Princess Leisha

Hoiho, the magic horse

Leisha's father, The King

Leisha's mother, The Queen

The good witch, Astra

The evil witch, Medea

It was a very special morning.
Princess Leisha was about to receive a special gift from her parents!

Leisha was so excited, that she got dressed double quick, and dashed to the throne room!

The King, the Queen, the good witch Astra, they were all there! Behind a red silk screen, was the most amazing gift Leisha could dream of! A magical painting!

Before the painting could be unveiled, the evil witch Medea appeared! "Having a party without me? I will ruin it all! I will shatter this painting and scatter the pieces all over the world!"

Before anyone could bat an eyelid, Medea disappeared! Along with the present! What a tragedy!

Leisha was sad! The best day of her life was ruined because of Medea.

"Don't be sad Leisha," Astra exclaimed, "here's Hoiho, the magic horse! Follow the golden trail! If you are brave, you will find what you are looking for!"

And with a whoop of joy, Leisha flew away on her magic horse, ready for a magical adventure!

Hoiho flew like the wind and soon, Leisha found herself in a land of palm trees and pyramids!

"Halt!" a menacing figure appeared, "I am Anubis, guardian of the tombs of kings! Who goes there?"
"I am Leisha, Mr. Anubis," the princess said, "and I am looking for my painting. Have you seen it?" "Ahh that! Come with me Leisha!" Anubis replied

The Anubis led Leisha to a small treasure room. "This glowy thing appeared a while ago," Anubis pointed to a piece of the picture, "and disturbed my sleep. I mean guard duty! You can have it back."

When Leisha touched the picture, something magical happened! "Yay!"
Leisha yelled, "we got the first piece!"

"Bye Leisha," the Anubis waved, "now I can go back to my sleep. I mean my guard duty!" Leisha waved goodbye and flew off to the next destination!

Soon, Leisha and Hoiho landed in the middle of a vast desert. "Why is there a lamp buried in the sand," Leisha wondered as he picked it up and tried to clean it.

All of a sudden, a blue Djinn came out of the lamp. The Djinn said, "Thank you Leisha for setting me free. You can have this piece your painting back." "Thank you Mr. Djinn," Leisha replied.

The golden trail led to a grand procession, in front of a temple. "That looks like a piece of the painting, there on top of the elephant!" exclaimed Leisha.

The bright golden trail paused at the mouth of a cave. Mysterious bat-like eyes glowed red in the darkness. But Leisha and Hoiho were brave. They charged in.

Seeing Leisha's courage, the creatures retreated. Another piece of the beautiful painting emerged out of the darkness. Leisha stood up on Hoiho's back to reach it.

Hoiho, the magic horse then dived into the deep blue ocean.

"Be quiet Hoiho," Leisha whispered, "we don't want to wake up the sleeping dragon!"

But to no avail! Dreki, stirred awake by the noise of the falling bricks, lunged after Leisha and Hoiho. But Leisha and Hoiho managed to escape by the skin of their teeth.

There was only one more piece left, and Leisha knew where it would be found.

The golden trail confirmed her guess. "I think this is Medea's home," Leisha said, "be very quiet Hoiho!"

As they got closer, they heard a strange sound! Someone was sobbing! "Who could it be?" Leisha wondered. They peeked through the windows and were shocked to see that it was Medea who was crying!

"Why are you crying?" Leisha asked, "is there anything I can do to help?" "You want to help me?" Medea wiped her eyes, "even after I stole your picture because I was not invited to your party?"

"Is that all?" Leisha said, "Then don't cry Medea, I will invite you to the party."

"You will?" Medea said, "you are so nice! Here!" she picked up her broom, "here is the remaining piece of your picture!"

Leisha, Medea and Hoiho returned to the palace.

"Leisha! You are back!" the King said, "And what is she doing here?" "I called her," Leisha said, "because she is sorry. She just wanted to come to the party!"

"Did you find the painting Leisha" Astra asked.

"Oh yes!" Leisha said, "I went to so many places and had so many adventures." "You must tell us all about them!" Astra said, "but first, let's get the painting."

And everyone cheered with joy, as Leisha unveiled the painting! "Hooray for Leisha" they said, "you are so brave and so kind!"

And Leisha clapped happily, when she saw the painting, the most beautiful painting of the most amazing child in the whole, wide world:
