

January 8, 1972

Rabbi Norman Lamm
The Jewish Center
131 West 86th Street
New York, New York 10024

Dear Norman,

Since I saw you a year and a half ago at the Starlight, or Morasha to be more exact, I found that being a Hillel Director is a very enriching experience with much satisfaction.

Berkeley is a unique campus with many novel and peculiar situations. There is a group in and around Berkeley that calls itself ACHVAH. It is a group of gay Jewish men.

They are in search of legitimacy and acceptance within the Jewish community and particularly within the Jewish student community here at Hillel. I have an impression that you have written on the subject. If you have, I need all manner of information about how to deal with this group, or whether to deal with them at all.

Cordially yours,
