BUILDING NUMBER OF NEAREST DRIVEWAY OR SECTION CORNER

Before a building number can be issued, the applicant must measure along the centerline of the road, from the center of the new driveway to the center of the nearest driveway with an existing building number. A sketch should then be drawn showing the distance between driveways, any pertinent road names and the building number of the structure used as reference. The measurement can also be made from an intersecting road or from the lot line of a certified survey map - which should be noted on the sketch. The measurement must be accurate, not taken from an automobile odometer.
