Streamline Feedback and Increase Student Engagement

During our recent professional learning session, teachers explored new ways to streamline feedback and increase student engagement using digital tools.

Participants shared strategies for organising student work, creating interactive lessons, and improving accessibility for all learners.

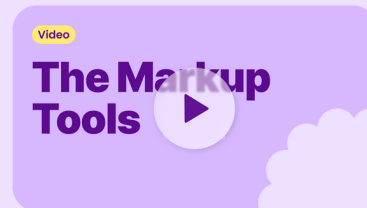

As the discussion continued, the group identified several meaningful next steps for strengthening instructional practices across classrooms.

These included refining digital workflows, expanding collaborative planning time, and creating opportunities for educators to model effective technology use for students.

By the end of the meeting, educators had volunteered for roles ranging from mentoring colleagues to leading future workshops.

The session highlighted our collective commitment to ongoing growth and to building a school community where all learners—and teachers—feel supported. ■
