My dear Mr. Lederman:

Several weeks ago you came to my office and graciously volunteered your services where and when needed.

I now find that we are most anxious for your services and particularly wish to benefit from your knowledge of languages.

As you may know a large number of Jewish families have emigrated to New York and are now housed in several hotels in this area. We need several people to assist our over-worked committee in helping these Russian Jews by offering advice, talking with them, and generally helping them adjust to a new environment.

I know that I can count on you. Please be kind enough to contact Mr. Martin Schwarzschild, (telephone: 362-9408). If you will be attending services at The Center during these next few days, please ask one of the ushers to point Mr. Schwarzschild to you.

I thank you for your services and wish you a happy Yom Kippur.

Cordially yours,

cc: Mr. M. Schwarzschild
