From City Hall August 2021

The Council has been looking into updating the current method of reading water meters. Our current system, which is a hand-held reader that picks up the meter readings by driving by your home, has reached the end of its life usage and has become unreliable. The new system that we are looking at, will send out cellular readings to City Hall. This will eliminate the time spent driving by homes and be much more efficient. An "app" would be available where residents would be able to check water usage at any time, and would be alerted to high water usage, in case of toilet leaks or water hoses being left on, etc. We will first check that this cellular signal would work with all homes. More information is to come.

Speaking of water, as you have no doubt know, Stearns County and most of Minnesota is in a severe drought. Our small river, that flowed through town is totally dried up. We ask you to use your water very carefully and pray that the end of this drought will come soon.

And, again, speaking of water... before Covid happened, I had been exploring the interest in bringing a splash pad into Holdingford. Our current drought situation makes talking about a splash pad rather sad, but a splash pad would not be an overnight happening. Learning from other cities that have built splash pads, it takes extensive planning and a lot of fundraising, and volunteers dedicated to the project. Please watch for upcoming meeting dates to see if we have the interest to make this happen.

Respectfully,
Sue Marstein, Holdingford Mayor
