- Not enough knowledge to answer.
- Adding a kitchen adds cost not only to insurance but maintenance. Damages are bound to happen when you rent out a facility. I don't care how much of a deposit you collect, there would most certainly be a time when cost of repairs are far greater than the deposit. For a once a year meeting, I think we could all manage if we didn't have a warm meal at the meeting. You can save the town thousands by not including a community kitchen. Microwaves work great. All our town needs is a space for the town clerk to conduct business that is handicap accessible and a new garage for the road crew. Keep it simple.
- Maybe we should have county clerks like all small towns do to Lyndon for our area. That way they are open 5 days a week, most of the town clerk's works could be done from home/office. Land deeds could be scanned and on a secure website for lawyers, servers, etc. Land deeds could be stored in Barre or Burlington to save time and money.
- Only if in a new building.

- For residents, taxes are already high. I've paid Wheelock taxes for 50 years.
- Burn it down. If it isn't good for the Town Hall it isn't good for anything else!
- Public use for people to rent it.
- Tear it down and build over it.
- Destroy
- I don't know -- maybe use it as a common "store" where people can sell their own wares, sort of like a farmer's marketplace.

If you prefer to build new, should the building be a combination Town Hall and town garage?

- Don't know
- Not enough knowledge to answer.
- We don't need either one! Sick of hearing about Town Hall!
- If a garage is needed, yes. Keep it together.
- Heat one building, lights one place, up keep one place, insurance one place.
- probably
- Cost?
- It would depend on cost, location, aesthetics etc. I would not want to go to a town meeting and have smelly diesel equipment idling and polluting.
- Meh. We need both. Depends on what we can do and what offers exist that the residents will approve
- Depends if it reduces the cost to house both in one building.
- If the location and design is appropriate, and meets the needs of the town.
- Depends on cost
