To motivate my child and bring out their best...

- Encourage and believe in them. They will often rise to the occasion if you tell them you think they can achieve something.
- Be sensitive to their emotions. Responding empathetically to their emotions helps them move on faster than being cheered up.
- Be kind in your criticism. They are deeply sensitive to falling short of expectations and will be hard on themselves when it happens.
- Offer support. They may not speak up to ask for help when they need it, but will welcome it when it's offered.
- Give them time to warm up. They are often cautious until they get to know and trust others.

It will likely demotivate my child if you...

- Change plans or routines. They thrive with predictable routines and may struggle when plans change—especially without notice.
- Overlook them. They may come across as shy or reserved, but they want to be noticed and included.
- Pressure them. They are their own toughest critic and will respond better to encouragement than critique.
- Don't give them time to process and perfect. They like to fully think things through before speaking up or moving on.
- Have too much noise or chaos. They can be overwhelmed by crowds and noise (e.g., all-school assemblies) and may need time to recover afterwards.

Gauging Innate Needs

Use this exercise to gauge how full or empty a child's innate needs are right now.

Directions

- 1. Find and mark the four scales for the child's likely temperament. (You can ignore the gauges for the other three temperaments.)
- 2. When you're finished, consider these questions:
  - a. Did the definitions/statements change the way you think about any of the child's needs? If so, how?
  - b. Did this exercise reveal any of the child's need(s) that you may have been overlooking? What is one way you could start filling that need?

Need: Approval

They feel liked for who they are, flaws and all.

Need: Acceptance

They are often included or invited by others.

Need: Attention

Others give them focused attention and eye contact when they're talking.

Need: Affection

They feel seen and celebrated when they're nearby.

Need: Loyalty

They feel like the people closest to them have their back.

Need: Sense of Control

They are given the freedom to come up with plans, and others typically cooperate.

Need: Appreciation

They are celebrated for their unique contributions (at home, at school, and in friendships).

Need: Credit for Work

The effort they give to tasks is noticed and appreciated.

Gauging Innate Needs

Need: Safety

They feel protected by and able to trust those closest to them.

Need: Sensitivity

Others are considerate of their feelings.

Need: Support

Others notice when they need help and offer it.

Need: Space and Silence

They have time each day that is uninterrupted by noise or people.

Need: Harmony

They are not engaged in conflict, and everyone around them is getting along.

Need: Feeling of Worth

They are celebrated for their unique talents and traits.

Need:: Lack of Stress

They have time each day to relax and not feel pressured by anyone else.

Need: Respect

Others ask for and value their thoughts and opinions.
