate in the Department of Social Anthropology at the University of Oslo. She has recently submitted her doctoral dissertation, "Blood, Sweat and Bananas: Making a Moral Life on the Margins of the Dominican Republic," which explores how Dominicans and Haitians strive for morally fulfilling lives in the precarious conditions of banana-growing communities in the borderlands of the Dominican Republic.

❑ Samuel Martínez

is a cultural anthropologist who teaches in the programs in Anthropology and Latin American Studies at the University of Connecticut. He is the author of two ethnographic monographs and several peer-reviewed articles on the migration and labor and minority rights of Haitian nationals and people of Haitian ancestry in the Dominican Republic. He is also editor of a contributory volume, International Migration and Human Rights (U California Press, 2009). In his current research and writing, he brings critical scrutiny to northern human rights solidarity with Haitian-ancestry people in the Dominican Republic, 1978 to 2015.

❑ Andrés Rivarola Puntigliano

is assistant professor in economic history and lecturer in Latin American Studies, at the Institute of Latin American Studies, Stockholm University. He is specialized in studies on regional integration, international relations, geopolitics and international political economy.

❑ Mariana Perry F.

obtained her bachelor in history in 2006 at Universidad Católica de Chile. In 2010, she acquired a Master cum laude in International Studies at Universidad de Chile. From 2008 to mid-2012 she occupied the post as researcher at Centro de Estudios Internacionales de la Universidad Católica de Chile. In June 2012, she was awarded a scholarship from Comisión Nacional de Investigación Científica y Tecnológica (CONICYT) to conduct four years of doctoral studies. In October 2012, she started working on her thesis about the renewal of the political ideas of exiled Chileans in Western Europe, under the tutorship of Professor Patricio Silva of the Department of Latin American Studies, University of Leiden, Netherlands.