

EDITOR:
WALTER S. WURZBURGER

ASSOCIATE EDITORS:
Emanuel Rackman
Leon D. Stitskin

ASSISTANT EDITOR:
Louis M. Tuchman

MANAGING EDITOR:
Elihu Marcus

EDITORIAL ASSISTANT:
Chaim Brovender

TRADITION

A Journal of Orthodox Jewish Thought

EDITORIAL OFFICE: SHAAREI SHOMAYIM CONGREGATION
470 GLENCAIRN AVENUE
TORONTO 12, ONT.

BUSINESS OFFICE: Room 1101, 84 Fifth Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10011

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:

Eliezer Berkovits
Emanuel Feldman
Marvin Fox
Sidney B. Hoenig
Immanuel Jakobovits
Lawrence A. Kobrin
Norman Lamm
Sol Roth
David S. Shapiro
Dan Vogel
Michael Wyschogrod

January 10, 1967
28 Tevet, 5727

Rabbi Norman Lamm,
The Jewish Center,
131 West 86th Street,
New York, New York 10024

Dear Norman:

Enclosed please find raw and rough draft of the requested text for the jacket.

Warmest regards.

Cordially,

Walter S. Wurzbürger

WSW/rp encl.

P.S. Please edit, amend & add.

I don't have the ~~present day~~ Section leadings available. So please put them at the end

Filling a long felt need to provide a forum for the exposition and formulation of traditional Jewish thought, Tradition has in the short time of its existence won international acclaim for its pioneering contributions.

This anthology contains a representative sample of the writings which have helped catapult this journal of Orthodox Jewish thought, published by the Rabbinical Council of America, to such a leading position among publications addressed to serious, thinking readers.

Included among the contributors to this volume are some of the most distinguished thinkers of our time who have enabled traditional Judaism to come to grips with the challenge of modern thought and experience.

The material presented in this anthology was selected and compiled, with the guidance of Tradition's Editorial Board, by Rabbis Norman Lamm and Walter S. Wurzbarger, first and current editors of this journal respectively. The essays comprising this Treasury not only afford invaluable insight into the contemporary relevance of classical Jewish categories of thought, but provide a fresh perspective upon a variety of social and intellectual issues agitating the modern mind.

Addressing themselves to a wide gamut of exciting subjects, the selections offered here are arranged under the following headings: Religious Experience and the Halakhah; Judaism Confronts the World; Theological Perspectives; Halakhah and Contemporary Society; Biblical Studies; Criticism.

CC - Klavan - Wurzbarger

Filling a long felt need to provide a forum for the <sup>exposition</sup> development and formulation of traditional Jewish thought, Tradition has in the short time of its existence won international acclaim for its pioneering contributions. ~~in the field.~~

This anthology contains a representative sample of the writings which have helped catapult this journal of Orthodox Jewish thought, published by the Rabbinical Council of America, to such a leading position among ~~intellectual~~ publications, addressed to serious, thinking readers.

Included among the contributors to this volume are some of the most distinguished thinkers of our time who have enabled traditional Judaism to come to grips with the challenge of modern thought and experience.

The material presented in this anthology was selected and compiled, with the guidance of Traditions's Editorial Board, by Rabbi Norman Lamm and Walter S. Wurzbarger, first and current editors of this journal respectively. The essays comprising this Treasury not only afford invaluable insight into the contemporary relevance of classical Jewish categories of thought, but provide a fresh perspective upon a variety of social and intellectual issues agitating the modern mind.

Addressing themselves to a wide gamut of exciting subjects, the selections offered here are arranged under the following general headings: Religious Experience and the Halakah; Judaism Confronts the World; Theological Perspectives; Halakah and Contemporary Society; Biblical Studies; Criticism.