A small course with a meaningful community footprint

Franchot Park Youth Disc Golf Course continues to provide accessible, low-cost outdoor recreation for Olean-area families. Its compact, beginner-friendly layout makes it an approachable place for young people to learn the game, build confidence, spend time outdoors and participate in positive community activities. Despite its small size, the course maintains a strong 4.2-star rating across hundreds of reviews—a sign that it delivers a valued experience for local users and visitors alike.

TOTAL	640	5,503	15,917	—*	5

June was the busiest month with 154 rounds, while August reached the season’s highest monthly unique-player count (38). July remained strong at 102 rounds during the youth programming period. Across these six months, UDisc recorded 5,503 holes played and 15,917 throws. Monthly unique-player figures can include repeat visitors across months and should not be added together as a season-wide unique-player total. The five “brand new player” entries are the sum of monthly UDisc counts.

Youth programming: participation, opportunity and local partnerships

The free Franchot Youth League ran every Friday in July, drawing an average of approximately 20–30 children per event. The program gave youth a welcoming, no-cost way to learn skills, enjoy outdoor activity and connect with peers and adult volunteers. The 2026 Franchot Youth Splash Tournament filled its full 40-player limit, demonstrating strong demand for organized youth disc golf and a clear appetite for accessible local events.

More than 15 local sponsors supported this year’s youth league and tournaments. Their involvement helped create opportunities for local children while giving area businesses meaningful visibility among families, participants and the wider disc golf community. These partnerships connect recreation with local commerce and demonstrate how community investment can support youth development without making participation cost-prohibitive.

Community value and outlook

The 2026 season shows how a modest public recreation asset can deliver value beyond its footprint: regular course use, youth engagement, volunteer involvement, sponsor recognition and reasons for families to spend time in local parks. The UDisc figures document active use from spring through early fall, with especially strong play in June and August. Continued coordination among the City, community partners, volunteers and sponsors can help sustain the course, expand youth access and strengthen Franchot Park’s role as a welcoming neighborhood recreation destination.
