The Campo Mines

The sharp brown line at Campo Mine marks the Cretaceous-Paleogene (K/Pg) boundary—the moment in Earth's history when a mass extinction wiped out the dinosaurs (except for birds) and about 75% of all life on land and in the oceans. This thin layer, rich in iridium from an asteroid that struck Earth 66 million years ago, separates older, yellow-brown sands below from younger, green sands above. Scientists study this site to understand the mass extinction and how life recovered afterward.

The Friends of Millstone Township Historic Registered Properties is a 501c3 nonprofit organization dedicated to furthering public interest in the conservation, preservation, and appreciation of the history of Millstone Township and Monmouth County. It provides the community with educational activities, exhibitions, and hands-on programs. Further, it provides research resources for the history of the Township, as well as identifying artifacts and property significant to our history. The restoration and care of our historic properties in the Township takes great effort and extensive fundraising. We can only achieve our goals with volunteers and donations from community members. Although these are township-owned properties, we are responsible for utility bills and program costs. We fundraise all year to raise enough money to match available grants. Please donate your time to help us preserve the past. Visit us at savinghistorywithfriends.org, or email us at friendsofmillstone@gmail.com.

The Nathaniel Cox House 1822

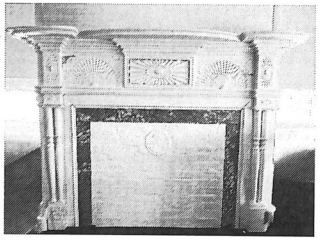

Nathaniel Cox (1803-1852) constructed his house on 85 acres of property adjacent to present-day Route 33. Nathaniel Cox married Matilda Fowler (1800-1890), a Quaker, and he was a trustee of the Bergen Mills Schoolhouse. The farmhouse passed on to his son, George R. Cox (1829- 1912), and his wife Sarah Conover. It was then sold to H.W. Parker, then William Mount, who grew crops and maintained an apple orchard. In 1958, it was sold to Chong Min and Fay Hom, who raised their family there and cultivated Chinese vegetables for market. Today the Homs continue to farm the land in grains and soybeans.

Handelman Poultry Farm

Estelle Handelman Gottlieb fondly reflects on her life in Millstone Township. During the 1930s, the family would rent a room at the Sidel Farm (Millstone Road) or stay in a bungalow by Perrineville Lake with no electricity, a water pump, and coal stove.

Estelle remembers swimming in the lake, recalling the dirt roads, and the surrounding potato and tomato fields.

In 1944, Joseph and Anna Handelman bought a farm on Stagecoach Road. Estelle met her husband, Jerry, at Sophie Bittner's Farm. His father announced their engagement! They returned to NY where they operated a retail business for 35 years. Jerry returned to the Navy and Estelle managed the store on her own. Subsequently, they had two sons, Steven and Arthur.

Upon retirement, the Gottlieb's moved to Millstone, settling into her parents' original farmhouse, where Estelle still resides. They were married 73 years until Jerry's death in 2021. Every Veterans Day since her husband's passing, she reads "In Flanders Fields" at the War Memorial. At 97, Estelle is still vibrant and full of life. The motto she lives by is, "When I don't get it right, I give it one more shot!"

- As told by Estelle Handelman Gottlieb

(a) Estelle reads from her book of poetry. She also likes to sing, play piano, write poetry, knit, crochet, and paint.

(b) The Handelmans operated a poultry farm on Stagecoach Road. Joseph was originally from Ukraine, Russia. Anna was from what is now Moldavia. Joseph also worked at the hat factory at the Jersey Homestead. Estelle also worked there as a little girl.

Perlman Family Farms

Samuel Perlman (1879-1953) and wife Molly (1880-1965), both born in Russia, immigrated to NYC between the late 19th and early 20th centuries. After several years, they purchased a farm in Millstone that was later sold and became part of the Assunpink Wildlife Management Area, now under water. The family bought a second farm on Nurko Road, where they cultivated potatoes, wheat, and soybeans while raising their children, Max, Isidore, Rose, Pearly, and Bill. The Nurko Rd farm was sold in the early 2000s.

In 1936, Isidore and his wife Bessie welcomed a daughter, Ann. At this time, they acquired a farm on Route 526, described in the deed as a "plantation."

Isidore, previously employed in tobacco sales, turned to farming full time. In 1938, their son David was born. Isidore expanded operations by renting additional acreage. Potatoes, the principal crop, were supplemented by corn, wheat, soybeans, and barley, with irrigation increasingly adopted. At the height of the potato harvest, 50 to 75 seasonal workers were employed. Harvesting was done by hand until mechanization became necessary. At its peak, the Perlman farm encompassed approximately 900 acres, with 180 acres devoted to potatoes. Today Mark Perlman continues farming approximately 25 acres. - As told by Stacy Perlman

The Wagner Family

Discharged from the Union Army in 1865, Reubin Wagner came to Millstone. He married Mary H. Gaywood and had 4 children: James, John, Howard, and Emma. Son James married Elizabeth Thompson and had 6 children: Raymond, Clarence, Henrietta, Margarette, Reubin, and Ruth. Clarence married Emma Stillwell and bought a home on Stillhouse Road. Eight children, Evelyn, Ken, Bucky, Clarence, Gaywood, Joanne, David, and Bruce were born here. Gay loved to tell the story about the doctor being paid a rooster for services when he was born! As a teenager, he purchased his first tractor with money earned picking strawberries at 5¢ a quart. Clarence plowed roads to pay property taxes.

(d)

Gaywood married Margaret Danser and had 4 children: Karl, Nancy, Gary, and Rick. Gay became an avid collector of tractors. He traveled from Maine to Cape Charles doing custom farming. Gay was recognized for his knowledge of tractors. Son Karl followed in his father's farming footsteps, operating a roadside market and later acquired the farm on Conover and Baird roads. He grew and marketed ornamental trees and mums. Karl purchased and restored the Baird House in the 1980s. Indeed, the Wagners have a long and storied history in Millstone. - As told by the children of Gaywood & Margaret Wagner

The Nurko Farm - A Legacy of Family and Agriculture

(a)

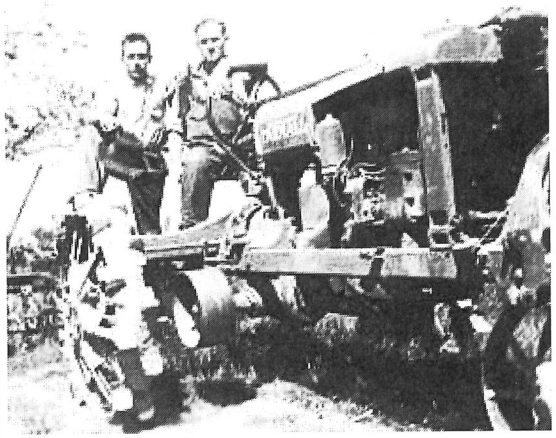

The Nurko Farm was a thriving agricultural enterprise, spanning over 1500 acres. William (Wasyl) Nurko and his wife, Mary Wyhnanez, emigrated from Ukraine to NYC in the early 1900s. In 1930, they purchased the original farm property, 4 Dressage Court. The couple had six children: George, twins Peter and Paul, Molly, Arthur, and Frederick. Wasyl worked during the week as a blacksmith and mason in the city, while Mary and the children managed the farm. They sold produce to the Camden Campbell Soup Company and the Newark Farmers Market. Pete and George operated the farm for more than four decades with the help of family members and migrant workers. After George's passing, Pete, his wife Ann, and their son Pete Jr. took over the operation. Today, Pete Jr. continues to farm the original land preserved under the Farmland Preservation Program. The Nurkos are a family defined by strength, dedication, and a deep-rooted love for the land, an enduring testament to the values passed down through generations! - As told by Diane Nurko Hilker

Ruther / Kramer Farm

Helen Margery Ruther Kramer, 97, granddaughter of Joseph George and Margaret Sophie Graper Eisele. In 1933, during the depression her family moved in with her mom's parents at 1832 White Farm House (now part of Black Bear Lake Day Camp) so her dad could find work. Frank Horner sold them the property in 1924. At the roadside stand they sold fresh produce, home-baked goods, and Sunoco Gasoline. If you bought 1 gal. of gas, Grandpa Eisele used to say, "Aren't you afraid you'll get your tank wet?" Helen met her husband, Jimmy Kramer, at the Harvest Home on Scooter Corner and they were married at the Clarksburg Church on Route 524 in 1941. They were gifted 5 acres of the farm. Jimmy and her brother, George, dug the basement, then moved a vacant house to its "handmade foundation." They sold vegetables and sweet corn (54 ears per bushel). In the spring, Jimmy started up "Old Betsy", a 1939 Iron Horse Tractor, and gave the kids rides as he plowed the fields. Her words of wisdom: "When things seem a little heavy in my heart, this too will pass! It is very true and it certainly helps one to reach for tomorrow! I continue to reach!"

Woodville

Established in 1828 by Lewis and Catherine Conover, Woodville is one of New Jersey's oldest free Black communities and a cornerstone of African American heritage, located on Smithburg Woodville Road. Nearly two centuries strong, this community stands as a living testament to the enduring spirit of freedom, dignity, and self-determination. Across generations, families like the Conovers, Fitzpatricks, Drummers, Floyds, Richardsons, Stanfords and Tylers cultivated the land by hand, growing abundant gardens that fed not only themselves but anyone who visited—reflecting a tradition of hospitality that has defined Woodville for almost 200 years. At the heart of Woodville stands St. James AME Church. More than just a place of worship, it has been a gathering space for celebration, resilience, and support. The church's enduring presence has anchored the community's identity, nurturing spiritual growth, fostering unity, and preserving the shared heritage that continues to inspire each new generation, reminding us to "look back to look forward."

Pearl Acres Airport

(b)

Millstone is known for its agricultural past, lesser known is the fact that Millstone once had its own airport! Created by local farmer David Perlman, Perl Acres Airport operated on the south side of Rt 526 for about 30 years. Opened around 1985, Mr. Perlman had the idea of creating a local fly-in community. Pilots and aviation enthusiasts would be able to build a home next to the airport, taxi right to the runway from their home, and takeoff! While these plans did not come to fruition, the airport instead became a local haven for small aircraft. Pilots based their small airplanes here and a local sport- ultralight aircraft club opened. Additionally, three helicopters were based here for crop-dusting operations. Mr. Perlman was also a tenant of his airport with his own small airplane. Eventually, the land would move into preservation and the airport was closed in 2013. - As told by Dave Perlman

Hom Farm

(b)

Grandfather Hom immigrated to the US from China around 1917 and served in WWI. After WWI he brought his wife to the US and operated a laundry in Pittsburgh. Wickie & Frank's dad and three brothers fought in WWII. In 1946 the family began farming on Perrineville Road in Monroe. The Homs bought the 96-acre working farm on Millstone Road close to Route 33 near Bergens Mill from the Mounts. Chong Min and Fay had two daughters- Helen Sue Lin Hom Moore and Marjorie Kim Hom Holzman, and two sons, Wickie and Frank Hom. Later they purchased two additional farms on Battleground and Perrineville Windsor Roads for a total of 410 agricultural acres in their operation. They converted the chicken coop and icehouse into labor housing for 26 seasonal workers from Puerto Rico. On their farm, Chong Min and his two sons, grew Chinese vegetables, bok chow, Chinese broccoli, bitter melons, and Chinese eggplant, to name a few. They transported produce daily to Chinese markets in NY and Philadelphia. The whole family worked hard to cultivate the soil and plant the fields. Wickie Hom can remember helping with the farm work at age five. In 2013, the Homs switched to growing grains, such as soybeans and rye for cover crop.

Halka Nurseries

In 1952, Chester Halka Sr. and his brothers started Halka Brothers Landscaping in the Old Bridge area. In the late 1950's Chester Sr. acquired Shotwell Farm in Millstone Township and began expanding the business by adding more properties for growing specimen trees. Among these acquisitions was a property they acquired in 1958 on Sweetman's Lane, where a variety of specimen trees of all sizes can still be found today. In 1962, Chester Sr. bought a home nearby and moved there with his wife, Elsie, son, Chet Jr., and daughter Janis.

(a)

While clearing some of the buildings from the properties, they discovered an old still in one of the basements. In the 1970s, they rebranded the business as Halka Nurseries, Inc. Today, Chet Jr., along with third generation Kate & Jaime run the operation which features over 200 varieties of specimen trees spread across 1,200 Millstone acres. Halka Nurseries, Inc. is well known throughout the U.S. for producing specimen trees with 3-inch to 20-inch calipers. Their trees can be found in remarkable locations, including the 9/11 Memorial, the Gateway Arch, the Statue of Liberty, and the U.S. Capitol Building.

The Clarksburg Schoolhouse

The Clarksburg schoolhouse, was built in 1925 as a four-room school. The school closed its doors to students in 1995 due to overcrowding and noncompliance with the building code. Originally, it served children from kindergarten through eighth grade. After its closure, the township rehabilitated it to serve as the current municipal building.

Former resident Helen Bruseloff; who taught fourth grade from 1932 until the school's closure, recalled that one classroom often accommodated three classes at once, there was no internal plumbing, only outdoor pumps, and classes progressed by the sound of a bell. The original school also had two, three-holed outhouses. Helen reflecting, "Good education took place in those original four rooms." In 1999, the schoolhouse was added to the State and National Registers of Historic Places.

Campo-Buck Site

The Campo-Buck site in Millstone stands out—it has some of the clearest physical and chemical evidence of the extinction itself, making it one of the best places in the world to study what happened. Scientists study this site to understand the mass extinction and how life recovered afterward. The scientists visiting here were part of the International Ocean Discovery Program, representing 22 countries that studied Earth's history by collecting samples from deep beneath the ocean floor. The exposure at Campo-Buck site is one of the most expansive and breathtaking, and it needs to be preserved for future generations.

Sediments from the Upper Cretaceous Red Bank Formation are exposed at the Campo Mine. These sands were laid down about 67 million years ago in an ancient sea that was over 50 feet deep. These sands were a target for mining. The striking reds, browns, and yellows you see are quartz sands stained by iron carried through groundwater.
