Dear Chief Adebo:

It is a week since I have returned from our Interreligious Peace Colloquium in Bellagio, and I am still enjoying the after-glow of that most impressive conference.

I wanted you to know that of the many warm recollections I have of the many friends I made, I cherish the short while we spent together and the opportunity I had to get to know you.

I hope and pray that in the course of the years we shall have many opportunities to meet again. I suppose that the chances of your coming to New York are greater than mine coming to Nigeria, so do let me invite you to call upon me should the occasion arise that you will be visiting the United States.

Once again, it was a pleasure to meet you, and do accept all my best wishes for success in all your endeavors.

Cordially yours,

RABBI NORMAN LAMM
