Summary

There are various types of criminal offenses, and individuals involved in a criminal act may be guilty of different offenses ¹. Some examples include murder, culpable homicide, rioting, unlawful assembly, using false certificates or statements, and causing disappearance of evidence ² ³ ⁴. Criminal offenses can also overlap with tort law, where certain conduct that constitutes a tort may also be criminalized ⁵. The punishment for these offenses varies, ranging from fines to imprisonment ⁶. It is important to note that specific laws and penalties may vary depending on the jurisdiction.
