The war in Ukraine has had a devastating effect on the global economy. According to the German Economic Institute, the war has cost the world a staggering 1.6 trillion dollars in 2022 alone. Europe has been hit the hardest, with two-thirds of their global production being lost.

The European Commission has predicted a grim future for the region, with households facing erosion of purchasing power, and a weaker external environment. Germany alone is expected to suffer a loss of 171 billion dollars, which is around 4% of its GDP.

The war has also caused a sharp increase in energy bills for businesses, with Germany's industry
